Half time score saw Esquires leading 21 to 18, after Albert had got off to a eight point lead in the early minutes of the game. After the half, both teams put on idrives and the elad alternated from one team to the other—with 2 minutes to go Albert were leading by 3 points, a baskt by Hayman and another by Faulkner wiped out the lead and put Esquire one point up. Merkley sunk a basket for Albert to put the college boys 1 point ahead, and with 10 seconds to go, Wright took a foul shot that would haxe tied the game, but missed it. Dr. Faulkner got the rebound and sunk it, but the ball on the foul shot had not touched the rim—so referee Ed Shortt called the basket back, and gave Albert a throw in. The game ended with the ball in Albert's possession.

DREW CALLS ON HYDRO CHAIRMAN TO RESIGN

Kidnapped Briton Released in Palestine

Maj. Collins Taken From Home Sun. By Terrorist Gang

No Announcement Made On Release of Windham

Jerusalem, Jan. 28—(Reuters)—The Palestine government information office stated tonight that, according to unconfirmed reports, Judge Ralph Windham, kidnapped by Jewish Terrorists yesterday from his own courtroom in Tel Aviv, had been released.

Jerusalem, Jan. 28. (CP) — Maj. H. A. I. Collins, kidnapped in his home here Sunday by Jewish Terrorists, was released today, Gershon Hirsh, spokesman for the Jewish agency, said tonight.

Hirsh said police had been warned to pick up Collins, one of two Britons abducted by Jewish Terrorists during the last two days, outside of Jerusalem.

Earlier, newspapers in the Jewish City of Tel-Aviv had reported that notes sent them had promised the release of Collins and Judge Ralph Windham, who was kidnapped from a court room here yesterday.

It was believed that the outlawed Irgun Zvai Leumi, militant Jewish underground organization, sent the notes.

There was no immediate announcement on the release of Windham.

Collins and Windham apparently were kidnapped in retaliation for the Palestine government's refusal to commute the death sentence of Dov Bela Gruner, Irgun member condemned for participating in an attack on a police station.

Jerusalem, Jan. 28 (AP)—The release of two Britons held as hostages for a Jew under a death sentence was promised "within hours" tonight in a note sent to Hebrew newspapers in Tel Aviv, the newspapers reported.

Advices from Tel Aviv said the note was believed to have been sent by the outlawed Irgun Zvai Leumi, militant Jewish underground organization. Police said the kidnappers apparently sought to force a commutation of the sentence in an attack of Dov Bela Gruner, an Irgun member condemned for participating in an attack on a police statipon.

The two Britons, kidnapped 18 hours apart this week, are Judge Ralph Windham, of Tel Aviv's District Court, and banker H. A. I. Collins of Jerusalem.

The Jewish agency executive earlier today demanded "the release, immediate and unconditional," of Windham and Collins.

The Palestine government was reported reliably to have decided to impose statutory martial law and suspend most government services in parts of the country at 5 p.m. tomorrow unless the two were released unharmed.

Postal and telephone services would be halted in the affected areas.

Suspend Officer For Two Weeks Without Pay

Merritton, Jan. 28 (CP)—Constable John Jackson was suspended from duty for two weeks without pay by Mayor Leslie Skipper last night following a council investigation of a Christmas Eve incident in which Jack Gibson, Jr., was alleged to have been beaten up.

Council, in police committee, said Jackson had been negligent in allowing Gibson, who suffered a double fracture of the jaw, to be driven away in a car by a group of young men allegedly involved in the fracas. Council further said the constable should have questioned the participants and attempted to determine the nature of Gibson's injuries.

10-Year Term For Bank Robbery

Hamilton, Jan. 28. (CP) — Judge E. F. Lazier today sentenced Austin Craft, formerly of Brantford, to ten years in penitentiary after Craft pleaded guilty to the armed hold-up of the Bank of Toronto branch on James Street South here Jan. 22.

Craft obtained $1,000 by using a hospital bed crank to simulate a weapon and intimidate the bank's employees.

Craft, who admitted a record which included two convictions for hold-ups in Montreal and Timmins, was captured by Clifford Le Sauvage, Russell Woods, Lloyd Spalding, Jr., and the bank manager, Edwin Walwain, less than a block from the scene of the hold-up and only a few minutes after he fled from the bank.

Craft passed a note to Miss Gertrude Walker, bank teller, demanding she hand over money. She dropped to the floor on receiving the note and the money—two bundles containing $500 each—was handed over by the manager.

Then Craft fled, pursued by bank employees. He was arrested by Detective William Stamp, who happened to be in the neighborhood in a squad car.

Black Market in Stolen Cars Spreads Despite Efforts to Curb Racketeers

Hamilton, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Business in the black market in stolen cars continues to be brisk, police reports released today indicated. Police further admit that the racket now is province wide and is undoubtedly spreading despite the efforts of the police of many cities to curb the racketeers.

As a further indication of the brisk trade in stolen cars authorities here report that in the last 72 hours four more 1946 model automobiles stolen earlier in the north and re-sold in Toronto had all been recovered.

"We cannot say how far the racket has extended but feel sure that scores of cars stolen throughout the province, are probably now in the possession of innocent victims who purchased them in good faith," said one investigating officer.

He further admitted that it was anyone's guess how much money the racketeers had cleaned up in the last several years re-selling stolen machines.

"The profit made by these men is tremendous," he said. "Stolen cars are re-sold at anywhere from $1,000 to $1,500," said the official, and it's almost all clear profit, he added.

Officials today warned prospective buyers of cars to consult police first before they make any private deal.

Over the weekend Toronto authorities advised the Hamilton police that a new model car stolen from Brantford on Jan. 15 was heading toward this city. Detective George Wright responding to the alarm intercepted the car on the high level bridge. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph C. Hitchie of Saskatchewan, were in possession of the car but readily accompanied the officer to the station. A check revealed that they purchased the car Jan. 20 at a private sale after inserting an advertisement in a Toronto paper. They paid $1,450 cash and as far as they knew were obtaining a legally owned car.

Mr. and Mrs. Hitchie explained that a young man had answered their ad and at first demanded $1,600 for the car. He finally accepted $1,450 and disappeared.

A few days later Mr. and Mrs. Hitchie, after driving the car, decided they would like a different model and approached a Toronto dealer to see if an exchange could be made. The dealer after examining the machine became suspicious and immediately notified Toronto police and it was then found the car had been stolen from Brantford.

Detective Clifford Dean stated that Mr. Hitchie had purchased the machine in good faith believing everything was in order.

To date local authorities with the assistance of Toronto and Montreal police have recovered at least 12 cars stolen in this district and re-sold in the black market.

TASS CRITICIZES BRITAIN'S CLOSE TIES WITH U.S.

News Agency Urges Britain to Live Up To Spirit of Treaty Of Alliance With Russia

London, Jan. 28 (AP).—Tass, official Russian News Agency, urged Britain today to live up to the spirit of her Treaty of Alliance with the Soviet Union and at the same time criticized Britain's close ties with the United States.

"One cannot say that British policy towards the U.S.S.R. conforms to the principles and demands of the Treaty of Alliance," Tass declared a few hours after Soviet Ambassador Georgi Zarubin held a long conference with Foreign Secretary Bevin, presumably about Prime Minister Stalin's complaints concerning "reservations which weaken" the 20-year Friendship Pact.

"Actually there are no few occasions when Britain and the United States have come out in a bloc against the Soviet Union," the news agency added.

"Britain has not formally concluded a treaty of alliance with the United States; nevertheless no one can doubt the existence of immediate relations between Britain and the United States, which in fact have assumed the character of a military alliance.

"The time has come to stand by the spirit of the treaty, particularly by that part according to which both countries undertook to work jointly for the organization of the security and economic prosperity of Europe," Tass said.

The Soviet news agency also called attention to a recent article in the Communist Daily Worker of London, which it quoted as saying that British-Soviet relations were in a "most unsatisfactory state" and that the friendship treaty, signed in 1942, "might just as well not exist for all the meaning it has at the present moment."

The new Tass statements seemed to indicate there was to be no relaxing of the pressure of Britain which began when the Communist party organ, Pravda, interpreted a statement by Bevin that Britain "does not tie herself to anyone" as a repudiation of the treaty of alliance.

Bevin informed Russia that "it certainly is not my view" that the treaty was dead and Prime Minister Stalin concurred, but declared that before it could be extended for 30 more years, as the British have urged, it would have to be pruned of what he termed "weakening reservations."

75 Persons Homeless, 6 Firemen in Hospital After Toronto Fire

Toronto, Jan. 28 —(CP)—At least 75 persons are homeless, an 85-year-old woman was rescued by ladder and six firemen were taken to hospital following a three-alarm blaze that gutted a three-storey business and apartment block at Dundas Street and Heintzman Avenue early today. Fire Chief George Sinclair estimated damage at $200,000.

More than 120 firemen from all stations in northwest end of the city battled the fire for more than four hours before bringing it under control. It took another three hours to extinguish it.

Firemen credited the caretaker, Austin Kinnear, with rousing the tenants. They said the blaze started in the basement of the Bamboo Grill, a Chinese restaurant. When firemen arrived smoke and fumes had spread so quickly through the building that most tenants were forced to flee without possessions.

Aged Woman Rescued

At a second storey window Mrs. Mary McNellis, 85, a cloth over her face to cut the smoke waited for firemen. They ran a ladder to the window and carried her down. Firemen described the building as "a smudgepot" and emerged from it choking and coughing with their eyes streaming tears. Some were given inhalator treatment after being overcome and then taken to hospital. None was seriously affected.

Caretaker Kinnear, his four-year-old son, Bobby and a furnace serviceman were in the basement of the grill making repairs on the heating system. Bobby opened one of the fireproof doors leading to the basement.

"Suddenly there was a great ball of flame," said the caretaker. "If he hadn't opened that door it might have got such a start none of us could have got out. I grabbed my son and rushed him to the street. I gave him to a stranger and yelled something about a fire. I ran through the halls shouting 'Fire! Fire!' until a fireman told me they were all out."

One of the 12 firemen overcome was Deputy Chief Peter Herd. He was given artificial respiration.

Top Floors Burst Into Flames

Late last night the fire appeared under control and police cordons around the building were withdrawn. Then hot gasses pent up in the top floors burst into flames and the building blazed harder than ever.

Most of the tenants were given acommodation by neighbors. The building, formerly the Victoria Hotel, an old landmark in west Toronto, contained 23 apartments, some of them housing more than one family.

SEVERE WEATHER ADDS TO PROBLEM IN GT. BRITAIN

Fuel Shortage Unabated and Weather Conditions Worst in Long Time

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 28 (CP)—Her fuel shortage unabated, and with further "cuts" in electricity supplies expected, Britain today was confronted with the prospect of the present cold spell continuing "for several days" while many districts reported the worst weather conditions in 25 years.

Haulage contractors feared a widespread holdup of supplies to outlying areas if snow and ice barriers persist. Roads leading into the Yorkshire villages of Huggate, Fridaythorpe and Thixendale still were blocked by six-foot drifts and villagers spent Monday searching for wood to replenish dwindling fuel stocks.

Bredhurst in Kent has been isolated for 60 hours by five-foot drifts through which gangs of roadmen had not cut at nightfall Monday when work was stopped. A threatened famine was averted when deliverymen left their trucks to walk across relatively clear fields with supplies. One baker carried armsful of loaves two miles through shallow drifts.

Bridges Blocked

The Isle of Sheppey in the Thames estuary still was cut off except for a single track rail line. Trucks loaded with food and beer set out from the Kent mainland to relieve the hunger and thirst of the isle's 25,000 resident but were forced to turn back because of blocked bridges.

During the sixth consecutive day of frost in the United Kingdom Scotland again escaped lightly as further snows were reported in many areas south of the line from Humber to the Mersey.

Warmest place in Britain Monday was Skule on the Scottish Isle of Skerry where it was 43 degrees. The coldest—26 degrees—was registered in West Malling, Kent. South Wales had the coldest day in two years and the Isle of Guernsey in the English Channel was covered with snow for the first time since 1938.

Islanders Relieved

Three hundred residents of the island of Tory off the Donegal coast of Eire were relieved after being marooned for five weeks by Atlantic gales.

Prevailing winds—reaching 40 miles-an-hour—continued easterly over most of the British Isles.

TAX AGREEMENTS WILL ELIMINATE TROUBLE—ABBOTT

Finance Minister Tells Toronto Board of Trade Why Agreements Negotiated

Toronto, Jan. 28 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott told the annual meeting of the Toronto Board of Trade last night that the first concern of the Dominion government in attempting to negotiate tax agreements with the provinces was to eliminate the "hopeless confusion" that existed in tax relations before the war.

"While the pre-war situation was unsatisfactory in my opinion, the post-war position would, in the absence of new agreements, become equally unsatisfactory, and if times should get bad, might become worse," he said.

He pointed out that the tax agreement will be merely a temporary contract by which provinces agree not to impose certain taxes for a period of five years.

"Actually, such an agreement will strengthen the autonomy of all provinces. It will assure them more adequate and more stable revenues and thereby place them in a position to discharge their constitutional responsibilities more efficiently and more independently."

There was no reason why new taxation agreements, "with their many benefits and advantages to the provinces," should weaken provincial autonomy, he said. The concentration of wealth in a few provinces would make difficult and division of tax fields aimed at making it possible for the provinces and the Dominion to raise all their own revenues.

Proposals Outlined

Latest proposals submitted to provincial premiers by the Dominion government were outlined by Mr. Abbott. He said they would assure the provinces of $206,000,000 in annual revenue, $25,000,000 more than previously offered as payment for virtual exclusion of them from the tax field of personal income, corporation and inheritance.

So-called poorer provinces would have to fall back on the Dominion government for support if they did not subscribe to the tax proposals, he feared. Agreement with all provinces would mean the Dominion could proceed with constructive tax policies. The Dominion would know that once taxes were reduced they could not be increased by the provinces back to where they were before.

"From the point of view of the people of the provinces, a tax agreement means that there is only one tax to be paid, and one set of forms to be completed," he said.

SIX ARE KILLED AS BALING WIRE WRECKS TRAIN

All But Two Cars Of Fast Passenger Train Smashed or Left The Rails

Walton, Ind., Jan. 28 —(AP)— Indiana State Police, who blamed a bale of fencing wire for a train wreck last night which killed six people, opened an investigation today to learn how the wire got on the track.

All but two cars of the Pennsylvania Railroad's "Union," bound for Chicago from Cincinnati, were smashed or left the rails shortly after 7 p.m. last night, killing the six and injuring almost a score, one seriously.

State Police said the roll of wire was found jammed into a switch and that caused the wreck.

Several rolls of the wire were stored in piles along the railroad track at the scene of the wreck, they said, and "apparently one of these either fell or was placed on the track and we want to know which."

The roll of wire was about two feet across and weighed around 400 pounds.

The identified dead are: C. A. Wisler of Richmond, Ind., fireman, and passengers, Miss Kathryn Marie Kingery, 25, Kokomo, Ind.; Walter Pischke, Kokomo; and H. G. Perkinson, Anderson, Ind.

The body of another dead passenger had been removed from the wreckage but had not been identified.

Rescue workers said they could see the body of another passenger but early this morning had not been able to extricate it from the tangled steel.

The big locomotive was torn loose from the train and reversed its direction before coming to a stop.

The other cars careened wildly, s mmohfeeot some of them crashing into buildings alongside the track. The baggage coach was smashed almost flat by the impact with the locomotive tender.

Britain and Burma Reach Agreement On Independence

London, Jan. 28 —(AP)— The British government announced today it has reached an agreement with Burma that will permit the Asiatic dependency to attain independence.

Lord Pethick-Lawrence, secretary of state for India and Burma, said that an interim government similar to that established for India would administer affairs during the transitory period for the 262,000-square-mile region and its 17,000,000 inhabitants.

Burma lies just east of India. It was a battleground in the war against Japan.

Lord Pethick-Lawrence announced the accord in the House of Lords. He said a constituent assembly made up entirely of Burmese Nationals would be elected next April.

Britons Subjected to Regimentation Beyond Belief Says Canadian Editor

Windsor, Jan. 29—(CP) — The British government is subjecting the people of Great Britain to regimentation beyond belief, said Richard G. Lewis, editor and publisher of the "Canadian Broadcaster," in an address to the Windsor Kiwanis Club today.

"It is true that Great Britain has a Socialist government while Canada's is liberal," he said. "Nevertheless there is not such a great gap between liberal and socialist ideals and slowly but surely Canada is heading the same way. Already government ownership exists in the fields of banking, telephones, railroads, steamships, hydro, liquor, aviation, and of course radio."

Mr. Lewis also took the British government to task over their restrictions of the British press, accusing it of curtailing expression of opinion by governing the number of pages which any paper may publish.

"It is hardly necessary to say that much of that press opinion in Britain today would be directed against the government if it were permitted.

"With the support of the free-thinking public, press and radio, operating as honest outlets for opinions, can save us from the fate which has struck Britain. Against such truly free speech, socialism cannot possibly survive."

Claims T.H. Hogg Failed to Keep Govt. Advised

Ontario Premier Announces Decision in CBC Broadcast

Toronto, Jan. 28 — (CP)—The Ontario government has asked for the resignation of Dr. Thomas H. Hogg, 62-year-old chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, on the grounds that he failed on several occasions to communicate essential information to the government.

This was announced last night by Premier Drew in a speech broadcast over an Ontario network of the CBC but whether Dr. Hogg would reply to the premier's statement was not known today. The veteran of 34 years' service with hydro, the last 10 as chairman of the commission, said last night he had "no comment" after hearing the premier's speech.

Premier Drew said that Dr. Hogg's resignation was asked "because problems were being created continually as a result of the failure of the chairman to communicate essential information to the government."

Premier Drew said: "After all the earlier efforts to establish business-like methods the government had no possible choice but to come to the conclusion that a change in management of the Hydro-Electric Commission was an immediate necessity in the public interest."

Premier Drew spoke of two examples of Dr. Hogg's alleged failure to keep the government advised of matters which properly were matters for the government and the legislature.

The first was last September, when Premier Drew said he learned in the newspapers that the Hydro Commission was about to purchase the assets of the Ottawa Light, Heat and Power Company for more than $7,000,000.

On this occasion, Premier Drew said, "Dr. Hogg assured me that there was no deal with this company and that there was no justification for the statements which had appeared in the press." Dr. Hogg had explained there were nothing more than informal negotiations.

But Premier Drew then found that the Ottawa City council was asking the people of Ottawa to vote on whether they supported purchase by Hydro of Ottawa assets of the Ottawa Light, Heat and Power Company.

The Ottawa city council had the most exact details with valuations of the various assets which Hydro sought from the private company, "and those details and valuations had been given by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission," said Premier Drew.

This part of the premier's speech brought from P. D. Ross, chairman of the Ottawa Hydro Electric Commission, a statement that the Ottawa Commission believed Dr. Hogg had been acting in full accord with the Ontario government.

Mayor Stanley Lewis of Ottawa said that as far as Ottawa was concerned they were "acting in

Stabilization Of Prices and Feed Supply to Fore

By JACK AVESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Jan. 28—(CP)—The importance of price stabilization and the current feed supply shortage in Eastern Canada are likely to be major topics at the 11th annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture, which opened here today.

Secretary Colin G. Groff of Ottawa said last night that the eastern food shortage was causing particular concern at the present time and delegates were expected to spend considerable time discussing means of alleviating it.

Meanwhile, the Federation's Board of Directors continued its closed session this morning in preparation for the convention's afternoon opening, giving final perusal to the resolutions which will be submitted to the membership.

A brief concerning freight rates urged that the railways be required to produce evidence which would show that the requested 30 per cent increase was absolutely necessary if the railways were to continue functioning in the national interest.

So far, the brief said, reluctance had been displayed by the railways in fully explaining the reason for their demand and "the Canadian public has a right to know whether or not an increase is justifiable, and, if justifiable, what the increase should be and how it is to be territorially allocated."

Canada's part in the international agricultural picture will come up for discussion Friday, when Federation delegates to the International Federation of Agriculture Producer's Convention at The Hague, Holland, will be selected. Up to 10 delegates may be chosen.

Sir Andrew Jones, head of the British food mission at Ottawa, is scheduled to address a banquet session tonight.

Other speakers during the sessions, which will close Friday following a meeting of the Board of Directors, will include J. G. Taggart, chairman of the Agricultural Prices Support Board; L. W. Pearsall, manager of the Canadian Meat Board; and Dr. E. E. Archibald, director of the Dominion experimental farms system.

Claims Judgment Will Scrap Sugar Rationing System

Washington, Jan. 28 — (AP) — Federal district Judge F. Dickson Letts today ordered the Office of Price Administration to stop rationing sugar to industrial users in the United States under the "historical use" formula.

Carl Auerbach, chief O. P. A. counsel, said the ruling might threaten the entire sugar rationing program. He served immediate notice of appeal.

The ruling was handed down in a suit brought by the Moberly Milk Products Company of Moberly, Mo., which contended that the "historical use" formula — based on the amount of sugar used by a company in previous years—is illegal under the War Mobilization and Reconversion Act.

Auerbach, pleading for a stay of judgment, declared that the ruling "will require scrapping the system of rationing and the development of an entirely new system."

Wilmott McConnell of Picton was fined $25 plus costs on a speeding charge, and $5 plus costs on a charge of careless driving, $35 in all. McConnell was apprehended while driving at 60 miles per hour on North Front Street.

Former Airman Establishes Mink Farm in P.E.

For six and one-half years R. B. Byers, who resides "across the bay" flew in RCAF fighting aircraft overseas. Now he has settled down to the comparative quiet of a mink farm in Prince Edward County.

A wing commander during the war days. Byers now trudges among his furred gold daily, keeping a wary eye on expensive animals. Two shipments of brood animals represent an output of $2,000. Byers now has six males worth $100 each and 20 females worth $75 each.

The Byers mink farm is the third to be established in the county and along with the breeding and raising of mink he expects to dabble in the raising of Angora rabbits. He expects to sell the mink pelts at fur market sales.

The day the first shipment of mink arrived, one of the females escaped and killed six of the Byers' choice chickens. He chased the animal but it eluded him and has been at large ever since.

Miss D. Evans Feted by Friends

On Saturday afternoon, between the hours of four and six o'clock, Mrs. James Varley and Miss Ruth Gibbons were co-hostesses for a combined "tea" and "kitchen shower" at the home of Mrs. James Varley on Bleecker Ave., when seventeen friends from the Stewart-Warner-Alemite staff were entertained in honor of Miss Dorothy Evans, bride-elect.

The tea table, with its cover of damask linen, was delightfully arranged, with a tiny "bride-doll" as a centrepiece, and tall pink tapers in Wedgwood holders. Mrs. H. A. Evans, mother of the bride-to-be, presided over the silver service, while Mrs. Varley and Miss Gibbons served the guests.

Following the tea, Miss Evans was presented with a large basket, decorated in pure white, well-filled with numerous ribbon-tied packages, wrapped in white, each of which contained some article of kitchenware. Although this was a complete surprise, Miss Evans was able to graciously express her appreciation for the many useful gifts.

On Monday evening, at the home of Miss Jean Redfern, Ann Street, members of the bridge club to which Miss Evans has belonged met to honor her with a miscellaneous shower.

On this occasion the gifts were presented on a dinner wagon, under a prettily decorated parasol in a color scheme of pink and white. Miss Doig presented the gifts by giving a toast to the bride-elect. After opening the attractively wrapped packages Miss Evans thanked her friends for their many beautiful gifts and refreshments were served by the hostess.

Although entering the century span, her health is good, except for failing eyesight.

District Rotarians Hold Inter-Club Meeting at Batawa

Rotary archives of the district recorded another highly successful inter-club meeting on Monday night when five clubs of the immediate district joined in a banquet get-together at Batawa. Upwards of 210 Rotarians of the Belleville, Napanee, Trenton, Campbellford and Picton clubs were in attendance.

The guest speaker of the evening was the Rev. Bert Bingham member of the Toronto Rotary Club and General Secretary-Treasurer Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, who gave a highly interesting talk on "The River of Rotary."

The speakers likened Rotary to "rivulets coursing down mountain sides to join the great rivers which in turn poured in the great body of the sea. By this co-operation of the smallest club which functions like vein to its bigger brothers, like the small streams and large rivers can Rotary perform its international duties." he said.

He pointed out the duties of Rotarians and Rotary Clubs in the reconstruction of a war-torn world. International unity and amity can only come about by people and nations of the world working in close harmony for each and the other. "This is one of Rotary's great tasks."

Presidents Speak Briefly

Presidents of the five clubs represented at the meeting spoke briefly to the assembled clubmen. These included Presidents Clarence Saylor, Trenton who acted as chairman for the function with his club as host organization; President Bert Howard, Belleville; President Charles Waters, Napanee; President A.F. Brown, Picton and President Ed. Benore, Campbellford.

Special guests at the banquet were Air Vice Marshal A. H. H. Middleton group commanding officer, and Group Captains Rutledge, and Truscott commanding the Trenton Air Station and No. 6 R.D. respectively.

Fine Musical Program

Following the banquet served in the cafeteria of the Batawa Company the Rotarians retired to the spacious Community Hall where the meeting was held. Here they were entertained previous to the main address by Francis DeCaro, well-known Campbellford vocalist and John Deacon, popular tenor of the Belleville cub. Mr. Deacon also led the assembled clubmen in community singing with Rotarian Leo Riggs at the piano.

Upwards of fifty members of the Belleville club were present.

Collapsible Dagger Failed to Collapse, Wounds Opera Singer

Paris, Jan. 28 — (Reuters) —A collapsible dagger that failed to collapse put Jean Lagarde, a baritone in the hospital yesterday with 2 1/2 inches of cold steel in his stomach following Sunday's performance of the opera "Fishers of Pearls." The stabbing scene was in the third act of the opera, as Lagarde staggered groaning into the wings the audience enthusiastically applauded what they believed to be his realistic performance.

College Food Market Opens Doors; Modern Merchandising Featured

J. H. Bargman Establishes New Business in College Street Bridge Area

First incorporated grocery business to be established in the Belleville district, the College Food Market, Ltd., at the corner of College Street and Cannifton Road, will have it official opening today.

Of concrete block construction, the store has been incorporated with modern grocery sales facilities and will offer a complete line of groceries to the buying public. Manager of the new grocery business is Mr. J. H. Bargman who has had many years of grocery experience in the city.

With adequate parking facilities the College Food Market, Ltd., has been situated with an eye to attract the out-of-town customer, while an efficient delivery service has been set up to take care of urban deliveries.

Commodious Store.

The College Food Market, Ltd., is a far cry from the older type of grocery store where every type of commodity is held for sale on the one floor space. Featuring a commodious and well lighted store for the display of packaged articles, the store has special rooms for the storage of potatoes, fruits and meats, with plans calling for a "walk-in" refrigerator to take care of meats.

Another feature of the store and one welcomed by wholesale delivery personnel is the "all-weather" unloading facilities. A drive-in garage will permit unloading under cover during inclement weather, while there is also the conventional outside door opening into the commodious storage room.

In many ways the groceteria "self serve" idea has been incorporated into sales facilities of the store, but a staff of seven persons will be on duty to offer prompt and courteous service to the customer.

Labor Disputes Threaten Tie-up N.S. Industries

By JOHN TRACY

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Halifax, Jan. 28 (CP)—Labor disputes may tie up Nova Scotian industries with a total annual productive capacity of more than $60,000,000 by next weekend of Maritime miners call a threatened coal strike while a walkout of deep-sea fishermen continues into its second month.

Mining and fishing, pillars of the province's economic power, saw lean days before the war but now they are riding the post-war crest of high industrial activity and expanded markets.

With England to short of coal to export, Nova Scotia mining operators, producing more than 5,000,000 tons a year valued at upwards of $5,000,000, have found an almost unlimited market.

But, barring some unforeseen intervention, a wage dispute between the operators and United Mine Workers (C.C.L.) District 26 may close the mines Saturday with the termination of the company-union contract providing for basic daily wages of $5.84.

Fishing

The fishing companies also admit they have shared substantially in an expanded but temporary market for the estimated $25,000,000 worth of fish which their 30-odd deep-sea vessels can catch annually.

But with 500 Canadian Fishermen's Union (T.L.C.) members now on strike for a better division of the proceeds of catches, the companies have expressed fears of growing foreign competition.

A possible step towards settlement of the fishermen's strike has already been taken with Labor Minister L. D. Currie's announcement last night that he will call a company-union conference "early this week."

Company and C.F.U. representatives have not met since December when negotiations for a boost in the current 50-50 share ended and the strike was called.

Coal

Government intervention in the coal dispute so far has failed to bring a settlement closer. The U.M.W. and Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, largest employed of mine labor, placed their differences before the Federal Labor Department at Ottawa last week.

The union scaled its chief demand for a $2.50 raise down to $1.40 but Dosco claimed it could not pay without either increasing the price of coal or obtaining a federal subsidy.

Representatives of the Federal government, which has already heavily subsidized Dosco, refused to underwrite the cost of the increases.

The union, which brushed aside as "a mere incentive bonus a Dosco offer of $1 a day conditional upon increased coal production, then declined the federal offer of a conciliation board and the conferences ended.

Union executives complained that 13,000 Maritime miners had been refused wage demands which the Federal government and operators had granted western Canada coal miners last year.

White Collar Workers of U. K. Want Security

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 28. (CP)—If I were asked who was the man to be pitied most in Britain today I would say the white collar worker whose salary has changed little during the last decade despite soaring taxes and cost of living.

Before the war £500 ($2,000) a year entitled him to a home classed as comfortable by neighbors, ample food, certainly a radio and probably an automobile, good education for his children and annual holidays at the seashore.

Now he has had to cut out most of the trimmings and effect all manner of economies to keep up the front. It is true everyone in Britain is limited to a diet imposed by rationing, but the white collar worker has other traditions he feels must be kept up which are painfully expensive.

There is for example, education. The middle class almost always sends children to private schools which now are increasing their fees.

"It's all very well to say 'send your son to the local council school for nothing", said one harassed father. "But if I do that he emerges with a fearful accent which will handicap him in his professional career."

Want Security

"But if fees increase much more I won't be ble to meet them in spite of all the economizing I do. How will he like it if I have to send him to a council school later on."

Men like this may recognize the good points of the Socialist theory of spreading benefits thin so more people can get them, but it is still hard for them to throw in their hand and reverse the outlook of generations. They want security as much as the "poorer classes" but they have always been taught to achieve it independently rather than rely on the government.

It is probable that many of the white collar group voted for the Labor government in the 1945 general elections and still support the government. But they have no extensive capital to draw on to tide them through the period of flux until such times as the Socialist dreams of improved living for all come true.

Before the war a typical bank clerk at £70 to £80 ($280 to $320) salary a year might achieve £375 ($1,500) in 16 years. Today he starts at twice the basic amount and in the same 16-year period should get £500 ($2,000) yearly.

Servicemen coming back to their old banking jobs as a rule got an increase of 17 1-2 per cent but they still do not regard the raise as adequate. The National Union of Banking Employees recently asked for a further 7 1-2-per-cent increase, but there has been no reply from the British Bankers' Association. Urgently as they want it, there is no indication that they will force the issue to a point of threatening a strike.

HOUNDS KILL WOLF; CHASE ONE INTO WATER

Gore Bay, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Manitoulin Island's wolf population is almost daily growing smaller, thanks to the imported western coyote hounds—or should it not be wolfhounds — belonging to Art Bailey, island resident. In one raid on a wolfpack, believed to number six, the hounds killed one wolf and chased another into Lake Huron where it was dispatched with a rife by Art.

"And you should see my family tear into the day's activities on that good nourishment Grape-Nuts Flakes give them: carbohydrates for energy; proteins, for muscle; phosphorus for teeth and bones; iron for the blood; and other food essentials."

Accused Man Sent to Hospital For Observation

Chatham, Jan. 28. (CP)—Charged with assault causing bodily harm, Nelson Findlay, who is alleged to have injured Mr. and Mrs. Harry List with a hatchet on Saturday, was Monday committed to the Ontario Hospital for ten days' observation.

Findlay, who is alleged to have struck at Mrs. List during an argument over children, and to have struck Mr. List when the latter ran in answer to his wife's screams. He produced a list in court this morning which, he told Magistrate I. B. Craig, enumerated his enemeis.

After telling the court his enemies were "out to get" him, Findlay complained to the court, "they won't give me police protection in this town".

Crown Attorney A. D. Bell, K.C. suggested the mental examination before Findlay was required to plead to the charges.

King and Queen To Make Leisure Trip to Africa

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 28. (CP)—Eight years after their tour of Canada, when 11,000 miles were travelled in just over 30 days, the King and Queen leave London where they will travel 10,000 miles in twice the length of time.

The whole African journey will have an air of leisure impossible in 1939 when many of the King's advisers feared war could not be long avoided.

Natives will honor their supreme Chief—the Xosa will greet him at Umtata beneath the high Drakensberg range and the Basutos at Maseru in Basutoland. At the latter, multitudes of natives will gather in the shadow of the Maluti mountains, many mounted on ponies wearing large straw or fur hats. Native chiefs will receive commerative medals.

Leaving Portsmouth Feb. 1 in the latest British battleship, H.M.S. Vanguard, the Royal party will travel 17 days to Capetown, the legislative capital of South Africa, where 280 years ago a Dutch ship's doctor, Jan Van Riebeeck, built the first settlement.

Weeks late, 1,000 miles to the north and the furthest point of the tour, they will stand at Victoria Falls in Southern Rhodesia, "The smoke that thunders" in the native legends, 1 1-4 miles wide and greater than Niagara.

Four Viking aircraft of the King's flight will be used, the longest flight by the Royal party being from Pretoria, Trasvaal, to Salsibury Rhodesia, requiring about three hours.

Prime Minister Smuts, who led troops against the British in the Boer War, will lead the official government welcome. The King will visit the tomb of another African builder, Cecil Rhodes among the rocks of Matopo Hills in Southern Rhodesia, the rising state named in his honor.

The King will open parliament in Capetown, Feb. 21. In Capetown ceremonies the Queen will receive the degree of Doctor of Laws and Princess Elizabeth will attend several rallies of Girl Guides and Youth movements.

LOOSE CHANGE OBTAINED

Kitchener, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Thieves broke into the Waterloo county registry building here over the weekend and made off with loose change after an unsuccessful attempt to crack a wall safe.

Entry was gained through a window at the rear of the building. Personal papers of W. V. Hilborn and a small acount of cash kept in the office were the only items taken. Mr. Hilborn said only about $100 was in the safe as he had recently made a bank deposit.

The break-in was discovered by caretaker Charles Meyer.

Trenton

Slippery Roads Cause of Crashes

Trenton.— Slippery condition of the roads was the cause of a collision between two cars on Saturday which caused slight damage to both cars. Harry Desjardins of 207 Dufferin Avenue, was driving a LaFleur's taxicab south on King Street and was about to cross the intersection at Division and King Streets when a second car driven by W. H. Ireland, Marmora Street, was travelling on Division. Mr. Ireland was making a left turn on King Street when the accident occurred.

A transport owned by Coleman Transport Company of Oshawa, and driven by Elmer Corneal of that city, was involved in an accident with a car driven by Herbert E. Fuller of 23 James Street, Trenton, in the vicinity of the C.P.R. roundhouse. Both cars suffered considerable damage when the drivers applied brakes on slippery pavement causing a head-on collision.

William C. Weatherall, R.R. No. 1, Carrying Place, had his car slightly damaged when he collided with a taxicab driven by Robert J. Groves, 8 Bay Street, Trenton.

E. Guay, Belleville Road, reported to police that he was driving on No. 2 Highway, just east of Trenton town limits when he was forced into the ditch by the glaring headlights of an oncoming car. His car rolled over on its side on the north side of the highway but Guay and three passengers escaped injury.

"Nazi Paradise" Discovered In Internment Camp

Regensburg, Germany, Jan. 28 (AP) — Flourishing behind the barbed wire of the Regensburg interment camp, a fantastic "Nazi paradise" was disclosed Saturday by a Bavarian Government investigation.

State Commissioner Joseph Eder reported these abuses:

A former SS major-general acted as advisor to the camp denazification court. German newspapermen attending court hearing, were "grossly insulted" by internees.

A former SS division commander became camp labor supervisor.

Police guards, living in poverty on an average salary of 90 marks ($9) monthly, were easy prey to bribery.

Wealthy internees carried on regular black market operations, hauling in truckloads of illicit supplies from outside the camp.

Eder said former Nazi bigwigs, buying their way into influential camp positions, "systemically sabotaged the efforts of German supervisors."

Pending completion of the inquiry, the camp director has been relieved of duty.

Trenton-Built Tug Makes Long Trip to Rio

Montreal, Jan. 28 — A Canadian war surplus tug purchased from War Assets Corporation by the Brazilian Ministry of War last October, recently arrived in Rio de Janiero harbor where it was received with much ceremony and rechristened the "General Scarcela". It travelled under its own power from Trenton, Ont., to Rio de Janiero, more than 8,000 miles, in 43 days.

In addition to Brazilian church and state dignitaries, a number of Canadian officials attended the christening including His Excellency, Jean Desy, Ambassador for Canada, Mr. Maurice Belanger, Commercial Secretary for Canada, and Mr. Arlindo Melo, representative of the C. C. Pratt Co. of Canada Ltd.

This tug belonged to the Tanac V class, a Canadian design of which a large number were built in Canadian shipyards. They are particularly sturdy and suitable for use both in coastal and inland waters.

The "General Scarcela", formerly Tanac V No. 224, was built by the Central Bridge Company Ltd., Trenton, Ont., and sailed from there to Rio de Janiero under her own power, during the winter season, illustrating the qualities of the vessel. It is 64 feet long, with a 240 H.P. diesel engine giving a speed of 10 to 12 miles an hour.

HALF-STARVED DOG WON'T BE COAXED

Brockville, Jan. 28 — (CP)—A half-starved dog marooned on Royal Island, just west of Brockville Narrows, wasn't hungry enough to pin his faith on the freshwater seamanship of Brockville's E. C. Cossitt and D. S. Sherman.

Though the two men risked their lives in a weekend attempt to reach the island, alternately rowing between or pushing their punt over broken ice, they could not coax the mongrel off the island.

Redistribution Committee Will Have Hot Debates

Ottawa, Jan. 28 — (CP) — The number of parliamentary committees to be established during the session opening Thursday has not been disclosed, but the rank and file of House members believe some of the hottest debates may be centred in the committee that will be charged with the redistribution of seats in the Commons.

As a result of action taken at the last session the government has the authority to increase from 245 to 295 the membership in the Commons. The changes necessarily will affect the constituencies of a good many members on all sides of the Commons and some members have not taken kindly to the suggested changes.

A special committee will be established to re-define the boundaries of the constituencies and in that committee members will express their views freely. If they fail to get a hearing in committee they will be able to express their views when the legislation moves to the floor of the Commons.

Re-Establish Committees

There likely will be re-established the veterans affairs committee, the committee on radio broadcasting and the external affairs committee.

Some members expected that a new flag committee will be set up to make a new recommendation on a Canadian flag.

A committee last year recommended that Canada's flag be a slightly revised of the Canadian ensign. As a result of widespread objections from Quebec members the report of the committee was never submitted to the Commons for approval and nothing has since been done about the flag.

Many Quebec members have been plumping for a flag that would not contain the Union Jack

Review Annual Report

The radio committee reviews the annual report of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and its meetings are frequently marked by heated debate. The railway committee reviews the annual reports of the Canadian National Railways and Trans Canada Air Lines.

The industrial relations and international affairs committee met last year in an attempt to find a solution to the steel strike then in progress. It failed to find the solution and it is not yet known whether it will be called again this year.

Some members believe that as a result of an experiment last year several committees will be asked to study the estimated expenditures for various departments to reduce the time taken by such study in the Commons.

Britain's Position in Antarctica

The Antarctic Continent was first discovered by Edward Bransfield of the Royal Navy on January 20th., 1820, when he sighted Trinity Peninsula in Graham Land. The only Antarctic area for which the U.K. government is responsible is the Falkland Islands Dependencies, embracing South Georgia, South Sandwich Islands, South Orkney Islands, South Shetland Islands and Graham Land.

Britain's claim to the Falklands rests on firstly, latters patent of July 21st., 1908, and March 28th., 1917, and secondly, the continued administration of the dependencies to the extent necessary in view of their character.

In international law there are broadly three different types of claims to sovereignty over new territory, firstly, a claim by virtue of discovery, secondly, commencement of occupation, thirdly, the complete acquisition by occupation, that is establishment of necessary administration for the territory as suited to local conditions. Settlement in the sense of establishment of a resident population is not legally necessary. The essential criterion is that control should be sufficiently effective.

Britain's claim to the Falkland Islands Dependencies is based on completed acquisition by occupation.

Likewise New Zealand's claim to sovereignty over the Ross Dependency, that of Australia in the area extending from Victoria Land to Enderby Land, that of Norway for Queen Maud Land and of France for Adelie Land are considered by the U.K. government as well-founded. The United States of America Government officially neither makes nor recognizes claims to annexation. Chili and Argentina have each put forward claims in the South Polar area, southward of the South American Continent. Fresh action was recently reported. In as much as these claims conflict with those already published in the letters patent by the U. K. government they are not recognized by Britain.

The British scientific and survey work in the Falklands, interrupted by the war, was resumed in the southern summer 1934-44, when two ships were sent out. Fully equipped bases were at Port Lockroy in the Palmer Archipelago and at Deception Island in the South Shetlands. Three British ships with a second expedition established a new base at Hope Bay in N. Graham Land. A third expedition with three ships established a base on Laurie Island in the South Orkneys and at Neny Fjord on the island in Marguerite Bay off S. W. Graham Land. The organization came under the control of the Colonial Office.

The five U. K. bases are reprovisioned year by year. Meteorological stations are maintained at each base and an investigation is being carried out into the possibilities of weather forecasting in the S. Atlantic with especial reference to the development and movement of Antarctic depressions. Geological, biological and physical research is being carried on as the opportunity offers.

A few weeks ago a fourth British expedition set out to reprovision the five bases and extend research.

No report of the presence of radio-active minerals like uranium in the Antarctica Continent has been received to justify the recent speculations in the press.

Britain has played a leading role in the history of Antarctica Continent. Exploration like uranium to justify the recent speculations in the press. Of 168 exploratory expeditions down to 1943 some 75 were from the United Kingdom. Of 22 major scientific expeditions which have wintered in the Antarctica half were from the United Kingdom. No other country has sent more than two or three such expeditions.

London Times says "Britain has nothing to fear from an impartial review of her own claims on their merits since they are well supported by her record of discovery, settlement and administration."

New Phase in Education

An educational experiment applied to Britain's fighting services during the war, which proved highly popular and successful, has resulted in an important new development in methods of education in Britain's schools. It is the introduction of current affairs as a regular subject into the educational syllabus. This change is a direct outcome of topical discussions and informed guidance which were arranged by the War Cabinet to ensure that every fighting man should have adequate opportunity to acquire a basic knowledge of world affairs. "Current Affairs" is now a well established item on all school schedules.

Youngest Language

Afrikaans, which the two Princesses are learning in preparation for the coming royal tour, is the Empire's youngest language, says the Manchester Guardian.

South Africa has two official languages, constitutionally on a basis of equality — English and Afrikaans. Until fairly recent years Afrikaans was regarded by many Englishmen as a language specially devised by politicians for the pastime of "twisting the Lion's tail." Actually it is a language which has grown naturally for over two centuries out of the parent language of The Netherlands.

It has been written, consciously, for two generations, and is now for the Afrikaners, who are the majority of the white inhabitants of South Africa, the general medium not only of colloquial speech but also of the politest and most scientific discussion.

Easy Weed-Killing

Science now promises to take the toil out of weed eradication. It has come up with a spray that will kill the noxious growths but will not harm vegetables. It sounds like Utopia for gardeners.

It is well to note, however, that the announcement is made with some reservations. The new spray must be used carefully according to directions. Like many of the remedies developed for human ills, careless handling can lead to disaster. All the great discoveries of science will not bring us to an age in which we are relieved of the responsibility for using our God-given intelligence. Thought will always be necessary, and for that we should be thankful.

Sleep

Albert Edmelare Herpin of Trenton, N.J., is dead and thus comes to an end 95 years spent unsuccessfully trying to get to sleep. Herpin was a gardener who lived alone in a shack which contained no bed — he had no use for one as he got his rest reading in a rocking chair.

"The sleepless wonder," as the old fellow was called round about Trenton, also was proud of the fact that he had never lost a tooth. This and other aspects of remarkable health he attributed to abstinence from meat and alcohol, but he had no explanation for inability ever to drop off to sleep.

Never in his whole life had he known the delights of a visit with the god of dreams, he said. Three days before the end police took him to a hospital and it is reported that Morpheus eluded him even there until death called.

BALLAD OF A CARELESS MAN

Day by day throughout the year
Searching round the place I go;
No one ever seems to know,
When the rooms they start to clear,
Where they stuff my bits of gear,
Where my favorite neckties go.
In this world of weal and woe,
Why must man's things disappear?

Studs I left last night right here,
I must search for, high and low.
Where, oh where, do women stow
Pen and ink which should be near?
"Underneath your nose," they sneer,
"Where you left them days ago."
Mysteries of mysteries, oh!
Why must man's things disappear?

I'm not one to interfere
With some woman's furbelow.
Meddlesome I never grow.
Rings for finger or the ear
I don't rush to hide for fear
They'll be seen by Jane or Flo.
Why must this be always so:
Why must man's things disappear?

Refrain

Lovely woman, eyes aglow,
I am waiting now to hear
Why this preference you show.
Why must man's things disappear?

Torso Slaying Trials Postponed Till March Assizes

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Jan. 28—(CP)—For Mrs. Evelyn Dick, for her father, Donald MacLean and for the man she once loved, William Bohozuk, the routine today was what they had known in jail since late last March when they were arrested for the torso killing of Mrs. Dick's husband John.

They waited in the cells of Barton Street jail for the Crown—which charges them with slaying John Dick last March 6 and later dismembering him and dumping his torso on the mountain — to take its case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Permission to delay the murder trial of the three — for Mrs. Dick it was her second trial, since the Ontario Court of Appeal set aside her conviction and sentence this month — and seek the view of the Supreme Court of Canada regarding admissibility as evidence of Mrs. Dick's statements to police was granted yesterday by Mr. Justice Keiller Mackay.

The Crown, gaining the delay over the protests of defence counsel, promised the postponement "to a later date" would be short, that the motion for leave to appeal to the higher court in the land would be made quickly and, if granted, it appeared Supreme Court proceedings could be dispensed with in time to proceed with the trial in March.

"I am of the opinion the motion should not be denied", said his lordship with reference to the Crown request.

Year Awaiting Trial

Counsel for the two men had maintained that their clients already had been in jail nearly a year awaiting trial and that there should be either immediate proceedings against them or they should be discharged for want of evidence.

"If there is evidence against them let us get on with it and see what it is," said Walter Tuchtie, counsel for the 68-year-old MacLean.

When court opened the policemen who would be Crown witnesses should the trial go on were on hand and Mrs. Dick, wearing a grey squirrel coat and showing that she had fattened obviously during her confinement in solitary was the last of the accused to enter the courtroom.

The postponement had been generally expected and this, together with the expectation that she herself would not appear in court, kept the crowd of curious people to small proportions and made special police arrangements hardly necessary.

"Oh, I'm doing fine," said Mrs. Dick as she left the courthouse late in the afternoon and waved to somebody in the courthouse corridor.

Then she was outside, a small, round woman, holding her coat around her. She kept a fixed sort of smile on her face as she looked down and avoided puddles on the walk while the few women in the crowd shouted "Boo," "Boo," but there seemed no great animosity in their voices. Rather it appeared more that they booed her jokingly, as though they felt they were expected to do so.

Chaplin's Newest Released in March

Hollywood, Jan. 28 (AP) — Memo to Charlie Chaplin fans:—"Monsieur Verdoux" written produced, directed by and starring Chaplin, is being made ready for release in March.

The first Chaplin picture since "The Great Dictator" (1940) was completed last week and the white-haired comedian at last felt free to talk about "the mystery picture."

He unreservedly called it his greatest film — "the only one I can bring myself to sit through over and over again."

"Monsieur Verdoux" is based on the story of Landru, the French Bluebeard, with Charlie wholly forsaking the timeworn derby, cane and brogans for the dapper garb of a middle-aged lady killer, literally.

In fact, Chaplin said he wanted to title the picture "Lady Killer," but was turned down by the Johnston office.

CLAIMS T. H. HOGG

good faith," and Mayor Lewis said he felt Premier Drew should issue a further statement confirming that the corporation and council of Ottawa acted properly in dealing with the matter of purchase of the Ottawa Light, Heat and Power Company's assets.

"I think, in fairness, he owes that to us," said Mayor Lewis. "We were given a definite proposition. It was discussed by council and it is well known that it was given a great deal of publicity for weeks in the Ottawa papers."

Learned of Power Shortage

The second instance mentioned by Premier Drew arose Dec. 3 last when the government, with the public, learned through statements in the press by Hydro spokesmen that an emergency power crisis had arisen. The suggestion was conveyed to the press that the government would be asked to exercise emergency authority under the Power Control Act passed in September 1939 as a war measure.

"Now that did not just happen overnight," said Premier Drew. "If the management of the Hydro Electric System is properly organized Dr. Hogg must have had warnings of this situation at least as early as October.

"If there was any possibility that the government was going to be called upon to adopt emergency provisions, then it was essential that opportunities be given to set up the necessary machinery to make the control effective throughout the whole province."

Then on Dec. 19 the government was informed by the commission that requests for voluntary conservation of power had failed to produce the desired results "and it seemed the only possible course would be to bring into effect emergency powers which would ration the use of electric energy throughout the province."

But the Commission did not formally pass on these regulations, which was an essential requirement before the government could act.

Several Press Reports

On Jan. 2 and 3, Premier Drew continued, he read several press reports of statements by hydro officials referring to the emergency and indicating early action. He said incidentally he regretted it would be necessary "for me to refer to a number of details which need not otherwise have been discussed publicly were it not for some press reports of the past few days, and particularly the completely dishonest reports which have been given such prominence in the Toronto Daily Star."

Anyway, he wrote Dr. Hogg on Jan. 3 asking whether any plans had been made for new sources of energy — such as steam plants, energy from Quebec or the United States. It was essential that the government have this information before dealing with such recommendations as the commission might decide to make.

Went on Vacation

"It turned out," said Premier Drew, "that Dr. Hogg, who had gone away before Christmas, was still on his holidays, but a copy of the letter which had been forwarded to the secretary was placed before the commission Jan. 6.

"As a result of the inquiries prompted by the questions in my letter, the other members of the commission learned for the first time on Jan. 6 that on Dec. 18, which was the day before the letter on Dec. 19 had been written on Dr. Hogg's instructions, he had met the directors of a subsidiary of the Niagara Hudson Power Company and had received an offer from them that they would turn over to the Hydro-Electric Power Commission at different points of delivery something in the neighborhood of 100,000 horsepower.

"Naturally the members of the commission who were in Toronto Jan. 6 took immediate steps to avail themselves of this generous offer and the first delivery began right away."

Premier Drew said that apart from long-term requirements "there is an immediate power shortage for which adequate plans have not been made. Every effort will be pressed to meet this situation as quickly as possible." But he thought emergency restrictions would not be needed this winter and he hoped plans would be devised to meet increased demands next winter.

Promised Early Decision

He also promised efforts for early decision on frequency change-over, generation of steam-power and development of new power sites, as well as speeding up rural electrification. He said: "I wish to remove any idea that there is the slightest truth in the statement that we are planning to make the hydro-electric system a department of the government."

Dr. Hogg joined hydro in 1913 as assistant hydraulic engineer, became chief engineer in 1927 and chairman of the commission in 1937, when he said his main aim was development of Ontario water for conversion into power for sale at cost.

Dr. Hogg is the first engineer to occupy the post of chairman of the commission. Previous commissioners were Sir Adam Beck, the founder of Ontario hydro; C. A. Magrath, Hon. Robert Cooke and T. Stewart Lyon.

Dr. Hogg was born at Chippewa, practically on the site of the great Queenston hydro development. He is married and has three children.

THE PUZZLE OF PETIT MAL

Today we'll talk about petit mal (pronounced not as you would naturally suppose (petty) but peTEE, because it is French), is a form of epilepsy characterized by mere lapses of consciousness lasting only a second or two, in which the individual drops anything in his or her hand at the time and perhaps falls, though generally there is only momentary limpness. All that may be apparent to an observer is the fixed eyes, slight paleness and sudden cessation of whatever the individual is doing. Some petit mal patients feel a vague wavering sensation difficult to describe, and some feel giddy or faint just before they go bye-bye.

Petit mal is distinguished from the more familiar form of epilepsy characterized by convulsions with or without loss of consciousness; this major epilepsy is called grand mal.

I hope readers will remember I know less about epilepsy than almost any real doctor you may choose to ask about it. I do know that the cause of epilepsy remains an enigma to the medical profession. So does smallpox (no one has found the cause of smallpox), yet physicians know how to prevent it and treat it. So this personal health service is not prepared to give informations or answer questions about epilepsy. Here is the address of a good source of information (not advice about treatment) concerning epilepsy problems:

American Epilepsy League, Inc.,
50 State Street
Boton, 9, Mass.

Now keep clearly in mind what I just said about my own ignorance and inability to advise about the treatment of epilepsy, while you read this report, from the mother of a boy who has epilepsy:

"When he was fourteen he had about thirty attacks a day, and fell with each attack. The addition of calcium to his diet reduced the attacks to about ten a day and stopped the falls completely in one week's time. I know how fantastic this sounds, but it is all true. He is eighteen years old now and has never had another fall since he began booping his calcium and vitamin D intake (as you suggested). The attacks now are so light you would not notice them unless you know about them. Nothing we have ever done helped so much as this, although we have had at least a dozen doctors and none of them ever said anything about calcium. . . ."

Who knows?—certainly not the conductor of this column—whether this improvement in the boy's condition was coincidental, due to the treatment his doctor prescribed or perhaps in part due to the daily ration of calcium and vitamin D? All I know is that—

(1) Most Americans, young and old, get insufficient calcium in their daily diet.

(2) The amount of calcium and vitamin D the boy takes as a supplement to his daily diet is within the daily requirements for good nutrition.

(4) It can't possibly do any child or adult any harm to take calcium and D in such amounts daily throughout the year.

(4) One of the physiological functions of calcium in the body is to regulate excitability of nerve centres control what doctors call neuromascular irritability.

Once more, believe me, folks, I know little about epilepsy and it will be a waste of your time writing to me about an individual case.

Moreover, if I had any form of epilepsy—and for all I know maybe I have a touch of petit mal—I'd supplement my regular diet with a daily ration of calcium and vitamin D as described, regardless of what treatments I might receive—that is, I would do so unless my physician considered it inadvisable.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Who invented the seaman's compass?

Nobody knows who invented the seaman's or mariner's compass. It was a product of the necessities of navigation and its early history is obscure.

That the invention of an instrument as important to commerce and civilization should be claimed by many peoples is only natural. Volumes have been written to prove the claim of one nation or another to the invention of the device that made the open seas highways of commerce. Different writers have ascribed it to the Chinese, Hindus, Persians, Arabs, Greeks, Romans, Etruscans, Finns and Italians.

It is possible that the compass, in its crudest form, developed independently in different parts of the world. Chinese writers say there is a legend that their people employed compasses as early as 2364 B.C. There is some evidence that Chinese mariners used some sort of direction-finding devices between 300 and 800 A.D., and it is believed that the Hindus, Persians and Arabs also had compasses at a very early date.

The magnetic properties of magnetite or lodestone were observed in ancient times and the earliest compasses consisted of a magnetized needle attached to a splinter of wood floating in water. Once mariners learned that one end of the needle would invariably point in the direction of the polestar, the ultimate development of the compass was assured. Such knowledge would gradually find its way to all seafaring peoples.

One theory is that the floating compass was developed in China or India and was carried from there through Persia to the ports of Arabia and the Levant, where it readily found its way into Europe. What appears to have been the floating compass is referred to date from the third century to in a Latin manuscript supposed A.D. A reference in "Tresor," a poem written by a Florentine named Brunetto Letini about 248 indicates that the floating compass was in common use on European ships in the 13th century.

The early history of the pivot-needle compass, consisting of a magnetized needle turning on a pivot instead of being attached to a float, is likewise shrouded in mystery. This type of compass is mentioned as early as the 12th and 13th centuries. Although these earlier references seem to dispose of the story that the pivot needle compass was invented in 1302 by an Italian named Flavio Gioia, who was probably a fictitious character created as the result of an error, the Italians were early improvers of the compass if they did not actually invent it, and in the 14th and 15th centuries Venice, Genoa and other Italian cities were manufacturing these instruments for sale.

Little credence can be given to the story that the compass was introduced into Europe from China by Marco Polo, because the Chinese were still using the floating needle compass after the Italians had developed the pivot-needle instrument to a considerable degree of perfection. The facts given above also seem to dispose of the legend that the compass was either invented or introduced into Europe by the English monk and philosopher Roger Bacon (1214-1294). The note books of Leonardo da Vinci (1452-1519) show that he designed a compass.

Assembly this morning was one of pleasant surprises. Perhaps the most delightful of these was Don sincere Charlton's rendition of the beautiful piece "Because" on his cornet. The applause was deafening, and the students allowed Don to leave the stage only after encoring with "The Bells of Saint Mary's".

The band was in good "voice" this morning, and the students listened attentively to "The Voice of the Guard".

Ah yes, the ice is here again, and that brings hockey, which of course takes us to the arena where the house league games are being played.

The opening game to start the season off in the house league series was between the Ragged Six and the Alley Cats. The ice was soft but the Ragged Six outscored the Alley Cats by one goal. Rivet from Zorin, and Baldwin from Rivet gave the Ragged Six their two goals, while Lockyer scored the single goal, unassisted for the Alley Cats.

The Albert Junior hockey team, surrounded by the tattle tale grey boards of the arena and the B.C.I. juniors were badly beaten last Tuesday.

Don Dolan almost had a shutout in his first junior game except for a tough shot which he did the splits on but just couldn't grasp it.

John Green, from Point Anne was the centre of the first line up and star of the game. He scored four of the eight goals scored, and only one was assisted.

Dave Lockyer, Doug Soaft, Bud Keyes and Tom Buchanan from Keyes and Rivet.

The first line-up was as follows: Goal: Dolan; defence: Croll and Bunley; centre, Green; wings, Lockyer and Buchanan. Alternates: Soaft, Massey, Whalen, McCormick, Rivet.

For Albert: Goal, Cohen; defence, Scudds, Yates; Centre, Derbyshire; Wings, Taugher and McRae.

There should have been a better crowd to see these games than showed up last Tuesday so raise your fifteen cents and you may get to see one.

CUFF NOTES

Well reader, here is another price quotation. The cost of hot dogs formerly, was ten cents. A ten per cent increase was permitted by the W.P.T.B. last week. All the arithmetic I ever learned states that ten per cent of ten cents is one cent. You guessed it—the new "dogs" cost fifteen cents. Maybe arithmetic was taught differently when the members of the prices board went to school?

What has happened to free skating at the Arena since the city took it over? For the past few years anyone could skate free of charge, twice a week. Now the old practice has been discontinued and it is lamentable. The neighborhood rinks, blithely endorsed by numerous citizens around election time, are forgotten, judging by their terrible condition.

Have you made arrangements to go? Everyone will be there. Refreshments too. Dancing from nine to one with music by the Commodores. Of course, it is the Graduation Formal—the biggest social event of the year, to be held, Friday, February 7. If there are a few dates still unclaimed make sure of yours today. You may get your invitations from Pat Shiels in room 111.

The following story was received with mixed emotions by some of the thirteenth graders last week:

A Chinese merchant, named Wun Lung Gon, conducted his business in person, and relied entirely on visual appraisal of a customer as a means of determining his honesty. Fearing that the loss of his eyesight might mean financial ruin, he decided to use his left eye only—bandaging the right one so that when sight failed in the left optic, he could whip off the bandage and use the right eye which he had preserved so carefully. When Wun Lung was fifty-five his left eye became blind. He unbandaged the right one, and sure enough it was as good as new. The trouble was he did not recognize anyone.

Veteran Jilted By Future Bride

Yadkinville, N. C., Jan. 28—(AP)—A broken-hearted ex-serviceman from Nebraska told last night how he had paid $250 for his future bride's passage from London to the United States only to have the pretty 17-year-old brunette jilt him for another veteran the day after she arrived.

It was a sad story for Arnold Buesing who had a wedding ring with him when he met his bride-to-be, Eileen Edwards of London when her ship docked in New York Thursday.

The couple came to the home of Buesing's sister here for the wedding. Three hours after they arrived, Buesing said, the young girl went for a walk alone.

When she failed to return, Buesing began a search and found her in Superior, a nearby town at the home of Theodore Spear, another ex-serviceman, she had met after Buesing's departure.

Buesing said he gave her the luggage she had left behind and told her goodbye.

Bill Introduced To Outlaw Waver Clause in Contracts

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 28—(AP)—Charges of "peonage and slave labor" confronted professional baseball owners today after a bill was introduced in the Pennsylvania Senate to outlaw the waiver clause in all player contracts.

State Senator H. Jerome Jaspan said his bill, introduced yesterday, would permit players to become free agents automatically on termination of their present contracts.

The Philadelphia Democrat declared the measure, affecting only players with major or minor league clubs operating in Pennsylvania, would prevent the sale, exchange or transfer of any man without his consent and knowledge.

Detroit's sale of Hank Greenberg to the Pittsburgh Pirates was cited by Jaspan as "a striking case" where a player was waived out of a league and "sold for a fabulous sum without his consent and knowledge."

The present waiver rule permits a major league ball club to sell a player out of the loop if all teams in the same league pass up the waiver.

RETAIN TITLE

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 28—(AP)—John Bromwich and Adrian Quist retained their Australian tennis doubles title with an easy 6-1, 6-3, 6-1 victory over Georg Worthington and Frank Sedgman, two of Australia's most promising youngsters in tennis.

Worthington and Sedgman, 18 and 19 respectively, were just not good enough to give the champions a real test, and the match was over in 45 minutes. Quist looked near his top doubles form, putting away many winners with clean volley smashes.

House of Commons Like Big Hotel Getting Ready for Gala Opening

With the opening of Parliament scheduled for January 30, the House of Commons these days is for all the world like a big hotel preparing for a gala occasion.

Extra employees are being recruited, uniforms fitted, rooms cleaned and refurbished, kitchens stocked and the Turkish baths turned on—so that whatever headaches the 1947 session brings, the material needs of our country's lawmakers will be ministered to.

Battle Over Rooms

The biggest job at the moment is assigning new rooms to the 245 members, says an Ottawa Journal writer. The difficulty is that there never have been as many rooms as members, and nobody likes to double up.

This is the time of year that the representative who is a teetotaler and his roomate who likes his little drink and the stray game of poker seek to be separated. Then the Sergeant-at-Arms will make another try at doubling two more gentlemen who come from the same province.

The coveted single rooms are awarded on the basis of seniority and position in the party. A busy Cabinet Minister with an important portfolio even gets a suite. Single rooms are doled out to parties according to his strength in the House. Members watch by-elections like hawks, because they mean the change in allegiance of another single room.

Feeding The Multitude

Feeding the multitude comes after sheltering them. An average of 400 meals a day was served last year in the parliamentary restaurant, and an average of 200 a day in the cafeteria.

While commercial restaurants have upped their prices, the parliamentary restaurant and cafeteria will continue to charge the same as they have for years. A fine full-course dinner or luncheon may still be had in the restaurant for 60 cents, and in the cafeteria for 35 cents.

Although the cafeteria was originally meant for employees, penny-wise MP's discovered that they could get just as a good a meal there, and larger helpings too.

The second barber is returning to the barber shop and the shoeshine boy will have his stand set up. For harried members who haven't time for exercise the steam will be coursing through the Turkish bath and a masseur will be on the job to see that they relax.

It takes a full-time staff of 200 plus a sessional staff of 150, to run the House of Commons. In addition the Senate has a peak sessional staff of 150 to keep its wheels oiled. These employees include protective staff, messengers, pages, stenographic pool, restaurant employees, char staff, upholsterers, electricians carpenters, and a tailor whose job it is to keep everyone measured for uniforms.

And his biggest job right now is fitting fast-growing pages to dress coats.

Mobile Telephone Service Coming Says D. Switzer

Mobile telephone service which will enable a person in a moving car to converse with his home or office as he could from a standard telephone was described to members of the Belleville Kinsmen Club Monday evening by D. S. Switzer, customer relations assistant with the Bell Telephone Company of Canada.

According to Mr. Switzer, mobile telephone in the future will be valuable in contacting cruising police cars and expediting their aid to persons involved in situations requiring urgent attention. It may also be used by firms who operate fleets of trucks on public highways, by fuel distributors, public utility firms, and newspapers.

Discussing other phases of the telephone industry during the lecture demonstrations, Mr. Switzer recalled that in March of this year the centenary of the birth in Scotland of Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone, will be celebrated. He related that before Bell was born there were several types of acoustical devices, but their range was limited to two miles.

When Bell was working on harmonic telegraphs he saw the possibility of an electric telephone, but at the beginning this was of simple construction, both receiver and transmitter being connected by a single wire. This type of telephone, practical for one-way communication, was used on a large scale during the First World War.

Traced Development.

Mr. Switzer traced the development of the telephone from the early days to the present, and reviewed the many devices which protected telephone installations against fire and lightning hazards.

He declared that today the telephone company is taxed to capacity in maintaining its service in certain areas, where new exchanges must be built to satisfy demands. Despite the shortage of materials and other obstacles that have hampered the speedy expansion, he predicted that in the not too far distant future pre-war efficiency would not only be fully restored but at the same time a new high standard of service would be reached.

Demonstrates Waves.

Speaking of the 20th century anniversary of the talking pictures, celebrated last year, Mr. Switzer pointed out that the recording of sound on film was contrived through research in Bell laboratories. An interesting demonstration of micro-waves, employed in radar and radio-telephony was given, as well as a number of other practical demonstrations illustrating points in the lecture.

Bell Telephone officials from Belleville and Kingston were guests at the dinner meeting with the guest speaker being introduced by Kin Bill Ashline, local employee of the company. Club appreciation was expressed by Kin Bill Bell.

President Art Cruji was in the chair, while Harold Woodley acted as song leader and Eddie Schrieder as sergeant-at-arms.

Parish of Stirling, Frankford, Holds Vestry Meetings

The annual vestry meetings of the parish of Stirling and Frankford were held on Jan. 20th., at Frankford and at Stirling on Jan. 21st., respectively The rector the Rev. Cyril C. Brazill presided at each meeting. Reports were presented by the secretaries of the various organizations within the church and all obligations were met in full. The average attendance at Sunday worship during the year was 117. Services were held every Sunday and on week days during Lent. The Holy Communion both on Sundays and Saints Days were well attended. The Sunday Schools are well attended and it was noticed that at Frankford the Sunday School continues all the year including July and August. The Lord Bishop, the Rt. Rev. J. Lyons visited the parish twice during the year; in July at St. John's to dedicate a Hammond electric organ presented by Mr. Earl Morrow, and two candlesticks presented by Mrs. Alger. These gifts were in memory of the late Howard Morrow and the late Colonel H. H. Alger, M.D. His Lordship again visited the parish in October for Confirmation at Holy Trinity Church when ten candidates were presented by the rector, and the Union Jack and Canadian Ensign, the gift of Mr. Earl Morrow were dedicated in memory of the late Howard Morrow. The vestry clerks of each church were asked to forward a letter to the gracious donors for their very useful and beautiful gifts and to express the thanks and appreciation of the congregations. The rector in his report again expressed the hope that all church people's Warden, Glen Morrow; Revices of the church regularly.

The reports on the Advance Appeal showed that well over $2,000 had been received since May 29th by the churches and forwarded to Synod office.

The election then followed and resulted as follows: Stirling, People's Warden, Glen Morrow; Rector's Warden, Lorne Ash; Treasurer, A. H. Collings; Vestry Clerk, Fred Houchin.

Delegates to Synod, Messrs. F. Houchin and A. Collings.

Frankford, People's Warden, Constable Rogers; Rector's Warden, Albert Caskey; Treasurer, J. Cherry; Vestry Clerk, Lloyd Gladwell. Delegates to Synod, Messrs. Hugh Miller and Gerald Johnson.

NO ONE SEEN IT

Toronto, Jan. 28 —(CP)— The nearby village of Port Credit, which is currently the scene of a mountain lion hunt, is still taking life easy. No one in Ontario has seen a mountain lion outside of a zoo for at least 75 years, according to leading authorities. The Humane Society in Toronto hasn't lost a mountain lion, neither has the Riverdale Zoo, in fact no one has lost a mountain lion. And apart from the man who reported seeing the beast a few nights ago —no one has seen it.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Write Note to Thank Employer And His Wife

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

The day before Christmas I received a lovely gift from my employer and his wife. When my employer handed it to me, I thanked him, but I did not open it, because I thought that Christmas gifts were not supposed to be opened until Christmas. Later I was told by one of the girls in the office (there are three of us in the office) that it is rude not to open a gift when it is presented. Is she right, or was I right?

Ruth.

You did just the right thing... to thank your employer for the Christmas gift as he handed it to you, but not to open it until "comes the time to open Christmas presents." (If a gift is handed to you with no special-occasion-for-opening idea, then you should open the gift at once, and comment appreciatively about it.) However, the thank-you you said when you were handed the gift isn't enough of a thank-you. You should have written a note of appreciation (did you?) to your employer and his wife on Christmas Day, or as soon after as possible.

Girl May Send Greeting Card First

Is it correct for a girl to send a greeting card (birthday card or card for any holiday greeting) to a fellow first, or should she wait until he sends her one?

D. P.

This is a kindly gesture that it is entirely correct for the girl to make, regardless of whether or not the man has previously sent her a greeting card.

Wedding Invitations to Groom's Parents, Wedding Attendants

1. My daughter and I are delighted to know that now wedding invitations are enclosed in two envelopes. Will you please tell us just what should be written on the inside envelope...or should this be left as is, with nothing written on it?

2. (a) Should we send the groom's brother and sister, both of whom live with his parents? (c) And should invitations be sent to the wedding attendants?

B. W.

1. The guest's name, usually only the last name, is written on the inside envelope...no address. For example: Mr. and Mrs. Graham, or Miss Foster, or Mr. Sheridan. If there are two or three girls in the family, you may write "The Misses Williamson" on the inside envelope. (On the outside envelope, their full names, with address, are used. And on the inside envelope of the invitation, sent to two or three boys in the family, write "The Messrs. Robinson".

2. (a) Yes, since the groom's parents are the guests of honor at the wedding, their invitation is the most important one, and should be mailed first. As a matter of fact, most brides-to-be follow the courteous custom of sending to the groom's parents, as the invitations are received from the engraver, a package of several unsealed invitations, so that they may see them at once and have them as keepsakes. Enclosed in the package of invitations is a gracious note, written either by the bride-to-be or her mother. (b) Yes, at the time the invitations are mailed to the other guests, an individual invitation should be mailed to each member of the groom's family. (c) Each member of the wedding party should receive an engraved invitation.

Questions Concerning Wedding Expenses

I am to be married soon. (1) Who is supposed to pay for my attendants' gowns? For the boukuets of my attendants? (2) Does the bridegroom pay for the flowers for the church? And for my mother's and his mother's corsages?

Reader.

(1) Each bridal attendant pays for every detail of her own costume, except the flowers, which are paid by the bride's family. (2) The bride's family pays for the flowers for the church. The bridegroom sends a corsage to the bride's mother and one to his own mother.

Knife, As Well as Fork, For Eating Salad

Is it proper to use your knife for cutting your salad, especially the lettuce? While dining out recently I noticed that several of the guests did not use their knives to cut their salads.

J. D.

If a salad knife is put at your place at table, it is intended for you to use in cutting your salad; but you may use it or not, as you wish. Many people don't use a salad fork, even though provided with one at table, because they are not accustomed to it...but it's really an excellent convenience, and the double silver service...salad fork or any medium-sized fork, and silver-bladed knife ...have always been placed for salads on perfectly-appointed tables.

Bride to Give Groom Wedding Gift?

Is it customary and considered necessary for the bride to present the groom with a wedding gift? I am to be married soon, and while I understand it is customary for the groom to give the bride a wedding gift, I am uncertain if I am expected to give my prospective groom a gift.

M. T.

Although it isn't customary, and certainly not "necessary," for the bride to give the groom a wedding present, many brides do give the groom a gift in remembrance of the Great Occasion, and it is, of course, proper for her to do this.

Clever Use of Eye Make-Up

Eye make-up is the final flourish when one wears a new dress for an important date.

By HELEN FOLLETT

LAYING on the factory blushes and trailing the crimson stick over the mouth portals are simple beauty chores compared with the application of eye make-up. There you must be watchful, use restraint. If a woman can't learn to play the trick cleverly, she had better lay aside the mascara brush and the lid shaddows.

The pigment for the eyelids that lends itself most agreeably to general use for blonde, brunette and even the red head is a faint, lush blue. Before putting it on, the lids should be massaged lightly with a cream that is of a consistency that spreads easily.

The Inner Corner

Start at the inner corner of the lid, sweep outward to a point just beyond the far end of the eye. The color should be slightly darker along the lashes, fading away as it ascends toward the eyebrows. If the forehead scimitars have been lifted because of tweezing the under line, the shadows should not reach them. Friction until you have a smooth application. One must know exactly where to stop, not let the intriguing beauty aids extend out too far at the sides.

As a rule, it is best to dispense with commercial cheek roses when wearing shadows. The feminine face can carry just so much coloring and no more if it is to contine to have softness and charm, not look brittle and litographic.

A Soft Green

The redhead may prefer a soft green. If blue is used it must be a faint tone, so as not to detract from the flaming thatch.

White-haired women are enhanced by the eye shadows of delicate mauve. The lipstick can be a rich crimson, the powder a soft ivory. The combination is flattering, especially if the eyes are dark and the skin has taken on the delicate transparency that usually comes at mid-channel time. Bronze shadows are pleasing if the skin is still hanging onto a late summer tan.

Eye make-up is the final flourish when one wears the new formal for the big date.

BEAUTY By HELEN JAMESON

Mouth Hygiene

If a girl is afflicted with an unpleasant breath, she might as well relinquish all hopes for charm and popularity. She is out of the running. She'll get no telephone clangs, no boy will be eager to take her out. It does not seem possible that anyone can be unaware of this affliction. It is a dreadful handicap to social and business life.

It is not fair business to offend the public nose. The nose is a sensitive organ, always on the job; it resents being assailed by foul odors. It is the duty of every citizen to attend to personal hygiene to the nth degree, to bathe daily, to use a deterrent in the armpits, to see that the breath is not unpleasant.

Certain diseases of the nose and throat may be responsible for this last-mentioned affliction. In that event, one should consult a specialist and receive early treatment, as these conditions may lead to serious trouble. Common causes are gum infections, neglected teeth, digestive disturbances and faulty elimination of body wastes.

If you feel that you haven't a sweet, healthy breath, seek the services of your dentist. He will scrape the surfaces of the bases of the teeth free of tartar, give proper treatment to caries, and discover infections, if they are present.

If possible, brush the teeth after each meal. Deposits of food, clinging between the teeth, change in character in a few hours, and should be removed promptly. They not only cause an unpleasant taste, but also are a menace to the health of the teeth.

Individuals who are nervous and jittery, but who consider themselves in perfect health otherwise, are likely to exhale substances that have a metallic odor; they frequently have a metallic taste in the mouth—so we have been told by a medical man who is qualified to make this statement. He adds that it is sometimes necessary to change the diet of a person who has this affliction, cutting down on highly-seasoned, highly-spiced dishes and rich sauces. It is important that the various avenues of elimination are functioning normally —the skin, kidneys, lungs and intestinal tract.

Enlarged or diseased tonsils mean that the breath will not be free of odor. Tonsils offer convenient hiding places for solids and liquids taken in by the mouth.

After brushing the teeth, make it a practice to use a mouth wash freely, swishing it about so that it will cleanse the inner surfaces of the mouth and throat.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

He's Lied Himself Into Unpopularity—What Can he do?

Inferiority complex sometimes ride under strange disguises. Here's a letter that unconsciously reveals one of the many forms this crippling handicap can assume.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"I know it must be very seldom you get a letter from a fellow. But it seems you're the only one I won't be ashamed of writing to.

"I am 16 years old, and go to high school. I have only one friend. I know many boys, but it seems we have nothing in common. I try to make friends, but it just seems I can't. I have gone out with girls, but after about two dates I usually never see the girl again. When I do go out, somehow I never have anything to say, and I usually come out with a lie. I have earned quite a reputation as a liar, and no one wants to have anything to do with me.

"I'm very bored with life, and I know it's no attitude to take. I would like to know what I can do to become popular again and have friends and dates as other fellows do.

"Lonely"

Now, "Lonely" doesn't say what sort of lies he tells. But if he tells them because he can't think of anything to say when he's out on a date, the chances are that they're tall tales about himself that he dreams up in order to make himself appear more interesting to other people. He's tongue-tied for some reason, in the give-and-take of small talk that makes up most of the interchange between boys and girls, and so in order to make others open their eyes in admiration over his exploits instead of closing them to shut out the sight of the dumb bunny he actually thinks he is, he lets his imagination go and builds up an image of himself that he thinks will make these others sit up and take notice. Isn't that the way it is "Lonely?"

However, the trouble is that, instead of believing and admiring, the boys and girls disbelieve and jeer; then shun the teller of the tall tales as someone not worth wasting time over. How about it, "Lonely?"

But there's a far better way to go about winning friends than by trying to make yourself out a different type of person than you really are. That is, by making yourself the very best person of your type you possibly can.

You're perfectly aware of your liabilities as a person. You feel you're unpopular; that young people your age don't like you. You don't know how to enjoy yourself or make yourself interesting to others when in their company, and you make up stories to try to offset that defect.

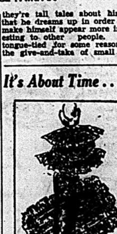
But how about the qualities you have that can be made assets? Possibilities latent in yourself that could be developed to make you attractive to others? Are you unselfish and thoughtful? Generous? Friendly? Ready to meet the next fellow half way? What can you do especially well that you could use, not to boast about, but to get other people interested in you? That is, are you a good dancer? Girls like boys who dance well. Could you make a school team in some sport? Girls—and boys, too—admire the good hockey or basketball player, the football or baseball man. Pick out something that would interest you and then make yourself an expert at it. If you actually become someone that others instinctively admire, you won't have to pretend or invent.

Another thing: Study the popular boys and see if you can pick out the qualities in them that account for their popularity. That might give you some suggestions about what you could do to help bring your own standing up to par.

And I think it would be an excellent idea if you went to some older person you know and admire and laid your problem before him. Isn't there some teacher in your school you'd feel you could confide in? —Don't be ashamed to tell someone you're troubled and perplexed. We all need advice on our problems, and the smart person is the one who goes to somebody who might be able to help and asks for it frankly.

Good luck to you. And write me again, if you feel like it. You're not by any means the only boy from whom I get letters.

It's About Time . . .



By DOLORES BOLAND

It's About Time to purchase extra material when you shop for lace for an evening dress. Extra lace for a ruffled stole. Have it rectangular with a circular ruffle. Wear this dramatic accessory when you are in a cover-up mood.

Fashion Flashes

SOMETHING NEW for the bride is a traditional wedding gown of sheer wool in snowy white. The yoke, with a little stand-up collar, is of silver lace. More silver lace in a rich flower pattern is cut out and appliqued on the soft, full skirt. Headdress of silver-edged leaves.

YOUNG AND PRETTY suits are ready for a teen-age Spring. Black woolen, with wide, rounded revers that are quilted, makes one beauty which also has a taut waistline, moderately rounded hips and double-breasted closing.

Scarf Magic

By ALICE ALDEN

BY NOW the scarf improvisation trick has swept the nation. If you don't like any blouse in your wardrobe then just take a brace of scarves, and presto—you'll have a handsome blouse that, with a long skirt makes an evening costume. If your dress is too dull and dark drape a handsome scarf across the bodice or use one to fashion an apron tunic or a peplum, or a bustle bow. Glentex has designed this duo of twin sequinned floral sheers, which, when draped from the waist, then brought across the shoulder and knotted, add up to a sparkling topper. Use a belt for anchorage.

BACK ONCE MORE is the beloved ensemble of print frock and wool coat. Navy, turquoise and white, in a heart and cupid design, is used for a pretty afternoon frock of pure silk crepe worn with a slim, full-length coat of navy wool crepe lined with the silk of the frock.

OPULENCE is well expressed by some of the evening gloves now being shown and worn. Sixteen-button black doeskin goes all out with a full-length tracery of gold sequins interspersed with ruby, emerald and amethyst colored stones.

THERE'S A SMART LOOK to the coat-dress, and we are glad that this design appears in so many Spring collections. Pure silk in a black and white scroll print, is used for a trig coat dress made with a front that simulates a tiered jacket and has a panel pleat in back.

DOWN SOUTH, silk chiffons for evening is the fashion word. White silk chiffon is used for a charming evening frock made with side-draped, gathered skirt, and a soft bodice with appliques of widely-spaced florals touched with sequins.

Rocky Graziano Says He Faked Aching Back to Cancel Match After Being Offered Big Bribe Called Off Fight With Cowboy Shank Three Days Before it Was Scheduled

New York, Jan. 28. (AP)—A story of a $100,000 bribe offer which District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said was told a Grand Jury by middleweight boxer Rocky Graziano intensified today an investigation of "fixing" of sports events here.

Hogan said Graziano "admits he used a sore back as an excuse" to call off a fight with Ruben (Cowboy) Shank of Denver three days before it was scheduled Dec. 27. This, Hogan said, came after the scrappy fighter had been visited twice in his dressing room by a man offering the $100,000 if Graziano would throw the fight—a man whose name Graziano said he could not remember.

Hogan told reporters, "I don't think Graziano has told me everything he knows. He could have told me the names, I'm sure."

Hogan said that at first meeting Graziano told the bribe-offerer "he would see him later," and when the man returned a few days later, with two other men, the fighter told them he was thinking about" the offer and repeated ,"I'll see you".

Although as an odds-on favorite Graziano felt he could defeat Shank, Hogan continued, "he realized he would be double-crossing persons who had bet on his opponent on the basis of his two meetings in the dressing room. He, therefore, decided to pull out of the match. He admits that he used a sore back as an excuse."

Hogan said Graziano also told him he had been approached by gamblers before his fight with Al (Bummy) Davis, who was slain later last year in a tavern holdup.

Edward P. Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, called a hearing of the Commission for Friday to consider the matter.

The fighter's only comment to reporters was, "believe me, it's all a big joke."

As to Graziano's back condition which led to the fight cancellation, Dr. S. Sym Newman of the State Boxing Commission, who examined him, said: "I found a positive sign—certain evidence of a sacroiliac. If Rocky was faking, it's news to me."

KENNY LINDSAY DEFEATS FREITAS

Vancouver, Jan. 28. (CP)—Kenny Lindsay of Vancouver, scored a clear-cut victory over Georgie Freitas of Santa Clara, Calif., in the 10-round main bout of a boxing program last night. Lindsay, at 122, spotted his opponent two pounds.

Billy Townsend of Spokane, Wash., originally scheduled to fight in a preliminary bout, did not appear despite the lifting of a suspension against him earlier in the day by the Vancouver Athletic Commission.

Promoter Gene Mason said arrangements had been completed to replace Townsend with Jack Fox, of Spokane when the suspension was ordered in connection with the Commission's investigation of charges that "Ringers" had opposed Townsend in two earlier bouts, and added that no further changes could be made in the program.

The five-man board unanimously cleared Townsend of blame for the incidents.

CHUCK RAYNER LEADS SHUTOUT RACE IN N.H.L.

N. Y. Rangers' Goalie Has Four to His Credit This Season

Montreal, Jan. 28. (CP) — "Bonnie Prince Charles" Rayner, as they currently call the New York Rangers goal tender around the National Hockey League circuit, has collected four shut-outs over the season to lead the league net custodians in the goose-egg production department, league statistics released today revealed.

Rayner, who replaced Sugar Jim Henry as the New York netminder after Rangers' second game this season, raised a few eyebrows as he blanked the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs 1-0 last Saturday. Turk Broda, of Leafs, follows with three to fill the runner-up position.

Lanky Bill Durnan, of the Montreal Canadiens takes top honors in the goals-against race among the keepers, having allowed only 81 goals in 38 games.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Les Canadiens continues to dominate the pointmakers as his total of 46 holds a seven-point lead over his nearest rival. Richard also heads the goal, scorers with 29 credited in 38 games.

Ted (Teeter) Kennedy of Toronto holds down second rung with 39 points made up of 20 goals and 19 assists while Chicago's Max Bentley and Detroit's Billy (The Kid) Taylor are tied for third place with 38 points. Milt Schmidt of Boston is in fifth position with 35 points. Max Bentley leads the assists department with 25 garnered in 37 contests.

Montreal Canadiens narrowed the gap separating them from the league leading Maple Leafs to five points during the week with two wins and one draw. Leafs, who have won 24, lost 10 and tied six for 54 points, are presently suffering a mid-season slump, having lost two of their last three games.

Canadiens with 22 wins, five ties and 11 defeats for 49 points have played two games less than Toronto. Boston Bruins follow in third position with 38 while New York Rangers, who won seven of their last nine outings, are in fourth place, one point behind the Bruins. Detroit has 31 points while the cellar-dwelling Chicago Black Hawks have a lowly 25.

Rearguard Gus Mortson holds the dubious honor of being the league's "bad boy" with a total of 80 minutes spent in the penalty box.

Buddy Hayes Takes Armstrong In Two Rounds

(By The Canadian Press)

Coming through with a spectacular two-round knockout in a scheduled 10-round go at Boston last night, Timothy (Buddy) Hayes of Boston, evened an old fistic grudge with Toronto's ring veteran, Jack (Spider) Armstrong. A 2-1 underdog, Hayes was outboxed in the opening session, came back in the second to floor the Canadian for a nine-count and then finished him off with a jarring left hook and a right across the head.

Armstrong weighed in at 130 1-2 and Hayes at 128 1-2. The fight was widely heralded as a grudge match following a repeated scuffle between the two when they met recently in a gymnasium. Armstrong won a decisive victory over Hayes last Summer.

Max Baer, who clowned his way to the world's heavyweight boxing title and was finally toppled from his perch by Joe Louis, was reported yesterday to have joined the United States Naval Reserve. A Jacksonville, Fla., dispatch said he enlisted there as a seaman under a training program which calls for instruction once a week and a two-week cruise each year.

Statistics released yesterday show Eddie Embeg of the tail-end Valleyfield Braves, in first place in the Quebec Senior Hockey League individual scoring race with 14 goals and 29 assists for a total of 43 points, a one-point margin over Jack Carthy of Shawinigan Falls.

In the professional American Hockey League, Philadelphia's Phil Hergesheimer continued in the scoring lead for the sixth straight week with 59 points—33 goals and 26 assists in 44 games. Next in line is Cliff Simpson of Indianapolis Caps with 57 points —30 goals and 27 assists in only 38 games.

Billy Conn, blasted out of the heavyweight boxing picture last year by Champion Joe Louis, said at Miami, Fla., yesterday he is retired and intends to stay retired. "Mike Jacobs wants me to box again but I'm getting too old. . .let the other fellows go after Joe's crown."

Chips Off The Sports Block

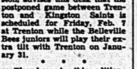
By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The Belleville intermediates are going to be on their best behavior tomorrow night — both on the ice and off it. In the first place they travel east o' here to Kingston where they tussle with the Tricolor of Queen's U Seconds in a loop fixture. In the second place they'll be good little boys for it's Ladies' Night and the little women will be going along in the bus to cheer the boys to victory.

• • •

Yep, it's wives and sweethearts' night come Wednesday and that, according to Manager Frank Butler means that the big Rawson passenger jalopy will be packed to the rafters. In other words there'll be no extra room for the fans as the little women must have the best possible. Even (so round—so firm — so . . . .) Vern Goyer is shrinking himself down to 3 suits of underwear so that more room will be available.

• • •



But it won't be all beer and skittles on the ice. This Queen's team is big, husky and powerful and although the Vets hung their scalps to their belts here in their first tussle, the studes won't be any pushovers on their own hearths. And there might be a brand new face caverting out there with the Reds' front line shock troops.

• • •

Convener Lorne Cook, Kingston, advises this desk that the postponed game between Trenton and Kingston Saints is scheduled for Friday, Feb. 7 at Trenton while the Belleville Bees juniors will play their extra tilt with Trenton on January 31.

• • •

Elsewhere in this edition is published the COSSA junior and senior hockey schedules. The juniors are represented by four squads, St. Mike's, O.S.D., Albert and BCI, as are the seniors. In junior circles OSD nosed out St. Mike's 3-2 while the classy BCI kids took the measure of Albert 3-1. OSD and Albert fought to a 3-all draw in the only game of the senior loop played to date.

• • •

The games are played in the afternoon with double bills starting at 4 o'clock. Two periods of twenty minute hockey and a five minute interval constitute a COSSA game. Hockey fans with a loose few minutes on the dates mentioned should see some of these games. There is plenty of the Alma Mamma stuff and some good hockey handed out to the rival student factions.

• • •

The Ontario Hockey Association at a special meeting over the weekend, formally ordered that Don Barrett, local centre ice star, who played ten games with the Stratford Kroehlers Junior "A" team this season, is not eligible to play in intermediate circles. Barrett, returned to the city a few weeks ago after being released by the Stratford team and local efforts were started to have him play with the Intermediates. But rules is rules and the OHA clamped down the honorable foot. It is quite a blow to local intermediate hopes as in practice Barrett was going great guns with Doug Bastede and Jackie Wardhaugh.

• • •

YMCA and Albert College natators will go up against the best Kingston and Peterboro "Y's" have sometime in March if present plans materialize. The local "Y" tankmen and Albert swimmers will join forces in a swimming meet against the Kingston and Petes that will embrace boys' events, 12 and under, 14 and under and 16 and under. More later.

• • •

Gar Wood, famous motorboat man who toiled at one time and another in Trenton during the war days, is building a plastic job for the Harmsworth Trophy race, and Guy Lombardo, the ork leader hopes to drive it. Guy, who learned his first three R's with Manager Tommy Mascaro of the Capitol Theatre here won the Gold Cup with his Tempo VI and thinks he can successfully defend with the same boat at New York this year.

• • •

"I can get 115 per hour out of Tempo," Lombardo explained. "With a straighter course in New York, I should be able to win because I won't have so much pick-up trouble. It should be quite a race as there will be a dozen or more boats there that can do over 100 miles per hour."

• • •

Lombardo hasn't given up ideas of breaking all marks for the measured mile. Wood's American record is 124 set in 1935 and the world standard is Sir Malcolm Campbell's 141 mph in 1940. Guy guesses that the "Tempo" "souped up" would do 145. What an attraction for the Rotary Regatta this summer?

• • •

"Dapper Dan" McKetrick, famous boxing manager, who came to Montreal frequently in the old days with boxers, recalled how he, and the late Harry Pollok, imported Yussiff, 250-pound Turk, to wrestle Tom Jenkins, the American champion, in the old Garden.

• • •

The deal called for us to feed the Turk," McKetrick said. "It was a project. The big bum started off a meal—started off —with fice chickens, six bottles of wine and six loaves of bread. Then he'd go into the steaks."

• • •

"We had a sellout for the bout," he continued. "Tim Hurst was the referee He introduced the Mickey Finn to Broadway. The mat was pitched on the Garden floor. Nearby sat a police inspector with whiskers and a club.

"The Turk was so big, we figured —we'd better not let Jenkins see him until necessary. The time came, Jenkins took one gander and started running. The Turk let out a roar and went after him.

• • •

This started the inspector with the whiskers and the club running after Yussiff. Finally the Turk got mad and turned on the inspector. He took his club away and was going to conk him with it, but we yelled him out of it. It was more fun than the bout. The Turk won easily."

Montreal, Jan. 28—(CP) — Ski fever is running high throughout Quebec province with the Canadian championships, which will serve also as trials for the Bqori Olympic Games, less than a month away.

The title meet will be held at Mont Ste.-Anne, about 15 miles east of Quebec, and the city's ski advancement society is putting the finishing touches to preparations for what is expected to be one of the biggest competitions in Canadian skiing history.

The 70-metre jump, built at cost of $12,000, was put to its first test Sunday and indications are that leaps of 250 feet or more can be expected in the competition.

Junior Chatter

Montreal Canadiens, strongly favored to win the Quebec junior hockey championship, had their 12-game winning streak snapped last week when Winged Wheelers beat them 3-1 but they still hold a commanding seven-point lead over second-place Nationale. A tie game followed their defeat but they rebounded from this during the weekend with a 7-2 victory over the Wheelers.

Young Howie Morenz, son of the late Howie who was the fleetest of the professional Canadiens Flying Frenchmen, continues to pace his team's scorers, although an outburst of goals by Nationale's forwards dropped him out of first place in the league race.

He scored the only goal in the 3-1 beating, tallied three times in a 4-4 tie, and scored twice and assisted on four other goals in the 7-2 win. This is Howie's last year as a junior and although many fans think he is good enough to step right into the pro ranks, he probably will have a couple of years' seasoning in senior competition before joining his father's old team.

GALT RED WINGS LACE HAMILTON SZABOS BY 16-5

Will Meet St. Michael's Majors in Game That Will Count

(By The Canadian Press)

Galt Red Wings, struggling upward ever upward to breathe the rarefied air that Toronto St. Michaels are accustomed to, gave Hamilton Szabos a severe trouncing last night 16-5 while St. Mikes remained idle to watch their 16-point lead pared back to 14.

The hapless Hamiltonians—to give them their due—were facing rough odds. They were compelled to ice five youngsters from the Hamilton minor league when only five regulars showed up for the game.'

If there was one regular on the Hamilton team who wished he had stayed at home it was Howson, the regular goalie. He had more rubber around him than "Man Mountain" Dean in a girdle.

But while Galt was having a shining hour with Hamilton, St. Michaels were taking it easy preparatory to jousting with the same Galt Red Wings tonight.

A lot of pucks have gone through enemy nets since St. Mikes took a 5-3 scalding from Oshawa Generals and the Red Wing crowd think it is about time college boys were edged again.

In the senior race—if you can call it that with Hamilton Tigers 20 points in the van— Toronto Staffords, Hamilton Pats and Owe nSound are neck-and-necking it with 14 points each and Staffords puffing along in the rear with 10.

Even if Stratford wins tonight against Owen Sound in the Northern City, the standings will not be changed; they will merely draw closer to making a four-team tie for second place.

The jockeying for position of the other teams doesn't interest Hamilton Tigers in the slightest. The lofty Tigers are much more interested in winning their game against the New York Rangers to be played in Kingston tonight for the benefit of Hockey's Hall of Fame.

In last night's Red Wing-Szabos tussle the Wings garnered goals galore with Cooney leading the scoring parade with four. Giesbrecht and Scott copped three each and Mineault and Glover got two apiece. McBride and Uniac got the others.

Pierre Cadieux, a Hamilton regular, scored three goals and an assist while Reynolds and Adoranti, juveniles, got the others.

South was declarer at six spades. West led a club; the queen. To make the contract, there must be a successful finesse in one of the red suits. Which should be tried first.

With queen and king of hearts outstanding, one trick must be lost in that suit. So, if a diamond finesse loses, the contract is down. That much is sure.

Chances are even that diamond king is in east or west; slightly better than even that heart king-queen are split; less than even that both the king and queen of hearts are in the east hand.

Therefore, as compared with one diamond finesse, percentage is in favor of two heart finesses. So, after pulling enough trumps, the declarer took the favorable odds offered by heart finesses.

A small heart was led from south. When west went small, the ten was played from dummy. This was lost to the east queen. Then, south got in again and the second heart was led from there.

West played small again and dummy finessed the jack. When this won, north led the heart ace and south flopped diamond jack on it. This eliminated the diamond loser.

An expert tries to make his plays the soft way; the way that offers the best odds in his favor.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

From Lazar Wechsler in Zurich comes word that he is delighted with a screen story of American youth just completed for him by Betty Smith, author of "A Tree Grows in Brooklyn". Wechsler producer of "The Last Chance" and "Marie-Louise", the two fine films which launched Switzerland into the movie swim, says he intends "to start production on it in the United States in the late Summer or early Autumn this year".

Cantor Retiring

There is a sad note in the film news with Eddie Cantor's announcement that he is retiring from the movies when he completes "If You Knew Susie" in which he stars and which he is also producing. The singing comedian will be 55 on Friday and has been entertaining since he joined Gus Edwards' Vaudeville Urchins at 14. He has been on the screen since 1926.

Capro Sounds Off

Frank Capra, Academy Award-winning director, whose latest film is "It's a Wonderful Life", believes there is a deliberate plot afoot among newspapers and the intelligentsia to discredit Hollywood, and the current praise British pictures have been getting in the United States disturbs and angers him.

"Everyone appears to be impressed by the number of British pictures on the 'ten best' lists of the New York critics," says Capra, "yet neither the critics nor the public seems to realize that Britain had to send over the best films she made over a period of five years to make this showing against pictures Hollywood produced in a single year."

He's got a point there—one that is worrying British film makers. With the British studios now workng at top speed to back up the reputation they have achieved with the cream of their wartime product, there are many who think it will be impossible for them to maintain such a standard in mass-produced movies.

MARMORA SCORES 7 TO 6 WIN AT CAMPBELLFORD

Jim Loveless Performs the "Hat Trick" With Trumble Getting Two

Marmora, (Special.) — With both teams having an unbeaten record behind them, and giving everything they had in a hard fought game on soft ice. Marmora emerged victorious in Friday evening's game at Campbellford by the narrow margin of 7-6.

In the first period, which was scoreless, Callery, the visiting goalie, received a bad cut over the left eye, but continud playing until the last period when Koski. The spare goalie replaced him to make several fine saves. The Leonard brothers on defence for Marmora were in excellent form and the combination of the team as a whole did much towards obtaining the victory.

Jim Loveless again scored a trio of goals and the consistent Trumble netted twice besides getting two assists. Blake and Peloquin stood out for Campbellford each netting twice.

The game was witnessed by a large crowd, a good number following the Marmora boys. The teams were—

Referee—T. Cousins, Marmora; Linesman, H. Payne, Campbellford.

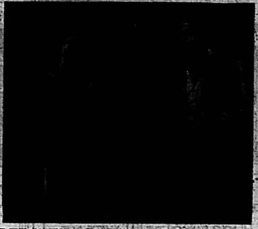
Sports Roundup

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 28 —(CP)— This story starts one hot summer night in 1902 at old League Park on Jing Street West in Toronto . . . The Maple Leafs were clinging grimly to a slender lead in the Eastern (later the International) League and Ed. Barrow, Toronto manager who was to become bossman of New York Yankees, worked late in the tiny printing shop that served as his baseball offices . . . Out of the night Jack Toft, the team's star catcher, reeled into the office, turned in his uniform and said he was going back to his home in the United States . . . Barrow, never one to coddle players, told Toft to "get out of my sight" . . . The next day, arriving for a morning practice, Barrow was approached by a contrite figure in street clothes, showing none of the wear of the night before.

Teetotaller Toft

It turned out to be the recalcitrant Toft, a reformed man . . . He told Barrow "I want to take the pledge" and the amused manager summoned captain Jimmy Bannon to accompany Toft to a nearby church . . . Bannon came back chuckling with the report that Toft had taken the pledge, all right — but only for 90 days, a period that would expire one day after the league schedule ended . . . Toft stuck to the pledge scrupulously, living the good, clean life, and the Leafs came to the final day of the season needing a double victory over Providence to clinch the pennant against George Stallings' Buffalo Bisons . . . With Toft helpfully averting one enemy rally by throwing dust in a dangerous batter's eyes, undetected, the Leafs took both games by close scores for the championship.



AT THE CAPITOL — Vera Ralston and William Elliott, co-star in the new thrilling picture, "Plainsman and The Lady," a saga of an empire builder in the early days of the colorful west now showing at the Capitol Theatre, with the added hit "Below the Deadline," starring Warren Douglas and Ramsay Ames. Both attractions are being shown for the first time in Belleville.

Revelry by Night.

This was an occasion for rejoicing, naturally, and one of the Toronto stock holders made preparations for a massive party, but there was one sad face in the group . . . It belonged to Toft, who discovered to his consternation that he had to be a Little Lord Fauntleroy for one more day . . . Hearing of his plight, a group of Irish saloonkeepers met in solemn conclave, absolved Toft of his pledge and the party went on as scheduled.

Note to Two-Buck Betters.

Along the horse-racing front our open wire to Epsom says the projected British treasury tax on betting has resulted in a £4,000 ($16,000) fund to build a home for broken bookies . . . Wonder when they're going to build a home for broken backers?

White's District

White's District —The congregational meetings of the three churches, White's, Wesley and Centenary all of Bayside Circuit have been held with favorable reports from each. Over $4,000 was raised and the ladies of the Woman's Associations of the three churches deserve a great deal of praise for their work during the year. White's Church was re-decorated throughout in the interior. This was undertaken by the Women's Association also the English Style dinner which followed the opening of the church, and it proved to be a decided success.

The Woman's Missionary Society of Bayside and Centenary also the Sunbeam and Bayside Mission Bands, the Mission Circle of Bayside and the Bayside Baby Bands gave favourable reports. The Sunday schools of White's and Centenary Churches showed a good year with a bright outlook for 1947.

Sunday School and Church services were held at White's Church on Sunday afternoon. The choir contributed a suitable anthem.

The many friends of Mr. R. Hunt will be sorry to learn that he is patient in Kingston hospital.

The mild weather of the past few days has been greatly appreciated but the sheets of ice which have resulted from the thaw are appreciated mainly by the younger generation.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was eating her grapefruit diet this morning, saying to pop, Well, it's another day, William, and here comes the proverbial question. What would you like for dinner? she said.

Yee gods, I just finished breakfist, I'm pleasantly full of coffee and bacon, I'm not reddy to think of more food, pop said, and ma said, Now William that's very inconsiderate. Here I'm prepared to cheerfully stand in drafty markets for litterly hours. and you wont even bother to condesend to give the subject one little passing thought Really, William, I mean really, no wonder women complain, she said.

I'm sorry, my dear, the least I can do is lighten your berden with an expert suggestion or 2, pop said If you'll get a nice standing rib roast I'll garantee to make it lie down, he said, and ma said, Now that's a nice suggestion, except that a standing roast is only practical when we have guests, because otherwise it goes too far and presents a problem for days.

Okay, I'll compromise on a tea bone steak that probably wont go quite far enough, pop said, and ma said, You hit the difficulty right on the head that time, William, I mean I would like enough of something left over for the cleening wcman's lunich tomorrow. I think a nice lam stew would just fill the bill, she said.

For Peet sakes that's the limit, I thought you needed my help, pop said, and ma said, So I did, William, and you helped me a lot and I appriciate it. I mean the lam stew just grew naturelly out of your suggestions, and it was very nice of you to give the matter a little thought, she said.

It's a woman's werld and all the thought in creation wont change it an inch, pop said. I'll see you at lam stew, he said.

And he folded his paper and left for his office

CHAPTER 17

Christa did the gallant thing with theatrical magnificance. "I'm going to divorce you," she said quickly, jerkily. "I don't love you. I never loved you. I married you for security and position."

"You still want the position but not the security," he said, smiling faintly.

"In Paris there's a man who wants to marry me. I'm going back to marry Jake McLean. Even if I had not left last year, sooner or later it would have to come to this. I can't live your kind of life, Renny. I can't live up to you. Jake doesn't expect so much of me."

"We are just beginning to understand each other, Christa, after many years."

She went on in that quick staccato tone, "I—I want Allison to stay with you." she did not mention that Jake would not have Allison. "You deserve her, Renny, but I'd like to her to know who her mother is, and when she's old enough to make her debut, I'd like to have something to say about it."

Why had he dreaded this scene Why had every step in the direction of the hotel been a harsh accompaniment to misery and lost ideals? He had always loathed the dramatic scenes Christa staged. But he felt—felt nothing! Yes, he felt free! And he pitied Christa whose radiance had dimmed, pitied the extravagant atempt at a glamorous exit. He almost believed that Jake McLean was a mythical suitor created to make the situation more dramatic. Christa wanted to think she was leaving him hurt and broken and going back to Paris to a new conquest.

"It's generous of you to feel that way about Allison. I won't teach her to forget you. Now," said Renny, "about money.."

Christa put her hands to her burning face. "Money? I want nothing! Nothing—except to pay my expenses in Reno and my fare back to Paris."

"Is Jake wealthy?" he asked.

"We can manage." Then she cried out half hysterically, "How do you feel about this? You sit there and calmly discuss the wreck of our marriage! You never loved me, Renny. You're glad of this divorce."

She could not bear to hear him admit he loved Arlen Leeds. She felt she must cry out, "Renny, I'm afraid! Jake isn't rich. He's miserably poor. I do need money. I'm taking this way out because I know you don't want me. And you sit there in your power and strength and make me feel low and mean and a liar."

"I'll do everything I can to make this easier for you," he said after a pause. "About my feelings—I've exhausted most of them. What do they say—run the gamut of emotions? I'm not an articulate person, Christa, when things concern me deeply."

"I—I'd still like to go to Louise's party."

"Of course." He got up and walked to the door. "I'll call for you on New Year's Eve."

"Renny," she put her hands on his arm...." Renny...."

"Never mind," he said gently. "This is the best and the intelligent way out.".

She turned away, clasped her hands behind her, and her eyes filled with tears.

He looked at her, frowning, and, quite to his surprise, she stepped back, sobbing, and closed the door. At the elevator he could till hear her sobbing.

That night in his apartment he sat in a deep chair before the fire and thoughtfully puffed on his pipe. He wondered why the scene with Christa had failed to upset him emotionally. He had felt only pity and sadness for her, and he knew that one careless remark would have torn away what little dignity she had maintained and brought hysterical weeping. What was it that terrified her?

What had happened to him? Had she hurt him so much that he could never love another woman? Would he look at all women as possible Christas with a Christa's unreasoning selfishness? He hoped it was not so, but he could feel only pain tonight not for Christa, but for the tie that had been broken.

Toby, looking very handsome, was talking with Elissa and Julian when Arlen came into the living room on New Year's Eve.

Elissa said, "You look marvelous, darling."

Julian sniffed. "Umm Perfume scents the air."

Toby said, "You don't know how hard-hearted this fragile creature can be."

"Is it snowing?" Arlen asked.

"Lightly," said Toby. "I intended to fly up, weather permitting I had to drive."

"Let's not go just yet. We're going to drink a toast to Elissa and Julian with the sweet wine Julian brought. Did they tell you they were engaged?"

"Haven't I been congratulating them?"

"I always get sentimental on New Year's Eve.", said Elissa, holding Julian's hand. "Last year I got hysterical on a dance floor because nothing had happened to me all that year. Let's drink a toast, a wishing toast, that all people who hate their lives be set free."

"A nice thought," said Toby, "but don't include those serving prison terms. That would double the unemployment problem. Arlen, its ten:thirty."

They left Julian and Elissa seated on the divan. On the elevator Toby put his arm around Arlen. "I hope you feel quite mad tonight. I do."

"Has the cage been so confining? Did your mother come, Toby?"

"No," he said in a flat toneless voice, and Arlen decided not to question him further.

On the street everyone seemed to be going somewhere. Girls with furs framing their faces hugged tightly the arms of young men It was snowing lightly. In the radius of one city block people of various worlds rubbed shoulders.

Arlen sat up straight and asked for a cigarette. She felt nervous Neither her sense of humor nor her optimism could dim the dread of this party. Moreover, Toby was moody and reckless. He swore under his breath at other motorists and all but ran down a pedestrian. She wanted to say, "Toby, let's celebrate the New Year by going some place and being alone, and beginning it by being honest with each other. You can say you're mad tonight and lose yourself but tomorrow you've got to go back to Fanny."

When he parked the car, he turned to her and kissed her fiercely, Arlen said, "Not now, Toby. Let's go in."

The elevator boy remembered her. "May I wish you a happy New Year, Miss Leeds!"

Toby said, "I guess half of New York is here all wanting to cut one another's throats."

"Don't be disagreeable.'

"I feel like breaking things into fine little pieces. Louise has excellent china for that."

There were so many people there she could distinguish not one friendly face. The large room was a splash of moving color. Trains skimmed over the rugs and diamonds caught the light. People seemed to have much to say and were saying it with gesticulations. Arlen saw the sour face of the butler with a tray of drinks and felt grateful for one familiar face.

She left Toby and went to Louise's boudoir, put her coat on the bed, took the orchids from the coat, and pinned them on her dress. When she caught sight of herself in the mirror, her eyes were scared and large. It would not do to look like a schoolgirl at her first party when Christa saw her!

Thinking she must steel herself to face Christa, Arlen left Louise's boudoir. She saw Richard Borden looking as though he were a bewildered guest in his own home.

"Hello!" he said. "I suspect that half the people here were'nt invited. I saw Toby but I couldn't get to him. Fanny didn't come, did she? That's odd. There's the music. Shall we dance, Arlen? This party will probably get very dull and we'll all go to the hotel and blow horns and kiss other men's wives and have a delightfully childish time."

Dancing in Richard's loose embrace' she saw many of Louise's friends. Mary Albert, petite and blonde, dancing with her rotund little husband. She saw sleepy Mrs. Georges dancing with a man at least six inches shorted than she was. She saw Louise, beautiful in gold lace, passing from one guest to another. The excitement of giving this party would put her in the same nervous state she had been in a month ago. Toby was cornered between two women with faces as withered and as brilliantly painted as Fanny's. Then Arlen saw Renny and knew the woman with him was Christa.

Over Richard's shoulder she saw that Christa wore a backless gown of deep violet and her eyes were travelling from one person to another as though she were looking for some one. "For me." Arlen thought with discomfort. She thought that Christa looked on edge, as if she expected something to happen. Renny was conspicuous for his ease.

Now Toby was dancing with Arlen, and Christa knew Arlen because it was Toby with whom she was dancing. It was as if suddenly a trick of photography took every one else from the room and Toby and Arlen were dancing for no other reason than to give her the opportunity to dissect the girl. Christa had a mind for small details. She studied Arlen critically—from the sandals that moved in time with Toby's patent leathers to the top of her bright head. Arlen was probably the youngest person in the room and the simple gown of silver and her hair made her Christa thought, vulgarly conspicuous. More than that, Toby danced with such profesional grace it was enough to make the others stop dancing and look at him.

That Arlen looked young and fresh drew no admiration from Christa. To her it showed a sad lack of the richer experiences of life. All her life she had hated rosy youth. She had hated her own round childish face when she was in her teens. The year in Paris, the late hours the weariness, the discontent and uncertainty had pointed her face, bringing out the high arch of her cheek-bones which, artfully rouged, gave a bewitching foreign effect.

Jealousy warned her. What? Had she given up everything in a fit of nobility? That girl dancing with Toby would have everything—even her daughter. Christa felt no maternal jealousy but an unreasoning jealousy that anyone should possess what belonged to her. It had been foolish of her to come here and offer her weariness, her eyes that had cried for days, and her hate for herself that she could not hide—offer them for comparison with the youth and grace of this slim girl in silver.

Fear made her shudder when she thought of what she had done. As she smiled tightly at people who passed, she wondered if this would not be her last party for some time. A woman married to a poor playwright would not be a guest as welcome as was the estranged wife of an American millionaire She saw herself in small hot rooms while Jake, without a tie his shirt sleeves rolled up, typed plays that producers would not buy. And Christa saw herself getting older and shabbier and living in bohemian squalor and —forgotten.

"Renny, I must see you alone."

"Certainly. We'll go into Richard's study."

In the study she stood over the fireplace and folded her arms. Her red mouth was a straight grim line. There were blue circles beneath her eyes, and Renny was sure she was clasping her arms for control.

She broke down in a spasm of tears so violent he was afraid the guests would hear. When he touched her, she cried, "No, don't touch me!" And Renny stepped back, looking wretched and helpless.

"What is it?" he asked. "Don't you want to go through with the divorce?"

"Yes. I want to do that. I want to marry Jake. He's kind and he loves me. Oh, Renny," she looked up, "I lied to you! I told you we could manage ..but we can't. He's never sold a play and we'd be terribly poor. I can't bear to be poor again. I didn't want to take anything from you. I don't deserve anything. I lied to you because of my pride."

He touched her shoulder. "Is that all, Christa? I thought something horrible had happened to you. Will it make you any happier if I make a settlement on you?"

Four Are Killed In Shooting Affray

Parsons, W. VA., Jan. 28 (AP)—Police reported that four persons were killed and two others were wounded in an isolated farm near Montrose Saturday night when a one-armed lumberman opened fire with a shotgun after his landlord ordered him to leave the property.

They said that Walter Mccray, 35, shot himself to death after the fatal wounding of his wife, Mrs. Anna Isner Mccray, 25; Joseph Wilson McManigle, 68, with whom the couple lived; and Mrs. Dora Hammons McManigle, about 45, wife of McManigle.

Troy Sneed, 18, was shot in the hip and spent the night hiding on a hillside near the farm until rescuers arrived, while his 22-year-old sister, Louella, suffered a slight hand wound.

King Says Reasons For Tax Dealings More Stronger

Ottawa, Jan. 28 —(CP)— Prime Minister Mackenzie King has told Premier Drew of Ontario that the reasons for dealing individually with the provinces on taxation agreements now are "stronger than ever."

The new proposals had been sent to the seven provinces with which Finance Minister Abbott has been carrying on negotiations. As a "matter of courtesy" they were sent as well to Mr. Drew and Premier Duplessis of Quebec.

After receiving thee proposals Mr. Drew wrote Mr. King saying he assumed that the new proposals were to be taken as an indication that the Dominion-Provincial conference would be reconvened. He stressed the need for such a conference.

Mr. King continued:

"You are mistaken, however in assuming that this act of courtesy on the part of the minister of finance was intended to indicate that the government proposed to reconvene the Dominion-Provincial conference for the purpose of attempting further to negotiate the tax agreements at a general conference.

Deal Individually.

"Thus far the method of negotiation with the provinces individually, which was the method it was finally found necessary to adopt when the wartime tax agreements were originally negotiated, has been much more satisfactory in its results to those provinces that have sought agreement by individual negotiation than anything hitherto accomplished by a general conference.

"By this method it has also been found possible to arrive much more readily at a settlement which we believe will be just and fair to the people of every part of Canada."

Mr. King said the proposals put forward last week differed from the proposals outlined in the budget last June in only one respect—the amount of rental to be paid to the provinces for their giving the Dominion virtually exclusive use of the personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields.

The amount of rental was increased. That amount was not a matter of legislation and would not become so until agreements are concluded.

Mr. Drew had referred to an earlier letter in which the Prime Minister had said that parliament had enacted the legislation necessary to make the provisions of the budget operative. Mr. King had added that the position of the Dominion government having been given the force of law by parliament, it was not one which could be changed by any decision of the conference.

Five Arrested By Quick Action Rookie Constable

Thorold, Jan. 28 (CP)—Three men and two women were in jail here today charged with robbery with violence as the result of quick action by a rookie St. Catharine police constable. The charges followed an attempt armed robbery and the beating and robbing of 56-year-old George Brady of Thorold.

Those held are: James Biskiewicz, 34, of Hamilton; John Wagner, 48, Hamilton; Mike Sivalik, 26, Toronto; Madeleine Nickson, 25, Hamilton and Marjore William, 26, Thorold township.

Constable Cyril Gresswell of the St. Catharines police force held the five at the point of a gun after overtaking their car in a vehicle he had commandeered. He said the five, answering to descriptions of those wanted for earlier law infractions, sped past him on his beat without lights despite his attempt to flag their car down.

First incident leading to the arrests occurred when police chief Dennis Harold of Thorold south frightened five persons engaged in robbing a restaurant there. The chief said the five broke through a screened window at the rear of the building to escape.

Half an hour later George Brady was beaten up and robbed in his Thorold south home, losing his watch and $48 in cash. Police then broadcast a description of one of the wanted five.

Tension Eases, Fewer Pickets Seen at Noranda

Noranda, Que., Jan. 28. (CP) —Pickets, in sharply reduced numbers, stood guard outside the gates of the big Noranda Mine today after a series of conferences called by the Provincial Police eased at least temporarily the tense situation in the twin northwest Quebec mining towns of Rouyn and Noranda.

Only about 50 pickets were on duty this morning compared with the 500 men, Noranda strikers and token forces of sympathizers from other mines in the district, who assembled outside the copper and gold poducing plant yesterday.

The strikers, members of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.), have been away from work more than 10 weeks seeking a 19-cents-an-hour wage increase and a union checkoff. The company, Noranda Mines Limited, has offered 10-cents-an-hour increase but refused the checkoff.

More than 1,000 persons were at the mine gates or in nearby streets throughout most of yesterday as men, women and children from the towns, whose combined population is 20,000, awaited developments. Excitement ran high as rumors spread quickly through the crowd.

Capt. Norbert Labbe of Montreal, head of a provincial detachment of between 75 and 80 men, called four conferences with union and company officials during the day, meeting the opposing parties separately on each occasion.

Loud speakers blared out music and union announcements.

Despite the excitement, there was no violence and the position did not appear to have changed. Joe Rankin, International representative of the union, announced that an agreement had been reached to permit entry to the mine or seven maintenance workers on each shift.

KINGSTON SAINTS SCORE 10-3 WIN OVER BELLEVILLE

Local Juniors Look as Good as Winners Until They Ran Out of Condition

Kingston Saints, who have been tabbed, by their own supporters at least, and not a few sports writers as logical Junior "B" Ontario champions, under the veteran guiding hand of Wally Elmer, proved definitely that condition and practice count for a hockey squad, when they defeated the Belleville Bees 10-3 at the Harty Arena last night.

As the fighting kids from this city, stiff-legged from lack of practice gave the classy Saints the game of their lives for two periods, holding the Limestone kids to four goals while they rammed home three themselves. But condition and practice told in the third chukker and the Kingstonians rammed home six goals in succession with not a return from the Bees.

But the kids from the banks of the Moira were were far from disgraced. Kingston hockey authorities were of the opinion that the Bees with more practice and condition will give the Saints a squad which has beaten some of the best junior "B" and other teams in Ontario, one of the battles of their lives.

Spotted Winners Four Goals

Spotting their fast-skating opponents four goals in the first fourteen minutes of play ,the redshirts fought back valiantly to get their "sea legs". Ted Fowler, Kingston ace, who is headed for better teams scored the first goal at the one-thirty mark and Mulholland made it two five minutes later. Coupe and Fowler combined to make it three for the Saints and with six minutes to go Mulholland scored the fourth Saints tally. The Reds flashed to offensive life and J. Green, one of the Belleville stars took Johnny Semark's pass at the seventeen minute mark to break the egg.

The Bees found some of their oldtime form in the second period and matched the flying Saints with every trick they had. The Reds flashed in to the attacks and after twelve minutes of heavy checking play featured with daring goal-mouth forays "Huck" Reeves sank the rubber on a pass from Dougie Day. Seven minutes later the Reds came within striking distances when they scored the second goal of the period with Johnny Semark taking J. Green's pass to make the count 4-3.

Condition Tells

But that was the end. Superior condition and practice told and the Saints, stung by the sudden reversal of form on the part of the opposition roared to the attack scoring six goals while a fading Belleville team fought back gallantly in an effort to stem the scoring avalanche. Game to the core they battled tooth and nail but they couldn't cope with the racing lightning plays of the Kingston lads and they went down fighting.

Mulholland with 5 goals, Fowler, Potts and Coupe were the stars for the winners with J. Green, the Semarks, Reeves and Day looking the best for the Belleville team.

The game was exceptionally clean with the Saints drawing the only two penalties of the game when Fowler and Patterson visited the sin-bin on separate occasions. The officials were Watts and Steen, both of Kingston.

George Urbach Given 3 Months In County Jail

Pleading guilty to a charge of gross indecency involving a male person, George Urbach, 27, Coe Hill, was sentenced to three months in county jail by Judge W. S. Lane in Hastings county court on Monday.

In all Urbach faced four charges of gross indecency and one charge of indecent assault, the latter charge being dismissed by Judge Lane after he ruled as inadmissible a statement which he had given police. In the three other charges of gross indecency the Crown offered no evidence and they were dismissed.

Charges against Urbach were laid last summer following investigation by provincial police into offences of indecency which were alleged to have been committed by Ralph Turner, former Coe Hill school principal. Turner was later convicted and sentenced to two years in penitentiary.

Richard D. Arnott acted as counsel for Urbach in the above charges while Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan acted for the Crown.

Western Canada Has Cold Spell After Blizzard

Winnipeg, Jan. 28 — (CP) — Sub-zero temperatures gripped most of the prairies today in the wake of a blizzard which swept Southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba, grounding airplanes, delaying trains, disrupting communications and paralyzing highway traffic.

There were reports also that the body of a woman frozen to death had been found near her Melville, Sask., farm home but these could not be verified immediately.

Another tie-up of Southern Saskatchewan branch railway lines appeared imminent as snow drifts clogged tracks cleared only at the weekend after about 50 towns and villages had been isolated for periods ranging up to two weeks.

The cold air mass which moved down from the north where it left a winter record of 73 below at Snag, in the Yukon, was extensive, forecasters said, and indications were the spell would be prolonged.

On the far side of the Rockies, gale warnings flew from Blanco, Ore., to Monterey Bay, Calif. Vancouver expected snow today and a high of 40. Southern Alberta, where warm Chinooks ruled last week, reported thermometer readings of about 10.

But elsewhere it was decidedly cold and hourly growing colder. The Peace River district reported temperatures of 30 below and more, in Northern Saskatchewan they neared that and in Southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba they varied from 10 to 15 below.

Cloud and fog in many districts were all that prevented even lower readings.

Wilbur Johnston New Police Chief At Madoc Village

Former constable on the Belleville police force, Wilbur Johnston, Everett Street, has accepted the position as chief of police in the village of Madoc, it was learned here today. Mr. Johnston commenced his new duties as of January 25th and expects to move his family to the northern village this week.

Veteran of the First World War, Mr. Johnston first became an officer of the law following his return from overseas when for four years he was a member of the local police force. Later he operated a garage and service station on highway No. 7 east of Actinolite and then became assistant turnkey at the Hastings county jail here. Three years ago he resigned from this position to return to the city police force as constable a position which he held until January 11th when he tendered his resignation.

Bank Robber Fatally Shot, Driver Injured

Phil Campbell, Ala., Jan. 28—(AP) — One man was shot to death and another slightly wounded yesterday after a wild, six-hour taxicab ride which included an unsuccessful attempt to rob the First State bank here.

Thomas H. Taylor, 24, of Russellville, Ala., died in hospital an hour after he was shot through the head as police sought to arrest his near here.

Wylie F. Martin, Florence, Ala., taxi driver, was suffering from a head injury he told police had been inflicted by Taylor.

Martin was quoted by county police as saying Taylor rented his cab at Florence and forced him to drive to Phil Campbell, and to enter and leave the bank.

Martin's story was that Taylor kept a pistol in his back, forcing him into the bank where cashier C. P. Allman managed to turn in the alarm before running out of the building.

Taylor then forced Martin to drive away, the taxi driver said, but the car broke down near Phil Campbell; and Taylor was shot fatally when police arrived.

26 KILLED IN CRASH OF CHINESE AIRLINER

Level-Crossing Crash Takes Three Lives

C.N.R. Passenger Train Hits Car Near Kincardine

One Occupant Critically Hurt, No Inquest Ordered

Kincardine, Ont., Jan. 29 (CP)—Three people were killed and one critically injured when a Canadian National passenger train collided with an automobile at the level crossing two miles south of Kincardine on the Blue Water Highway late last night.

The dead are: Mrs. Allen Grant, 29, Dungannon, formerly of Goderich; her four-year-old son Larry Grant; W. James Johnston, 28, Holyrood.

In Kincardine Hospital with critical injuries is Marjorie Williams, 19, of Goderich.

The accident occurred as passenger train number 177, from Palmerston to Kincardine, was nearing the end of its run. Conductor on the train was J. Collins of Kincardine, with J. Hollenbeck as engineer. Snow was reported falling at the time.

On Way To Goderich

The party was returning from a movie in Kincardine when the accident occurred. Only eye witness to the accident was Engineer Hollenbeck, of Kincardine, who said that he noticed the car slow down then speed up again as it approached the crossing.

The train was travelling at an estimated 35 miles an hour and was only four minutes out of Kincardine.

After the accident Mrs. Williams and Johnston who was still alive, were placed in the baggage car and brought to Kincardine. Johnston died on the way and Mrs. Grant shortly afterwards.

Not till some time later did trainmen learn there had been other passengers in the back seat of the car. Police found the body of Mrs. Grant 200 yards from the impact in a ploughed field.

Body In Field

In the corner of the field they found the body of her young son.

Mrs. Grant and Miss Williams were daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams of Goderich. Larry Allan Grant, one of the 3 victims, was an only child. Mrs. Grant, who was formerly Doris Williams is survived by her husband, who operates a chopping mill at Lucknow, four sisters, Marjorie, June, Ramona, Marilyn, and five brothers, Robert, John, William, Donald and Charles all of Goderich.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

Toronto, Jan. 29—(CP)—Synopsis: Continuous snow is falling over extreme southern Ontario while freezing rain is occurring in the Windsor region. This precipitation area forms the northeastern edge of a very extensive area of snow, freezing rain and rain covering much of the northern United States eastward from the Rockies to New York State. Temperatures are well below zero over western Canada. This colder weather will spread through Ontario by Friday morning following a temporary mild spell on Thursday.

PREMIER DREW SCORES COMMUNISTS' METHODS

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP)—Premier Drew of Ontario said last night "Communists in no country have ever won a majority in an honest vote, but their methods have been to bore from within, to create disruption and turmoil in which they might gain control," when he spoke to the Shoe Manufacturers Association of Canada at a meeting here.

KIDNAPPED JUDGE RELEASED, NO TRACE OF BANKER

British Fix Deadline For Statutory Martial Law in Some Parts Of Palestine

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, Jan. 29. (AP) — Palestine police, using every resource in their search for a kidnapped British banker, expressed increasing fear today that he might have been fatally injured when Jewish underground members spirited him from his home Sunday night as a hostage for a condemned member of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground group.

Another abducted Briton, Judge Ralph Windham, was released unharmed last night in the Tel Aviv suburb of Ramat Gan. Reports circulated that the banker, H. A. I. Collins, a former British Army officer, had been freed at the same time, but police, after a full day of checking, were unable to confirm these rumors.

Authorities speculated that he might be held longer for treatment of injures suffered during the abduction, in the course of which he was believed to have been knocked on the head with an axe-handle and chloroformed.

Authoritative sources said a high level military conference was under way at Government House today, presumably to discuss terms of statutory martial law which the British have threatened to invoke if the hostages were not released unharmed.

Reliable informants here said the British had fixed 5 p.m. today as the deadline for invoking statutory martial law in certain sections of Palestine unless Collins is returned unharmed.

Judge Windham, seized Monday from the bench of his Tel Aviv courtroom, was taken by his captors to a textile factory on the outskirts of Ramat Gan and there released. Rumpled and unshaken, he was still wearing the dignified wig and robe of his office.

Ramat Gan, whether by design or accident, figured in the whole chain of circumstances involved in the latest lawless incidents of the troubled Holy Land.

The Ramat Gan police station was attacked by the Jewish underground last May and in the course of the action 33-year-old Dov Bela Gruner was wounded and captured. He later was tried and sentenced to be hanged. Police said other members of the underground kidnapped Windham and Collins in an effort to stave off Gruner's execution, which has not yet been carried out, pending a Privy Council appeal.

DOCTORS DRIVEN OUT

London, Ont., Jan. 29 (CP) — Many doctors are being "driven out" of rural areas by increasing centralization of medical and hospital services in cities, E. R. Bond of Mount Brydges, Ont., said at yesterday's meeting of Directors of the Middlesex Federation of Agriculture.

Mr. Bond who is honorary president of the Federation thought a larger number of small hospitals should be established in rural districts.

Government Source Says Cabinet Sees Partition of Palestine Necessary

London, Jan. 29. (AP)— A government source said today the Cabinet had decided the partition of Palestine into independent Arab and Jewish states would be necessary to settle the troublesome Holy Land question.

This informant emphasized, however, that the Cabinet had not decided whether Britain should impose partition on the country or refer the Palestine problem to the United Nations with a partition recommendation.

The source disclosed that, in the face of rejection of the idea of partition by Arab spokesmen at the British-Arab conference here, the Cabinet had discussed both the unilateral imposition of partition and the United Nations alternative.

Colonial Secretary Jones favored the first course, this informant said, while Foreign Secretary Bevin favored the second.

The informant added that the difference of opinion did not imply a Cabinet split.

"Any final settlement," he said, "would involve first, a measure of supervision by the mandatory power (Britain), and second, a period of transition during which the constitutional change-over would be effected."

Final settlement of the Holy Land dispute, he added, would be a two-way split between Arabs and Jews.

This would mean, he said, Britain would give up rights even to Haifa, terminus for the Anglo-Iranian oil pipe line, and to certain sacred places.

Expect Stalin to Ask For Military Alliance Between Russia, Britain

London, Jan. 29 (AP)—An official source said today that the government expected Prime Minister Stalin to call for a general military alliance between Russia and Britain to replace their present mutual assistance treaty.

The source added immediately that in principal Britain wanted "full co-operation" with Russia.

The present treaty provides for military co-operation between the two countries only in the event of aggression by Germany and her wartime satellites any time until 1962.

Although he said he could not pre-judge any Russian elucidation of the "reservations" which Stalin had said "weakened" the existing pact, the informant emphasized there was no reason to believe Britain would turn down a request for a general military alliance.

Such a military alliance between the two countries would in no way be in discord with Britain's obligations to the United Nations, the source stated.

Yesterday other foreign office sources reported Foreign Secretary Bevin already has asked Georgi Zarubin, new Soviet ambassador in Britain, to obtain a clarification of the reservations to which Stalin referred in his recent message to the foreign secretary.

Stalin, he continued, had expressed "satisfaction" with the explanation given to him personally by Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery in Moscow early this month on the British-American agreement to standardize certain arms and equipment to fixed United States sizes and patterns.

The Chief of the Imperial General Staff, according to the informant, had impressed on the Russian leader that the whole question of arms standardization had arisen between the United States and Britain "out of the experiences of the war". Some British officers, Montgomery was said to have told Stalin, had reported that various items of United States equipment and armament were considerably better than the British equivalents. Agreements to standardize followed.

Arising out of these talks, the U.S.A.A.F. and R.A.F. agreement to interchange 100 officers for training purposes had emerged as well, the source said Montgomery told Stalin.

When Montgomery pointed out that a similar exchange of officers between the British and Soviet armies could serve an extremely useful purpose Stalin, the source said, "did not object to this proposal in principle" but expressed the view that "this was not the time" for such an arrangement.

U.S. WITHDRAWS FROM BIG THREE GROUP IN CHINA

Established in 1945 to End Hostilities Between Chinese and Communists

Washington, Jan. 29 (AP)—The State Department announced today withdrawal of the United States from the "big three" group which was established in China in 1945 to end hostilities between the Chinese Central Government and the Communists.

State Secretary Marshall was chairman of the "big three" committee while he was in China in an effort to mediate hostilities between the opposing groups in that country.

A department spokesman said the announcement meant that the United States is withdrawing from all efforts to mediate differences between the Ceneral Government and the Chinese Communists.

Marshall left China early this month after making public a "personal statement" on the Chinese situation in which he said that "sincere efforts to achieve settlement "of the civil strife" have been frustrated time and again by extremist elements on both sides."

While Marshall was en route from China his appointment as Secretary of State to succeed James F. Byrnes was announced by President Truman.

In his statement Marshall said China's salvation lay in "the assumption of leadership by the Liberals in the government and in the minority parties."

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP)—Thirteen persons were left homeless today after fire of undetermined origin gutted a two-storey building at the suburban corner of Bank Street and Wilton Crescent. Damage was tentatively estimated at $6,000.

The fire believed to have started in a petition between two sections of a restaurant on the ground floor of the building was battled last night by firemen from five stations for more than an hour being brought under control.

The alarm was given when Bobby Lumsden noticed smoke sweeping through the floor of his parents' apartment on the second floor. He and his parents escaped to the street. All other occupants were absent.

FRIGID WEATHER CONTINUES TO GRIP BRITAIN

Many Villages Snowbound and Rail and Air Traffic Snarled

By MICHAEL O'MARA

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 29 (CP)—Britain today emerged shivering from the coldest night in air ministry records, kept since 1941, and Britons looked up to see more snow falling on many areas south of the Humber River with little prospect of the frigid airbelt from the continent completing passage across the British Isles before the weekend.

Many villages still were snowbound and road, rail and air traffic was snarled while most small boats remained tied up. Over parts of Kent gray clouds shed snow at the rate of six inches an hour while an easterly wind continued to pile roadblocking drifts.

At midnight the mercury stood at 18 and continued to fall.

Londoners saw swirling snow much of Tuesday and for a few mid-afternoon minutes watched the weatherman put on a brilliant though confusing display of versatility—simultaneous snow, sleet and fog.

It was colder by about 10 degrees throughout much of Kent, Essex and Northamptonshire where drifts up to 20 feet marooned many families and cut off normal supply routes to sizeable communities.

Bridges Not Cleared

R.A.F. bulldozers have not yet cleared the bridges to the Isle of Sheppey in the Thames Estuary. Five families at Nettleton in Lincoldshire were getting bread by rope railway. At Hastingleigh, Elmsted and Stelling in Kent, farmers sought fruitlessly to feed sheep buried for four days.

Coal supplies reached householders at Bethesda, Carnarvonshire, by sleigh. Buses were crawling through drifts outside Hastings, Kent. Their destination signs obscured, drivers scrawled the names of the routes in the snow clinging to windshields.

Percy Lambert, 60-year-old postman at Thiexendale, Yorkshire, carried the mail through drifts to villages although food supplies have not been reaching marooned farms since last week.

Although the snow in most areas was said to be the heaviest in 20 years the present temperatures make no history. In 1940 the temperature at Buxton in Derbyshire hit one below zero and the all-time British record of 23 below was set in 1879 at Blackadder, Berwickshire.

UNION OFFICIAL REPORTED ASKING SYMPATHY STRIKE

Decision to Extend Strike Made After Morning Meeting Fails in Agreement

Noranda, Que., Jan. 29 (CP)—Joe Rankin, international representative of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.) was reported today to have telephoned district co-ordinator T. F. McGuire at Kirkland Lake, Ont., to call a sympathy walkout of 22,000 miners in Northern Ontario and Quebec.

Decision to extend the strike at the big Noranda mine to other district mines followed a union meeting here between union officials and Capt. Norbert Labbe of the Provincial Police which broke up without an argument union spokesmen said.

The Noranda strike was called Nov. 22 in a demand for wage increases and a union check-off.

Capt. Labbe confirmed the break-up of the meeting, called to discuss picket arrangements at the gates of the gold and copper-producing mine.

"When the strike started two months ago an agreement was reached between Noranda mines Limited and the union local office staff and maintenance workers would be allowed to enter the plant under a pass system instituted by the Provincial Police," Capt. Labbe said in a statement.

"The maintenance workers to ensure water and electric services to the residents of both towns.

"Only a small detail of Provincial Police was sent up here to keep law and order.

"For two months the union respected this agreement and it was only when the union cancelled this arrangement last Thursday morning that more reinforcements of Provincial Police arrived."

First Journey Into 'Lost World' Proves Fruitless

Darwin, North Australia, Jan. 29 (Reuters) — The first recorded journey into the weird "lost world" of Central Arnhem, Northern Australia, proved fruitless for patrol officer Sydney Kyle who was forced to turn back by lack of water in his search for a mystery tribe which natives say are bound never to show themselves to white men.

The party reached what Kyle described as a "strange new land" —a treeless, waterless escarpment of rugged rock stretching endlessly into the distance.

They did not see a living thing under the merciless sun.

Kyle saw what appeared to be man-made carved faces of rock towering 300 feet, which he believes may be a ruined ancient city.

He plans to return during the wet season.

Modifications in Regulations On Canada--U.S. Air Travel Approved

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP)—Modifications in regulations governing flights between Canada and the United States have been agreed upon following discussions between officials of the two countries, Reconstruction Minister Howe announced today.

Announcement of the changes, affecting the 1945 air agreement between the two countries, followed several days of talks here, preceded by similar discussions in Washington.

Arrangements authorized:

1. United States aircraft now serving Ottawa and Montreal in separate flights from Washington and New York will be authorized to serve both Canadian cities on the same flights.

2. Canadian aircraft now operating between Toronto and Chicago will be authorized to stop at Windsor, Ont.

3. Canadian aircraft will be able to stop at Sault Ste Marie, Mich., on flights from Toronto to Winnipeg.

4. Further arrangements also will be announced later affecting non-scheduled flights between the two countries, Mr. Howe said.

Five Canadians, Methodist Bishop Among the Victims

Burned, Wrecked Machine Is Found West of Hankow

Shanghai, Jan. 29 — (AP) — A Chinese commercial airliner carrying United States Methodist Bishop Schuyler Edward Garth of Madison, Wisc., his wife, and 24 other persons including five Canadians, was found wrecked and burned 100 miles west of Hankow today.

The plane, second lost in the interior of China in four days, carried foreign missionaries and their children.

Other foreigners listed by the company, the Chinese National Aviation Corporation, included Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Vick of the American Baptists (north) of Cheshires, Conn.; their two children; Mrs. F. Miller and her three children, of Canada; and Mrs. B. Kitchen of the United Church of Canada.

Mrs. Miller was en route to join her husband who is attached to the China Inland Mission at Chengtu, Szechwan province. Her three children are Paul, four; Peter, seven; and Philip, believed to be an infant.

Mrs. Miller was a native of Auckland, New Zealand, and her husband was from Vancouver, B. C. They came to China in 1932.

Radio contact was lost shortly after the plane took off from Hankow. The wreckage was found 30 minutes' flying time from the field.

Airline officials aboard a search plane reported the transport was badly burned. One wing was seen half a mile from the wreckage, which led to the fear an explosion had occurred in flight and none had survived.

The crash area is in the same general sector being searched for the C.N.A.C. transport plane with 19 aboard which disappeared Saturday about 15 miles from Chungking on a flight from Hong Kong via Canton.

Toronto, Jan. 29 — (CP)—Mrs. Beatrice Kitchen, one of two Canadian adults and three children missing among 28 persons aboard a Chinese plane flying from Shanghai to Chungking, is from Griffin, Sask., and had left Canada only recently to join her husband, Rev. John Kitchen, veteran United Church missionary in west China.

High missionary officials of the United Church and officers of the China Inland Mission there were well acquainted with Mrs. Kitchen and her husband, but were unable to give information on the other adult Canadian missing — Mrs. F. Miller, 40. Mrs. Miller was accompanied by her three children, oldest of whom is seven. They said that so far as could be learned today Mrs. Miller was not connected with Canadian missionary activities in China.

Mrs. Kitchen with her husband was last at Hamilton, Ont., before Rev. Mr. Kitchen went to West China. He is manager of the United Church Press at Chengtu.

Seventeen Found Dead

Bogota, Colombia, Jan. 29 — (AP) — Avianca Airways officials announced last night that all 17 persons aboard an airliner which crashed Jan. 22 in dense jungles near the Magdalena River valley had been found dead in the wreckage.

Searchers had spotted the wreck from the air, several days ago. The plane carried 13 passengers and a crew of four.

Included among the list of dead were three Americans, Capt. Clifford Pitman of Los Nietos, Calif., the pilot, and two Gulf Oil Company officials — Paul H. Boots and Arthur Kimball Dacy.

LOST IN CRASH

G. J. Geysendorffer, famous Dutch pioneer aviator, who was chief pilot of the ill-fated Royal Dutch Airlines transport which crashed and exploded, killing 22 persons after taking off for Stockholm. Geysendorffer was formerly personal pilot for Van Lear Black, noted Baltimore publisher.

Death Resulted From Extensive Fracture of Skull

Sarnia, Ont., Jan. 29. (CP)—At the opening yesterday of the trial of Joseph Taylor, 26, for the murder of his 28-year-old wife, Rita, at their lakeside cabin last Nov. 30, Dr. Fisher, Ontario Government pathologist, said the woman's death resulted from a "very extensive fracture of the skull, with concussion and lacerations," and suggested the injuries were caused by a "severe beating".

Taylor, formerly of Hamilton, Ont., allegedly attacked his wife with a chair at their lakeside cabin at nearby Baxter's Beach. She died in hospital here 12 hours later without regaining consciousness.

He appeared undisturbed as Dr. Fisher described the victim's multiple injuries.

A broken kitchen chair and a suit of men's combination winter underwear with reddish-brown stains were produced as Crown evidence. Dr. Fisher said the chair could have inflicted the wounds he saw on Mrs. Taylor's body and said the stains could have been caused by the splashing of blood.

Defence counsel for Taylor asked Dr. Fisher, "would a person under the influence of alcohol and lacking the proper degree of control suffer greater injuries in such a fall."

"That might very well be," the doctor replied.

A nurse at the Sarnia General Hospital, Miss Elizabeth Finch, said Taylor seemed "very concerned" when informed of the nature of his wife's injuries. She said he told her, "I don't know what I would do if anything happened to her."

Miss Finch told the court she asked Taylor at the time of his wife's admission to the hospital how the woman's injuries were suffered, and quoted him as replying, "My wife had been out. She came in and I thought her nose was bleeding, and with that she fell on the floor."

The trial continues today.

26 KILLED IN CRASH OF CHINESE AIRLINER

Level-Crossing Crash Takes Three Lives

C.N.R. Passenger Train Hits Car Near Kincardine

One Occupant Critically Hurt, No Inquest Ordered

Kincardine, Ont., Jan. 29 (CP)—Three people were killed and one critically injured when a Canadian National passenger train collided with an automobile at the level crossing two miles south of Kincardine on the Blue Water Highway late last night.

The dead are: Mrs. Allen Grant, 29, Dungannon, formerly of Goderich; her four-year-old son Larry Grant; W. James Johnston, 28, Holyrood.

In Kincardine Hospital with critical injuries is Marjorie Williams, 19, of Goderich.

The accident occurred as passenger train number 177, from Palmerston to Kincardine, was nearing the end of its run. Conductor on the train was J. Collins of Kincardine, with J. Hollenbeck as engineer. Snow was reported falling at the time.

On Way To Goderich

The party was returning from a movie in Kincardine when the accident occurred. Only eye witness to the accident was Engineer Hollenbeck, of Kincardine, who said that he noticed the car slow down then speed up again as it approached the crossing.

The train was travelling at an estimated 35 miles an hour and was only four minutes out of Kincardine.

After the accident Mrs. Williams and Johnston who was still alive, were placed in the baggage car and brought to Kincardine. Johnston died on the way and Mrs. Grant shortly afterwards.

Not till some time later did trainmen learn there had been other passengers in the back seat of the car. Police found the body of Mrs. Grant 200 yards from the impact in a ploughed field.

Body In Field

In the corner of the field they found the body of her young son.

Mrs. Grant and Miss Williams were daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Williams of Goderich. Larry Allan Grant, one of the 3 victims, was an only child. Mrs. Grant, who was formerly Doris Williams is survived by her husband, who operates a chopping mill at Lucknow, four sisters, Marjorie, June, Ramona, Marilyn, and five brothers, Robert, John, William, Donald and Charles all of Goderich.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

First Journey Into 'Lost World' Proves Fruitless

Darwin, North Australia, Jan. 29 (Reuters) — The first recorded journey into the weird "lost world" of Central Arnhem, Northern Australia, proved fruitless for patrol officer Sydney Kyle who was forced to turn back by lack of water in his search for a mystery tribe which natives say are bound never to show themselves to white men.

The party reached what Kyle described as a "strange new land"—a treeless, waterless escarpment of rugged rock stretching endlessly into the distance.

They did not see a living thing under the merciless sun.

Kyle saw what appeared to be man-made carved faces of rock towering 300 feet, which he believes may be a ruined ancient city.

He plans to return during the wet season.

Modifications in Regulations On Canada--U.S. Air Travel Approved

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP)—Modifications in regulations governing flights between Canada and the United States have been agreed upon following discussions between officials of the two countries, Reconstruction Minister Howe announced today.

Announcement of the changes, affecting the 1945 air agreement between the two countries, followed several days of talks here, preceded by similar discussions in Washington.

Arrangements authorized:

1. United States aircraft now serving Ottawa and Montreal in separate flights from Washington and New York will be authorized to serve both Canadian cities on the same flights.

2. Canadian aircraft now operating between Toronto and Chicago will be authorized to stop at Windsor, Ont.

3. Canadian aircraft will be able to stop at Sault Ste Marie, Mich., on flights from Toronto to Winnipeg.

4. Further arrangements also will be announced later affecting non-scheduled flights between the two countries, Mr. Howe said.

Five Canadians, Methodist Bishop Among the Victims

Burned, Wrecked Machine Is Found West of Hankow

Shanghai, Jan. 29 — (AP) — A Chinese commercial airliner carrying United States Methodist Bishop Schuyler Edward Garth of Madison, Wisc., his wife, and 24 other persons including five Canadians, was found wrecked and burned 100 miles west of Hankow today.

The plane, second lost in the interior of China in four days, carried foreign missionaries and their children.

Other foreigners listed by the company, the Chinese National Aviation Corporation, included Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Vick of the American Baptists (north) of Cheshires, Conn.; their two children; Mrs. F. Miller and her three children, of Canada; and Mrs. B. Kitchen of the United Church of Canada.

Mrs. Miller was en route to join her husband who is attached to the China Inland Mission at Chengtu, Szechwan province. Her three children are Paul, four; Peter, seven; and Philip, believed to be an infant.

Mrs. Miller was a native of Auckland, New Zealand, and her husband was from Vancouver, B. C. They came to China in 1932.

Radio contact was lost shortly after the plane took off from Hankow. The wreckage was found 30 minutes' flying time from the field.

Airline officials aboard a search plane reported the transport was badly burned. One wing was seen half a mile from the wreckage, which led to the fear an explosion had occurred in flight and none had survived.

The crash area is in the same general sector being searched for the C.N.A.C. transport plane with 19 aboard which disappeared Saturday about 15 miles from Chungking on a flight from Hong Kong via Canton.

Toronto, Jan. 29 — (CP)—Mrs. Beatrice Kitchen, one of two Canadian adults and three children missing among 28 persons aboard a Chinese plane flying from Shanghai to Chungking, is from Griffin, Sask., and had left Canada only recently to join her husband, Rev. John Kitchen, veteran United Church missionary in west China.

High missionary officials of the United Church and officers of the China Inland Mission there were well acquainted with Mrs. Kitchen and her husband, but were unable to give information on the other adult Canadian missing — Mrs. F. Miller, 40. Mrs. Miller was accompanied by her three children, oldest of whom is seven. They said that so far as could be learned today Mrs. Miller was not connected with Canadian missionary activities in China.

Mrs. Kitchen with her husband was last at Hamilton, Ont., before Rev. Mr. Kitchen went to West China. He is manager of the United Church Press at Chengtu.

Seventeen Found Dead

Bogota, Colombia, Jan. 29 — (AP) — Avianca Airways officials announced last night that all 17 persons aboard an airliner which crashed Jan. 22 in dense jungles near the Magdalena River valley had been found dead in the wreckage.

Searchers had spotted the wreck from the air several days ago. The plane carried 13 passengers and a crew of four.

Included among the list of dead were three Americans, Capt. Clifford Pitman of Los Nietos, Calif., the pilot, and two Gulf Oil Company officials — Paul H. Boots and Arthur Kimball Dacy.

LOST IN CRASH

G. J. Geysendorffer, famous Dutch pioneer aviator, who was chief pilot of the ill-fated Royal Dutch Airlines transport which crashed and exploded, killing 22 persons after taking off for Stockholm. Geysendorffer was formerly personal pilot for Van Lear Black, noted Baltimore publisher.

Death Resulted From Extensive Fracture of Skull

Sarnia, Ont., Jan. 29. (CP)—At the opening yesterday of the trial of Joseph Taylor, 26, for the murder of his 28-year-old wife, Rita, at their lakeside cabin last Nov. 30, Dr. Fisher, Ontario Government pathologist, said the woman's death resulted from a "very extensive fracture of the skull, with conclusion and lacerations," and suggested the injuries were caused by a "severe beating".

Taylor, formerly of Hamilton, Ont., allegedly attacked his wife with a chair at their lakeside cabin at nearby Baxter's Beach. She died in hospital here 12 hours later without regaining consciousness.

He appeared undisturbed as Dr. Fisher described the victim's multiple injuries.

A broken kitchen chair and a suit of men's combination winter underwear with reddish-brown stains were produced as Crown evidence. Dr. Fisher said the chair could have inflicted the wounds he saw on Mrs. Taylor's body and said the stains could have been caused by the splashing of blood.

Defence counsel for Taylor asked Dr. Fisher, "would a person under the influence of alcohol and lacking the proper degree of control suffer greater injuries in such a fall."

"That might very well be," the doctor replied.

A nurse at the Sarnia General Hospital Miss Elizabeth Finch, said Taylor seemed "very concerned" when informed of the nature of his wife's injuries. She said he told her, "I don't know what I would do if anything happened to her."

Miss Finch told the court she asked Taylor at the time of his wife's admission to the hospital how the woman's injuries were suffered, and quoted him as replying, "My wife had been out. She came in and I thought her nose was bleeding, and with that she fell on the floor."

The trial continues today.

CALLS CONSIDERABLY AHEAD OF LAST YEAR

Calls for the fire department so far this year are considerably ahead of last year, it was noted today by department officials who pointed out that 28 calls had been answered, or one for each day of the month. On the same date last year only 17 calls had been answered.

With few exceptions, however, all calls this year have been for comparatively minor blazes with but little damage resulting in any instance.

One call was answered on Tuesday, a chimney fire on Station Street, which was promptly extinguished before damage resulted.

TRANSOM FALLS ON SCOUT COMMISSIONER

District Scout Commissioner E. J. Wolff, Peterborough, received an altogether different reception to what he expected when he attended the Scout conference held here over the weekend.

In one of the lecture rooms the transom above the door fell out of place, cracked him on the head and showered broken glass about his shoulder. A slight bruise on his head was his only injury, due mainly to the fact that he heard the transom collapse, ducked, and was struck only a glancing blow.

GROUNDHOG COMES OUT VERY EARLY TO HIS COST

Apparently tired of waiting until February 2nd which according to tradition is the day upon which hibernating animals are supposed to terminate their winter's sleep, a groundhog on the farm of Mr. Roy Pound, Thurlow township to use a popular expression "has beaten the gun" the other day sampled the weather outside his lair. Then the animal fell before an unerring shot.

While walking on his farm early this week Mr. Pound was surprised to see a groundhog amble across his path. The Pound's collie dog took up the chase and becoming frightened either at the dog or his own shadow quickly scrambled part way up a nearby tree The groundhog was large and ample fat still covered his frame which is stated to be unusual when animals first emerge from hibernation.

SCOUTS COLLECT 10 TONS OF PAPER

With one more week remaining for the Boy Scout paper salvage drive, members of the Belleville Boy Scout Association have collected approximately ten tons of waste paper and officers are optimistic of the objective being reached.

Co-operation of local residents with the Scouts has been very encouraging, according to Maurice Button, president of the Association, who noted that the next paper salvage collection by local Scouts would be on Saturday. Householders throughout the city were urged to have their bundles of paper ready for the Scouts when they call.

L.C.B. Inspectors Order Reduced Seating Capacity in Beverage Rooms

Drastic changes will take place in the immediate future in patron accommodation in city beverage rooms, it was learned today following the visit yesterday of Liquor Control Board inspectors.

The inspectors were in the city with a view to informing hotel proprietors of the new regulations of the Board with regard to seating accommodations and other phases of hotel action with regard to the sale of beer.

Present per capita accommodation will be cut down by varying percentages in different hotels, as the new regulations call for sixteen square feet per patron, or in some cases 64 square feet per table. Tables must be so arranged that waiters can walk all around them. This was designated by inspectors as being a protection for patrons in case of fire.

One hotel was ordered to remove almost one-third of its present seating capacity from the men's beverage room, while others will be reduced according to size and location of the rooms.

Conspicuous signs will be placed in the tap-rooms by the Liquor Control Board which will state the seating capacity of the room. This capacity must not be exceeded.

Owing to the reduction in capacity of men's beverage rooms, one hotel, it was stated, is considering the possibility of eliminating its ladies beverage room entirely and converting the reduced space to the use of male patrons.

War Bride Twins Still Hostile To Canadians

"We found Canadians narrow-minded and unfriendly, especially the women who obviously resented our having married Canadian boys."

The above statement is attributed by an English newspaper to the famous "Peterborough war bride twins" who married service men from that city, came to Canada, and later decided to go back to their native England with their babies.

The article, headed "England's Best, Say Twin Brides After Canada," was published on the arrival of the twins, Marjorie Harvey and Constance Grey.

The article goes on to say that the twins were "greeted by a brass band when they arrived in Peterborough. The twins, formerly known on the London stage as the 'Dancing Hudsons,' have arrived back in England."

"For all its rationing and clothing coupons, England is still the best place in the world to live in, but it took us a 4,000-mile trip to find it out," they told the English reporter.

"As a parting gift," they complained to the British scribe, "we received scores of anonymous letters accusing us of deserting our husbands for London's night life."

"But," they added, "we are still very much in love with our husbands who are selling their garage business and following us."

The husbands, Charles Grey and Thomas Harvey, are still in Peterborough.

Hogg's Resignation Received, Accepted

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP) — Dr. Thomas H. Hogg, 62-year-old chairman of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario, has resigned his post and the resignation has been received by Premier Drew, it was learned in official government circles today. The resignation will be presented to the next meeting of the provincial cabinet which usually sits on Thursdays.

In a broadcast speech Monday night Premier Drew announced that the government had asked for the resignation of Dr. Hogg on the grounds he failed on several occasions to communicate essential information to the government.

R.C.M.P. History Told Pupils Of Picton Schools

Picton school children in grades from six to eight in public and separate schools on Tuesday at the Regent Theatre in Picton, were told in brief the history of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police by two officers from the Belleville detachment, Cpl. H. G. Speers and Constable J. G. Story.

History of the RCMP from the time of its formation until the present day, together with the many duties which it performs, was outlined to the school children. Safety rules and regulations and the importance of them being observed was also emphasized by the officers.

The lectures to school children are part of a national campaign being conducted by the RCMP in the interests of safety. The lectures will be given at Trenton and at Bancroft and also at Bloomfield and Wellington, while it is expected the officers will also speak before school children in Belleville.

New York, Jan. 29 (CP)—In an air of solemnity, 1,000 persons stood up at the monthly luncheon of the Circus Saints and Sinners organization yesterday.

"Raise your right hands," commanded President Reginald Townsend.

Then he introduced Hal Ford, bearded actor, who intoned an oath of office pledging to uphold all that is good and dear. The audience stood hushed until Ford finished. Then on command they chorused "I do".

Whereupon Townsend broke the spell with "I now pronounce you Governors of Georgia."

Assessors have been instructed not to commence their duties on the 1947 assessment until these cards are in their hands.

Fashions in Tombstones Depend Partly on Racial Extraction

Toronto, Jan. 29—Granite quarried in Sweden on Hitler's orders for use as a memorial to himself has been offered for sale in Canada, C. Hepburn of Beebe, Que., said here yesterday at the Canadian Association of Memorial Craftsmen convention.

Reddish granite, with flecks of black, the total quarried on the German Fuehrer's orders reached 12,000 cubic feet, enough to fill 50 railway flat cars. Samples of the igneous rock have been sent to Canadian wholesalers.

Fashions in tombstones in Canada depend partly on racial extraction, L. H. Cole, engineer with the Department of Mines, said. An authority on granite, the most popular stone for memorials in Canada, Mr. Cole said: "You can't sell black granite to Jewish people for tombstones, they prefer reds, greys and greens." Scottish people prefer reds and the Swedish quarries call their red granite "Balmoral" or "Scottish red" with good sales results.

Dealer's Choice

Sometimes tombstone fashions depend upon the dealer's preferences, Arnold Campbell of Belleville, president of the association, said. "Up in Lindsay black granite predominates because it's the choice of a dealer up there and that's what he sells," Mr. Campbell said.

A new trend in cemetery tombstones is the unveiling ceremony as though the tombstone were a public memorial. "We will have an unveiling in Belleville in the spring for the tombstone of a prominent churchman who died recently," said Mr. Campbell. "The minister and other friends will take part in the ceremony with the family at the cemetery."

Mr. Campbell said that sentiment is coming back into the tombstone business. "Some people say that memorials in stone are a waste of money, but there is sentiment in them just as in flowers," he said. "People are coming back to that point of view."

Canada has granites formed under pressure from lava flow in pre-Cambrian days, in every province. They range from greys and blacks to greens and pinks. "Canada's Laurentian Rose granite is the hardest and finest in texture of any in the word," said Bert McIntosh of Montreal.

A blue granite, known as sodalite, and found near Bancroft, Ont., is almost in the class of a semi-precious stone, said Mr. Cole. "It is very beautiful, but can't be quarried in large pieces," he said. "It is crushed up and is used mostly in terrazzo flooring."

Two of Canada's outstanding memorials are of granite quarried in Riviere a Pierre, northeast of Three Rivers in Quebec, according to Mr. Cole, who will speak about granite at today's session of the convention. "They are the cenotaph at Ottawa, which has one block of granite weighing more than 40 tons, and the Jacques Cartier cross in Gaspe," he said.

Many Canadian cemeteries restrict tombstones to either granite or marble, and in Montreal the cemeteries will not permite limestone to be used even as a base. Mr. Cole said that in Canada the durability of marble cannot compare with that of granite because of the rigors of winter.

Rev. J.A. Terrill Dies as Result Of Accident

Results of a post-mortem performed on Rev. J. Allen Terrill, 73, at Kingston disclosed yesterday that he died from shock from multiple fractures, Dr. C. W. Bennett said.

Mr. Terrill died in hospital Monday night from injuries suffered when he was hit by a truck last Friday. A retired United Church minister, he was visiting friends with his wife here. The body has been sent to his home in Colborne.

The late Mr. Terrill was born in Wooler, 73 years ago, being the son of Marmaduke Terrill and Adelaide Young. After completing his early education in public and high schools he entered Victoria College and graduated with a B.A., B.D. degree in 1895 and immediately entered the ministry of the Methodist Church and later served with the United Church of Canada. He served as pastor in Little Britain, Cambray, Greenbank, Napanee, Pontypool, Consecon, Almonte and Grafton was his last charge.

Upon his retirement from the ministry he entered the life insurance field being a representative for the Dominion Life Insurance Company and through his ministry and business associations he made many friendships that have endured through the years. He was a man of fine quality, genial friendship and his rather sudden demise will be regretted by a wide circle in the Bay of Quinte district. Mr. Terrill also found time to mingle fraternally with his fellowmen and was a member of the Masonic Order and of the Foresters.

Surviving are his wife the former Kate Austin of Trenton and one daughter Miss Catherine Terrill at home.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this edition.

Britain's Prospect In Feed Grain Imports Biggest Since '39

By SIDNEY GAMPELL

London, Jan. 29 —(Reuters)—A cryptic remark made yesterday by Food Minister Strachey, that "we hope to be able to import the right things for feeding pigs and poultry later," refers to the big prospective imports of feed grain. They will be by far the biggest since the outbreak of the war.

Strachey made the remark at a press conference in which he discussed phases of Britain's food problems.

His reference to "later" means that a large part of the feed grain imports may not arrive until the fall. But the shipments should start increasing soon. It is authoritatively indicated here that the total quantity, when it can be announced, will be found gratifying.

This is a good augury for future supplies of beer and whisky. It is also good news for Denmark and the many other European countries which require feed grain imports.

It is understood that Britain's purchase of 500,000 tons of Argentine wheat is definite.

Feed grains from both North America and Argentina are dear, though not nearly so dear as wheat. But it is cheaper to import feed grains at almost any price than to import the meat, dairy products and eggs which they produce. Britain's shortage of hard currency thus works in favor of buying more grains as soon as they can be bought.

Film Featuring Canadian Scenes Enjoyed by Y.P.U.

An interesting technicolor motion picture titled "Down Where the North Begins" depicting Canadian life and scenery featured the regular meeting of the Bridge Street United Church Young People's Union held in the Sunday School rooms on Monday evening.

The meeting was held under the chairmanship of the fellowship convener, Miss Jessie Hart. Clarence Twiddy, president of the Union, presided over a brief business period followed by a devotional session which preceded the entertainment feature of the evening.

Friends Honor Recent Bride

Mrs. Gerald Calbury, (nee Regina Crossen), was recently feted by about thirty friends and neighbors in honor of her recent marriage, with a shower of miscellaneous gifts, at the home of her mother, Mrs. Harry Crossen, on North Front Street.

Guests were entertained with contests and games of bingo, for which several useful prizes were awarded the winners. Later, Mrs. Calbury was invited to stand at the head of the dining table, which had previously been made very attractive with a cloth of linen damask, centred with a bowl holding white carnations, on either side of which stood pairs of tall ivory tapers in silver holders.

Misses Verna Omstead and Doris Rodgers presented the guest of honor with a large basket completely covered with crepe paper in pastel colors. In the basket were attractive packages wrapped in matching shades. After opening the parcels, Mrs. Calbury expressed her thanks and appreciation, and invited her friends to be her guests in her own home in the near future.

(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Johannesburg, Jan. 29 —(CP) —South Africa is preparing the greatest welcome in its history for the Royal Family who reach Cape Town in H.M.S. Vanguard on Feb. 17.

After the King opens the 1947 session of the South African parliament, the Royal Family starts on a 58-day sightseeing tour of the Union by train, with short link-up journeys by car and plane.

The King and Queen and the two Princesses will see the largest wildlife reserve in the world —the famous Kruger National Park. One they have climbed out of the picturesque mountains of the cape, they will travel on a great inland plateau.

On this plateau lie Johannesburg, the Golden City, and its neighboring towns whose foundations are honeycombed with a labyrinth of gold mining shafts and tunnels. At Kimberley in the Cape Province the Royal Family will see fabulously rich diamond mines.

At wayside halts on the journey of more than 4,000 miles, many black faces will smile at the King, for 9,000,000 of South Africa's 11,330,000 people are non-Europeans.

One March day in the Basutoland Protectorate administered by the British government, 50,000 Africans mounted on hill ponies and wrapped in brilliant blankets will come riding down from their high mountains to greet the King.

Before returning to Cape Town to board the Vanguard again, the King and his family will fly to the self-governing colony of Southern Rhodesia to hear the thunder of Victoria Falls, the highest waterfall in the world.

In addition members of the Royal Family are to attend a formidable number of formal functions.

During the 66 days of summer they are in the Union, the Royal Couple and the Princesses will see a country that contrasts sharply with Canada, which they visited in May and June, 1939. For one thing, South Africa's mountains — unlike Canada's Rockies — are not snow-capped, as every mountain top is below the permanent snowline.

Admits Sadistic Mutilation Slaying Of 'Black Dahlia'

Los Angeles, Jan. 29 — (AP) — Daniel S. Voorhees, curly-haired and husky, was booked today on suspicion of murder after, police said, he signed a confession to the sadistic mutilation slaying of beautiful Elizabeth Short.

Detective Ed Barrett displayed a sheet of paper on which was written: "I did kill Beth Short." It was signed "Dan S. Voorhees."

Voorhees, 33, surrendered late last night after telephoning police he would be waiting on a downtown street corner. Barrett said he announced:

"I'm so sick I can't stand it any longer. I killed the 'black dahlia.' Take me to jail. I want to get it over with."

Miss Short, 22, was known to her friends as the "black dahlia" because of her penchant for flower head-dress and black clothing. She was found dead in a vacant lot Jan. 15. Her nude body had been battered and bisected at the diaphragm.

After signing the one-sentence confession Barrett reported, Voorhees declined to discuss the case further, saying:

"I've talked too much already. I want to see a lawyer."

Police said questioning would be suspended "until he recovers from his bewildered and befuddled state." Dr. Paul De River, police psychiatrist, reporting on a brief examination, said he could "come to no definite conclusion."

Police began an immediate check of several hotels where Voorhees reported he had been living, and police were notified in Phoenix, Ariz., where Voorhees said he has a wife and nine-year-old daughter.

The Phoenix police identification bureau reported that one Dan Voorhees had been arrested there five times, and in 1942 was questioned in connection with an assault to commit rape.

Looking to Future

Differences of opinion as to when atomic energy may be applied in industry for the lightening of man's labor are natural in view of man's short acquaintenance with this power. One opinion is expressed by economic experts of the United Nations of the improbability that this power will revolutionize the cost of power on this continent in the present generation or displace coal as the chief power fuel.

The other day in Montreal the view was voiced that A-power will become a serious competitor of coal and oil in power needs and uses and that it is hardly likely to be expected within the next ten years. One of the speakers said that "the very admission that it might not be more than ten years away is significant."

It is less than two years since the world heard the story of the harnessing of this energy of the atom. So that ten years would seem to be a short time to see the actual beginning of the use of atomic energy in industry.

This world at large has come to know something which man a very few years ago knew nothing of. He will never cease to work at the application of this great reservoir of resource and power to much of the labor that he has to perform. The though of atomic power as an aid to man's living will not be allowed to be forgotten. It will always be with mankind since man has come to have knowledge of this mysterious mighty energy.

Anglo-Egyptian Negotiations

While it is admitted that negotiations between the United Kingdom and Egyptian Governments on the question of the Sudan have reached an extremely delicate stage, hope has not been abandoned in London that agreement may still be reached.

Mr. Bevin saw the Egyptian ambassador twice last week. The United Kingdom ambassador in Cairo has had frequent conversations with the Egyptian Prime Minister, Mr. Nokrashy Pasha, who last week was received by King Farouk.

In fact contact is fully maintained while the quest for a Sudan formula satisfactory to both governments continues.

Thus the official United Kingdom appreciation of the position, namely that the door remains open to possible agreement, does not tally with the pessimistic outlook attributed to authoritative Egyptian sources in Cairo, which are reported to have described the negotiations as having broken down.

Apart from the Sudan question, agreement between the two governments on the proposed revision of the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty is complete.

Disagreement on the Sudan arises out of divergent United Kingdom and Egyptian interpretations of the Sudan protocol drawn up by Mr. Bevin and M. Sidky Pasha, then the Egyptian Prime Minister, in London last autumn.

No official text of that protocol has been made public. It is generally understood, however, that it embodied the following principles about which there is no disagreement of interpretation between the two governments.

Firstly, the present Anglo-Egyptian administration of the Sudan shall continue as established by the Condominium Agreement of 1899 until the attainment by the Sudanese of self-governing status.

Secondly, it remains the duty of the United Kingdom and Egyptian governments to facilitate the progress towards self-government of the Sudan.

Thirdly, the sovereignty of the Egyptian Crown over the Sudan is recognized as at present existing.

The issue on which United Kingdom and Egyptian conceptions diverge is that of the connotation of Sudanese self-government.

The Egyptian government maintains that Sudanese self-government must not exceed the limits of Egyptian sovereignty over the Sudan, which in the Egyptian view is perpetual.

The United Kingdom government holds that the right of self-determination to be exercised by the Sudanese, at the proper moment of political maturity, includes the right to choose full independence from Egypt just as much as the right to choose autonomy in a union with Egypt.

The United Kingdom government at the same time disclaims all intention to influence the Sudanese either for or against either ultimate status. The United Kingdom government, which has given repeated pledges to the Sudanese that they shall eventually be free to choose their own destiny, cannot sign away a people's right of self-determination in a treaty with a third party.

Among the suggestions put forward by the United Kingdom government to meet this difficulty was a proposal that the treaty should be signed, leaving the Sudan question to be settled later at a conference at which the Sudan would be represented. Another proposal was that a Sudan protocol should be attached to the treaty providing that both parties acknowledged the Sudan's right of free decision for the future. The United Kingdom government for its part would declare that it would do nothing to encourage the Sudanese to separate themselves from Egypt.

None of these suggestions has been accepted by the Egyptian government.

It is chiefly on the search for a formula of protocol satisfaction to both governments that the recent exchanges of views between London and Cairo have been concentrated. It is this search which has not been forsaken by the United Kingdom government.

There is talk in Cairo of the Egyptian government, in the event of the admitted failure of the two governments to agree on the Sudan, bringing the question — presumably the question of the duration of Egyptian sovereignty over the Sudan — before the United Nations. The legal grounds on which such an appeal to the United Nations could be made is not apparent in London.

What is clear is that if negotiations for the revision of the Anglo-Egyptian Treaty were finally broken off, then the existing treaty of 1936, which was freely entered into by both parties, would remain in force until 1956 unless both parties agreed to denounce it earlier.

Where Does "Frankness" End?

The frankness of so many modern novels is called progress, but we wonder if that is the right word for it. The smart writers sneer at the Victorians and their inhibitions and restrictions. They should read the great novels of Dickens and Thackeray, learn how master-novelists could handle a delicate situation without offence and without leaving any misunderstanding in the mind of the adult reader. Becky Sharp, in "Vanity Fair," is one of the great characters of fiction. Would she stand out so sharply in the memory if a modern writer had created her, had dotted every "I" and crossed every "T"? asks Ottawa Journal.

Non-Frosting Glass

A British safety-glass company with patents in use all over the world, brought out a type of glass during World War II which was successfully used for aircraft cabins. The glass also does not become dim when exposed to sudden changes of temperature and it always ensures perfect visibility. The same glass, in a still more improved form, is being produced for refrigerator doors, thus the housewife can easily keep a check on the contents of the refrigerator without opening the door.

In many things it is not well to say, "know thyself"; it is better to say, "know others".—Menander.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

"MY DEAR SIR"

(A Chicago man has started a movement to abolish the word "dear" from business letters.)

One hundred years or more ago
Began this salutation fervent,
To-wit: 'Dear Mr. So and So:"
The closing: "Your obedient servant."

But free men took a noble stand,
As they have done and will forever,
They had "obedient servant" banned,
And vowed henceforth to use it never.

Now comes a man who has no fear
Of writing plainly to his debtors.
He wants to drop the phrase "My dear"
From business and all dunning letters.

"Why call the fellow dear?" says he,
"At whom you daily feel like snarling.
As sensible 'twould seem to be
To start his letter with 'My Darling!' "

In short, to make his purpose clear,
If you dislike a man don't screen it;
Start "George" or "Chump," but not "My dear,"
Unless, of course, you really mean it.

One thing was quite apparent at the city council meeting last nigh. In fact it was so plain that to use an old expression," a blind man could have felt it with a stick," which is to say that the council this year contains as fine a bunch of orators as you would run across in a day's march and hardly any of them feel like hiding his light under a bushel. When they get their bearings you will not find a faster group of "single handed" talkers between Halifax and the North Pole. Many matters came up last night, some trivial, but they were all threshed out faithfully and earnestly. The most important matter was the council placing itself on record as being in favor of granting a fixed assessment to Hotel Quinte at $15,000.00 for a period of ten years, provided the hotel is rebuilt. The grant to the public library will be $1,000.00. the same as last year.

The visiting team was composed of players from the Rockwoods, Frontenacs and Queen's (second) teams. The following composed the Belleville team: Jamieson, Hulme, Stafford, Weller, Kelso, Lang and McGuire. The referee was Frank McKeown and the goal umpires were H. Parker Thomas for Belleville and W. S. Mirch for Kingston. The Kingston players were a fine gentlemanly lot and took their defeat in good part. Why don't the citizens of Belleville appreciate the fine team we have and turn out in lerger numbers to encourage them?

London Letter

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 29 —(CP)— The tourists' London is coming back to life.

There still are plenty of gaps in the list of things a pre-war visitor could see. When Lord Hacking, chairman of the British Travel Association, went to North America at the year end he could offer only "austerity" conditions to prospective tourists.

But here are some of the things that are back:—

The Tower of London is open to visitors and the museums are pretty well restored.

The National Gallery has brought its exhibits from their wartime underground storage rooms in a Welsh quarry and the Tate Gallery reopened with a Braque-Rouault show that brought an interruption from the league for sanity in art.

The Royal parks look better kept. The gun sites and army huts have gone and more attention is being given to the lawns and flower beds.

William III has been restored to St. James's Park and George III to Cockspur Street beside Canada House. King Charles' plinth is back again, but His Majesty awaits repairs with General Gordon for company. Eros, blithe spirit of Piccadilly, is in a London county council warehouse and his base is plastered with national savings and Palestine police enlistment posters.

Convent Garden is no longer a dance hall and is again presenting both opera and ballet. Drury Lane has reopened with a disappointing piece by Noel Coward. Music is having a boom.

Private entertaining on a lavish scale is just not possible with rationing as it is. Visiting dignitaries must be entertained by the government or an embassy instead of by individuals who own big city homes. A few hotels insist on evening dress in the main dining room but they are the exception, not the rule.

Probe Violations Of Civil Rights

Toronto, Jan. 29 (CP)—Establishment of a parliamentary committee to probe violations of civil rights in Canada was urged last night at a meeting of the civil rights union and the Toronto Civil Liberties Association.

Such a committee, it was suggested, should hear representations from individuals and organizations on "means of preventing future violations" and make recommendations for a Canadian bill of rights.

Speakers included Senator Arthur Roebuck; Leslie Roberts, author; Rabbi Feinberg, George Burt, Canadian Director of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), Andrew Brewin of the Toronto Association, with several hundred in the audience.

His Own Gallup Poll!

Ottawa Journal

Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan is quoted by the Regina Leader-Post as saying in a speech that "it's getting so that the man on the street has no faith in 90 per cent, of what he reads in the newspapers."

It is not an original complaint of course, but it is nonsensical today as ever it was. That celebrated "man on the street" accepts the accuracy of his newspapers as he accepts the purity of water from the tap; it never occurs to him to question either, because experience has shown him that they are entitled to his confidence.

Abuse of the newspapers comes with particularly bad grace from politicians who are made and sustained by the newspapers; the public does not take it too seriously. And that the statement of Mr. Douglas is nonsense is quickly demonstratable The circultion of most newspapers, even since the war, continues to increase steadily. If men and women were convinced as Mr. Douglas suggests, that 90 per cent of what they read in the papers is false, or at least unworthy of credence they would stop buying them.

A daily newspaper plant and its comprehensive news service nowadays cost a great deal of money and nobody with that much money to invest relishes risking it. Clearly if a newspaper is 90 per cent wrong in its information that curious condition can be brought about only by the deliberate design of its owners because it is far beyond any reasonable margin of error. But a newspaper so persistently untrustworthy soon would be known by its readers for what it is, and they wouldn't be readers anymore. That isn't the way profits are made and dividends paid, and lunacy rarely takes so extreme a form.

Wartime Powers Of Wheat Board May Continue

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 29—(CP)—Measures aimed at continuing the wartime powers of the Canadian Wheat Board as the sole purchaser of bread grains are expected to feature agricultural legislation to be presented to parliament during the session opening tomorrow.

The act establishing the board was passed some years ago and already is in statutory form but the government is expected to move for an extension of the war-created powers which make it compulsory for Canadian wheat growers to deliver their product to the board's agents.

This would mean that the Winnipeg grain exchange closed in 1942 when the board made such delivery obligatory, would continue to be impotent as a trading agency for the period of the extension, which possibly would be until 1950.

Informed circles said the government would be forced to bring in measures for the extension of those powers because they otherwise would lapse when the Emergency Transitional Powers Act, under which they were carried over from the war period, dies March 31.

Necessary to Extend Powers

These sources added that the Anglo-Canadian Wheat Agreement, under which Britain will buy 600,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat in the four years ending 1950, made it necessary that the powers be extended because the contract was between governments as opposed to private trading interests.

Before the war, there was no compulsion in the Board's operations and wheat growers could deliver their product either to the Board, which paid a fixed price, or to the exchange, where the world price prevailed.

In practice, farmers generally sold to the Board when its price was higher than the world rate and to the exchange when the free price was the better of the two.

However, early in the war the British government, through its food ministry, became the sole purchaser of Canadian wheat and, as the ministry would deal only with the government, the policy of compulsory deliveries was put into force.

Another major piece of agricultural legislation is expected to be a bill for the extension of the Prairie Farm Rehabilitation Act to cover the three western provinces. At present the act, under which small irrigation works and other land conservation is carried out, applies only to the arid prairie lands within what is known as the Palister Triangle, covering parts of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta.

A bill also will be introduced to extend similar conservation programs to the other six provinces.

CHALK TALK ABOUT CHALK

Admission is free, if you park your symptoms at the door, or at least refrain from telling or asking the doctor about your symptoms. Symptoms, my friends, are a proper subject of conversation with your physician in the consulting room or at your bedside. If you ask me, and even if you do not ask me, I tell the world that in my opinion as a health adviser, the less said about symptoms, except in the circumstances mentioned, the better.

I mean chalk — calcium carbonate. The identical substance found in the white cliffs of Dover and in the north of France and in beds for some 400 miles along the Missouri river in Dakota. Egg shell is almost pure calcium carbonate, or pure enough to take medicinally, when dried and powdered. The chalk used in crayons is not so purified or refined, although it is perfectly suitable for internal use as an antidote for oxalic acid poisoning for instance.

The preparation called "precipitated chalk" is a highly refined calcium carbonate that has not enough superiority to plain "prepared chalk" for internal use to offset its higher cost.

There are two good reasons why chalk (calcium carbonate) should replace sodium bicarbonate (baking soda, saleratus) as an antacid or alkali in domestic medicine or in self-treatment if you are goofy enough to fool along that way with stomach acidity, heartburn, "gas", bloating, hunger pain, sense of fullness or other manifestations of Yankee stomach. (Yankee, in my lexicon, means North American.) If you have an uneasy suspicion that maybe you should give yourself a break, I'll send you the pamphlet "Yankee Stomach", in written request if you provide a stamped envelope bearing your address. Suggestions in the pamphlet may be helpful whether you have peptic ulcer, emotional or psychomatic hyperchlorhydral smoker's duodenal ulcer complex or "indigestion" from abuse of the delicate gastric mucosa — abuse with condiments, physics, alcohol, concentrated sugar, unmasticated food.

The first reason for using chalk in place of soda in that the by-product of the chemical reaction between sodium bicarbonate and hydrochloric acid in the stomach is sodium chloride (common salt) and carbon dioxide (carbonic acid gas— the salt is purgative in effect, the gas—well very likely there is already more than the normal amount of gas present. The second reason is that, thanks to the excessive consumption of salt most people get too much sodium, and thanks to our overrefined diet, most Americans get insufficient calcium.

The by-product of the chemical reaction between chalk (calcium carbonate) and the hydrochloric acid in the stomach is calcium chloride and carbon dioxide (carbonic acid gas)—but much less gas than soda produces. Theoretically calcium chloride is irritating, at least when solutions of it are injected hypodermically or into the muscle, but practically, in the routine use of calcium carbonate as an antacid, there is rarely if ever any irritation of the stomach.

Notwithstanding its greater solubility for administration by injection under the skin or into a vein, calcium chloride is generally less desirable than other calcium preparations for prolonged internal use—calcium gluconate and di-calcium phosphate, for example. These are less disagreeable in taste.

But the calcium carbonate (chalk) is not at all objectionable in taste, and probably a considerable part of the calcium is absorbed into the blood when this antacid is taken, to be used in the body or excreted just as is calcium in such foods as milk, nuts and salad greens.

From five to ten grains of calcium carbonate will neutralize ordinary gastric acidity for a few hours or [illegible] enough of it to relieve distress. It may be taken three or four times a day if necessary.

Its effect is much enhanced by combining it with the recently developed magnesium trisilicate—about 7 grains of calcium carbonate with three grains of magnesium trisilicate, in a disc for convenience and accuracy, or in a powder containing these amounts if you prefer — patients with hyperchlorhydria of the kind associated with peptic ulcer may require two such discs or powders chewed or dissolved in the mouth, after meals and at bedtime, to control the acidity.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Is a bullet's greatest penetrating power near the muzzle?

A bullet does not necessarily have its greatest penetrating power close to the muzzle of the gun from which it is fired.

Penetration is not the measure of striking power and depends on the type of bullet and the composition of the object it strikes. A bullet has its greatest striking power where it has its maximum speed, which is generally near the muzzle of the gun; but it does not always have its greatest penetrating power at that point.

A bullet may have more penetrating power at 30 feet than at two feet from the muzzle because, as one writer expresses it, the bullet "goes to sleep" like a top and loses its "wobble."

Full metal patch bullets that the not supposed to upset upon impact give the greatest penetration at or near the muzzle of the gun. On the other hand, bullets that are supposed to upset or "mushroom" upon impact give the greatest penetration at their extreme ranges, or at the point where the velocity is decreased to such an extent that the expansion does not occur upon impact.

For instance, the .30 Winchester centre fire cartridge, with the soft point bullet, has a penetration of 11 "boards," whereas the same cartridge with the full patch bullet will penetrate 30 boards, the energy of both being the same. Other things being equal, the bullet that resists deformation most will generally give the maximum penetration. The bullets used in the U. S. Army service rifles at the time of the First World War usually give the greatest penetration at 30 to 55 yards from the muzzle. Tests show that pointed bullets fired into sawdust, sand, loam and materials of similar description have an increased penetration at long ranges. When pointed bullets were fired into moist sand the penetration was 10 inches at 50 feet, 14 inches at 100 yards, and 16 inches at 300 yards. When the same type of bullet was fired with equal force into boiler plate the penetration was .5 of an inch at 50 feet, .4 at 100 yards, and .1 at 300 yards.

Some materials offer less frictional resistance to soft bullets than they do to hard ones. The penetration of soft bullets might be greater in some substances than hard bullets of the same shape and size fired with the same force.

TAKING INVENTORY OF NAZI CONCENTRATION CAMP LOOT

The prodigious task of taking inventory of the millions of dollars in Nazi loot, found in such concentration camps as Buchenwald, Dachau and others, has been assigned to the foreign exchange depository, a branch of the finance division of OMGUS. Under the direction of Col. William G. Brey, of San Francisco, General Staff Corps, the treasure that failed to conquer the world is being evaluated. It is estimated that the total of all material housed here will run into the hundreds of millions At RIGHT, Hagosp Gamirian, Armenian-French jeweler, employed by the U S, as a technical expert to appraise stones and gold, is shown inspecting a bag of semi-precious and imitation stones. Miss Jessie Tuite Outlines Life Of Burns to Club

One of the finest addresses delivered to the Kiwanis Club in some time was given by Miss Jessie B. Tuite, B.A., to members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday, when she spoke on the life of Robert Burns, whose anniversary was celebrated on Saturday last. It was an inspiring address, given in beautiful style and her recital of some of the poems that made the Scotch poet a favorite of the world. The speaker was introduced by Taylor Franklin and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Lorne McDougall. President Jack White presided at the luncheon with Harold Carruthers in charge of the community sing and Frank Bolus collecting the several fines.

Past President Leaving.

It was a day of regret in the club because Jack McVeigh, past president of the club in 1944, is leaving to take a higher position with his firm in Sarnia. Mark Vanner expressed the regrets of the club on his departure and presented him with a slight momento as a remembrance of his many friends. Jack was so taken by surprise he was unable to say but little but he stated that the attachments made in the city by his wife and himself would remain with them through the years. Bert Reid, also a director of the club in years past, is being moved to Oshawa by his firm.

Lawrence Kells asked that committee chairmen send in their achievement reports and also Fred Symons collected the names of those bowling in the 'Owl League of the club."

Miss Tuite said in part:

Anyone with Scottish blood in the veins, (and I am very proud of mine) knows something of Robert Burns, Scotland's beloved bard; the man, who above all others expressed the characteristics of the Scottish people; their honesty, love of truth, hatred of sham, their patriotism and their piety.

When I first went to Scotland it seemed to me that only three persons mattered much to Scotsmen, i.e., Robert Burns, Mary Queen of Scots and Sir Walter Scott. They speak gently and pityingly of Mary. They tell you of her youth, her charm, her beauty, and say she was a martyr, offered up as a sacrifice on the altar of Elizabeth's jealousy, and in many a Scottish heart today there is still a feeling of bitterness about her execution.

An old guide, showing us the Queen's apartments in Edinborough Castle expressed it thus "Aye Mary was a bonnie lass, but that Elizabeth,—she was a bad yin."

Proud of Sir Walter

They are proud of Sir Walter Scott, and grateful to him. His writings have made parts of Scotland famous. Travellers come from all over the world to see the now peaceful Trossacks, and especially Loch Katrine, the scene of his "Lady of the Lake." Tentallon Castle (now in ruins) is the setting for the quarrel between Marmion and Douglas, and it has made Berwick countryside a mecca for tourists. His home, Abbotsford, with its turrets and battlements, might have been the setting for "Ivanhoe." In the library, where he feverishly wrote his novels to pay off a debt for which he could not be held responsible, is the centre of interest. There they tell you he did succeed in raising $275,000 of the $500,000 debt, but the strenuous work killed him and they add, "He would hae done it had he lived."

Burns Country

They are justified in their pride in this great man, but those two names fade into nothingness when Burns' name is spoken. His birthplace is given over to his memory. Within a radius of 20 or 30 miles it is called "The Burns Country." His tenderheartedness, his love of humanity, country and nature, his respect for truth and honesty his hatred of injustice and prejudice, his sympathetic understanding of the poor, who in their hard battle for existence yet hold pride of worth above all else are his sentiments. He is their mouthpiece. Scottish people are diffident about expressing their innermost feelings—Burns did it for them. They excuse his shortcomings, and his faults. They his sins and say—"the odds were against him from the start, and he became great in spite of these handicaps, because greatness was within him."

Robert Burns was born in Ayr in 1759, in a part of Scotland rich in scenery, but poor in almost everything else. His father William Burns, struggled to earn a living on a small piece of land on the banks of the River Doon, and the beauty of this place inspired the writing of many of Robert's poems. His father was an unusual man of sterling worth. Thomas Carlyle said of him, —"Robert Burns was fortunate in his father—a man of thoughtful intense character, valuing knowledge, possessing some, open-minded, friendly, fearless, devout." Surely this was high praise from the learned and often cynical Carlyle.

Eldest Son.

Robert was the eldest of seven children. He attended school for three years at Alloway, working every day after hours trying to earn a little and help the struggling family. They moved several times, the father vainly trying to better himself. During these years Robert attended Dalrymple Parish School and Ayr Academy, but the most important part of his education he received from his father and from his own reading. His schooling left him with a good grammatical knowledge of English and French.

He knew the Bible, Shakespeare, the poets, Dryden, Spencer, etc., the list is long, but it is sufficient to correct the idea that Burns was an uneducated man. At the age of 16 his father died, and Burns was doing a man's work, trying unsuccessfully to keep the family in comfort.

The first poetry that Burns mastered was satire. He hated hypocrisy and deceit. The condescension with which those in the higher ranks treated the less fortunate, filled him with disgust and loathing. The story goes, that Burns was invited to the home of an Earl to read his poetry at dinner (for by this time he was a local celebrity.) Naturally, thinking he was a guest, he presented himself at the main entrance at the dinner hour,—but was taken to the servants' quarters and told to wait until the Earl sent for him. Instead of leaving in anger, he sat down and wrote that poem which every student reads at some time of his education, "For a' That, and a' That"

Received With Open Arms.

In 1786 his first volume of poems took his readers by storm. It brought him less than $100, but introduced him to the literary set in Edinburgh, where he was received with open arms, welcomed, feasted, admired and patronized. Sir Walter Scott wrote at his first sight of Burns: "I was only 15 years old but I read his poetry, and I would have given the world to have known him." He had a native dignity which made him at ease wherever he went.

No one ever had a keener sense of humor than Burns. His address to the toothache shows how he could laugh at himself, and it takes a great humorest to find anything amusing in an aching tooth. His unholy glee in church, watching a louse crawling over the bonnet of the haughty lady who withdrew to the end of the pew, lest her skirts tough the other occupants, is expressed in the oft quoted lines, "O would some power the giftie gea" us To see ourselves as ithers see us."

His love of country expressed itself in his soul-stirring battle cry of "Scotts Wha Hae, wi Wallace bled." His love of nature is shown in his poem of the little flower turned up by his plowshare. The mouse, whose nest he destroyed,—picking it up he realizes that men and mice are often alike in that things go wrong, and plans are upset for both.

Made Excise Man

In 1788 he was made excise man, and life became a little easier in the money sense. In 1791 he moved to Dumfries, but made little or no money out of his poetry there. Late in that year he contributed 100 songs to a collection of Scottish airs compiled by Thompson, and for these he received a picture, a shawl for money. Of the next four years money. Of the next wour years there is little or nothing to record. Drudgery and poverty made him lose heart, bad companions and dissipation brought on his downfall. He died at 37 in Dumfries, self defeated and embittered.

Appealed To World

Not many people are remembered with such tenderness and love as is Robert Burns,—a man who had scarcely travelled a few hundred miles during his whole life, yet who was able to write the poetry which appealed to the whole world. Whenever we sing "Auld Lang Syne" we pay unconscious tribute to him, and on every 25th of January, wherever Scots are gathered, (and you'll find them at the uttermost parts of the earth) this birthday is remembered and homage is paid to this man, who like "Abou Ben Adam," made only one claim that he loved his fellowmen. So long as men love freedom, believe in truth, admire honesty the name of Robert Burns will be loved and revered.

He is not Scotland's alone, although he is her son; he belongs to all the world.

THREE DAUGHTERS IN WELL

Yadkinville, N.C., Jan. 29 (AP)—Gene Scales, 30-year-old tenant farmer, was held in jail here today on a charge of killing his three small daughters by throwing them into a well at his home Monday night. Sheriff's deputies quoted his wife, Ruth Louise, as saying he suddenly broke out with a shout, "Jesus says we got to go," and hurled the children into the well. He followed them in and could be heard singing, praying and shouting, she said. After a time he pulled himself out.

TWO BODIES EXHUMED

Cornwall, Jan. 29 — (CP) — Bodies of the two victims of last August's pig-knife slaying were exhumed yesterday and authorities said the action was taken on authority of Attorney-General Blackwell of Ontario and "in pursuit of further evidence."

The bodies were those of Mrs. Mary Jane Lama and her nine-year-old daughter, Mary Elizabeth, found stabbed to death outside their tin-shack home at nearby Harrison's Corners. Mrs. Lama's husband, William Earl (Bowser) Lama, was captured after a 71-day police hunt throughout eastern Ontario and charged with murder.

Lama, a short, wiry man who made part of his living by working on district farms and part by killing pigs for farmers, is in jail here awaiting trial in Ontario Supreme Court in February.

Doris, who has an eighth grade public school education, told reporters her lack of a better education had kept her from getting a good job.

Secret Session Before Voting On Nominations

Washington, Jan. 29—(AP) — United States senators who heard reports of "serious breaches" in atomic energy security decided today to hold secret sessions before voting on the nominations of six men to fill the country's top atomic jobs.

Chairman Bourke B. Hickenlooperl (Rep.-Iowa), of the Senate Energy Committee, told reporters a vote is unlikely before next week although he hoped to wind up public hearings today.

The security leaks were reported by David E. Lilienthal, president Truman's choice for chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission.

The "biggest breach," Lilienthal conceded under questioning by Senator Brien McMahon (Dem.-Conn.), was publication of the official Smyth report of the broad technique of nuclear fission.

Lilienthal said publication of that report was authorized by President Truman and by Maj.-Gen. Leslie R. Groves, head of the United States Army's Manhattan district which controlled development of the atomic bomb.

He added that the report told of four different ways — all successful — of splitting the uranium atom.

The witness was non-committal when McMahon asked whether the report had not brought other countries a year and a half or two years closer to the final result.

Lilienthal said publication of the report in 1945 "may have been necessary" but "it made the chore of shoring up security a tremendously hard one."

"It is difficult to be temperate in saying how difficult it has made our task," he added.

It was the 10th Japanese mine he had detonated along the Washington-Oregon coast within a year.

Canada Urged To Maintain U.K. Bacon Trade

By JACK AVESON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Jan. 29 (CP)—The 11-th annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture today began consideration of resolutions concerning national livestock and feed grain policies after hearing Sir Andrew Jones, head of the British food mission in Ottawa, urge Canadian farmers to maintain their bacon trade with the United Kingdom.

Sir Andrew warned in an address last night that Canada is "definitely in danger of throwing its overseas bacon market away.

"Denmark and other European countries are certain to make a determined effort to recover their position in the British market. The trend of the last two years has indicated that Canada is going to allow them to do so at the expense of its trade. Bacon production has declined by 50 per cent since 1944 and for this sharp fall the farmers in the Prairie provinces are entirely responsible.

"Experience has shown how unsound is an economy which is based on one product. The day may come when your incomes from grain will not be sufficient to meet your needs. You will then regret having yielded your market for bacon to your competitors."

Sir Andrew said that Canada at the moment was in a favored position if she wished to continue her bacon trade with Great Britain. "It remains for the farmers to pay heed to the advice of their government officials and to respond to the financial encouragement extended to them."

At present Canadian trade with Britain in the field of wheat, products was protected by agreements extending in some cases, until 1950. The possibility of free competition after the expiration of these agreements would have to be kept in mind, he said, "but there is still no reason I can see why Canada should not retain her position as Great Britain's largest supplier of wheat."

MARRIAGE NOTICE

FLOWER—HOLLAND — The marriage ceremony of Mrs. Catherine Olive Holland, daughter of Mrs. Carr and the late Mr. Chas. Carr, of Belleville, to George J. Flower, of Toronto, took place Saturday January 25th, 1947, in Ottawa.

Mr. Ross Rogers, of Marmora, was a recent visitor with friends in Belleville.

Mrs. C. . Cousins, of Oshawa, is a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Tilley, Alexander Street.

Mrs. N. O'Connor Beatty, of Pembroke, Ont., lady district officer for Eastern Ontario, inspected Belleville Nursing Division No. 150 of St. John Ambulance Brigade, on Tuesday evening, during the regular meeting of that organization held in the new Brigade headquarters at the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street.

Among the many pre-nuptial parties honoring Miss Dorothy Evans, bride-elect of this week, was an evening bridge party in the home of Mrs. Harry Tamblyn, Cedar Street, with twelve guests present. Miss Evans was the recipient of a silver entree dish and a crystal rose bowl in the cornflower pattern, the presentation being made by Mrs. Tamblyn.

Mary Eleanor, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Lucas, underwent an operation in the Belleville General Hospital recently and friends will be glad to learn she is progressing favorably.

WEDDINGS

SCOTT—JOHNSON

At half-past three o'clock on the afternoon of Jan. 25th., the home of the groom's parents was the scene of a quiet, but very pretty wedding ceremony, when the Very Rev. Dr. N. A. MacLeod, of Brockville, Ont., united Miss Esther Victoria Johnson, of Edmonton, Alta., daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Johnson, of Chauvin, Alta., with Mr. Gerald Edward Scott, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Scott, Bleecker Ave., the marriage taking place before the fireplace, flanked by tall white standards holding potted ferns, and the mantel decorated with bowls of cut flowers and ivory tapers in silver candelabra.

The bride, given in marriage by Mr. N. G. Williamson, made a charming picture in a gown of ivory satin, designed with long sleeves, the bodice being brocaded in velvet, with a floor-length net skirt over satin. Her shoulder-length veil of embroidered net fell from a velvet halo, and her bouquet was of calla lilies and forget-me-nots.

Miss Mae Kingston, of Brockville, was the bride's only attendant. She wore a floor-length gown of blue sheer, fashioned with shirred bodice and short puffed sleeves. Her matching shoulder-length veil fell from a small net headdress, and she carried an arm bouquet of red roses.

Mr. Hubert Bruce Scott ably performed the duties of groomsman for his brother.

Following the ceremony buffet afternoon tea, with a salad plate, was served to the assembled guests seated in the dining-room around the central tables of the bridal party. The groom's mother wore an ensemble of grey crepe, the neckline outlined with seed pearls, and her corsage was of red roses. The bride's parents were unable to be present.

For travelling to Toronto,: the bride chose a brown gabardine suit, with matching hat and accessories, topped by a muskrat fur coat. She wore a corsage of roses. Mr. and Mrs. Scott will later reside at 147 West Bridge Street.

Out-of-town guests were from Mallorytown, Brockville and Kingston.

Prior to his marriage, Mr. Scott, who is a member of the C.N.R. staff in the Divisional Engineer's office, was honored by his colleagues in the presentation of a table lamp.

ANOTHER CUT COMING

Glasgow, Jan. 29 — (Reuters)—Britain will get another 15 per cent cut in whisky supplies if distilling is not resumed soon, John L. Sloan, president of the Glasgow and District Trade Defence Association declared here today.

When Children's Eyes Are Bigger Than Their Stomachs...

Unusual is the child who does not get sick or upset at times from overeating candy and other rich goodies. But, Mother, there is no need now to administer drastic, old-fashioned laxatives which may shock a child's system and leave them feeling weak and listless. V.O.N. NEWS.

Members of the Victorian Order of Nurses Committee held the January board meeting in the Chamber of Commerce, with the President, Mr. N. E. Edwards, in the chair. An excellent report of the nursing activities for the month of December was presented by the nurse in charge, Miss V. Adair.

During the business of the meeting it was decided that the local board members would contribute to a sum which is being collected throughout the branches in Canada as a gift for Miss Elizabeth Smellie, as a recognition of the great work she has accomplished during the twenty-three years she has been Chief Superintendent of the Order. Miss Smellie is retiring in April after devoting herself untiringly, through the Victorian Order of Nurses, to the welfare of Canadians.

Plan Annual Meeting

Following the meeting the committee in charge of arrangements for the annual meeting on Feb. 17th held a session, to make plans for the event at which the guest speaker is to be the Hon. Russell Kelley, Minister of Health for the Province of Ontario..

In her report, Miss Adair outlined the progress of the immunization program to which the Victorian Order Nurses gave every assistance to the Medical Health Officer, Dr. G. S. Cronk. Thirteen children were given a dental examination by Dr. Jack Marshall.

The month of December showed fifty-one new patients were admitted and 411 visits made to all patients. There were 197 visits made to new mothers and babies for demonstrating the baby's bath and to weigh babies.

Conference Attendance Increases

Four Child Health Conferences were held with an attendance of 91 babies. This is an increase of 20 over December, 1945. Mrs. Madill and Mrs. Burton have been very faithful in attending all conferences and the nurses extended thanks to them for helping so much in making the conferences run so smoothly.

A cheque for $25 from the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. was acknowledged with sincere appreciation.

School Work Augmented

The work at Cannifton School is progressing very nicely and the parents seem very appreciative of the service. A Home and School Club is to be organized this month and they have asked the nurses to attend. Victorian Order Nurses began school nursing work at St. Michael's Academy this month. Miss Johnson from the Ontario Department of Health visited Belleville this month and gave valuable assistance in organizing the program for this work. Miss Johnson was present with Miss Adair at a meeting of the Catholic Women's League held on Jan. 13th., at which the school work was discussed.

While in Ottawa over the New Year's holiday, Miss Adair was in touch with Miss Hall at National Office and she asked if it would be possible to have the nurses give experience to three University students this Spring instead of two. On discussion this was found agreeable to the Board.

AWARD TO CANADIAN

Mrs. Ernest Gimpel, former Canadian war worker Kathleen Moore, is shown in London after announcement that she had been made an O.B.E. (Order of the British Empire) for services during military operations in northwest Europe. At the outbreak of the war, Mrs. Gimpel was a student at the Sorbonne in Paris. She then worked in the British military attache's office in Paris and in 1940 came to London, working in the French liaison section of the War Office. Part of her work was to brief French agents who were parachuted into France. One of them was her husband, a French tank officer. She did not see him again until June, 1945, when he was liberated from the last of three concentration camps. They were married in London last August on the day she was demobilized.

Christian Missions Group of Y.P.U. Presents Program

The Christian Missions group of Holloway St. Y.P.U., convened by Jeanne Marshall and Ruth Plane, presented a novel and interesting program at Monday evening's meeting. This special "Floyd Honey Night" was planned to acquaint the members with the project undertaken by all the Young People's Unions in the Bay of Quinte Conference, to support through prayer and givings, Rev. and Mrs. T.E.F. Honey, who, in December, with their two children, sailed for China, to work on the West China Mission Field.

Tells of Call to Service

Maude Burke told the group the story of Rev. Honey's call to service on the Overseas Field, as related by him at the Young People's Conference last fall, a story very touching in its simplicity and very convincing as to the power of prayer in human lives. Two letters written by him to the group were read, in which he expressed the hope that they would some day meet some young people from this Conference whom God will call to serve in China. Rev. Honey also emphasized the need for all Christians to get 'on fire' for the missionary cause, to give more, and to pray more.

The theme of the worship service, which followed was: "The Light of the World." The group was divided in two. One side had lighted candles, representing those who have heard the gospel. The other side with unlit candles represented those in darkness. Shirley Hitchon sang a lovely solo "The Light of the World is Jesus", following which Ruth Plane led in prayer. Members of the group with lighted candles then quoted Jesus' words which showed that there is a way that the darkness in every land may be overcome — through Christ, who is the Light of the World and the Way. A poem entitled: "Ye Are the Light of the World" was read by Hilda Treverton.

Quiet Music Played

While quiet music was played those whose candles were burning, lit the candles on the other side, representing by this act the sending of the gospel to those who have not heard it. These members then told the difference made to those living in the dark places of the world by the gospel brought by the missionaries: truth in place of ignorance; health in place of disease; hope of salvation in place of fear; knowledge in place of superstition; regard for the sacredness of human life.

This service was closed with the singing of "The Morning Light in Breaking."

During the business period invitations were accepted from Centenary Y.P.U. to sleigh-ride on Friday evening and from Christ Church A.Y.P.A. to an inter-church Fireside on Sunday evening. The sing-song was led by Shirley Hitchon and the recreation period was in charge of Max Maguire. Marion Allen was the pianist. Good wishes were extended to Ralph Lewis who is leaving to attend school in Hamilton. The singing of "We're On the Upward Trail" and prayer led by Rev. C. A. Perkins, brought a most enjoyable evening to a close.

National Health Topic of Discussion

National Health was the topic studied at the Young Women's Guild meeting, held Monday evening at the home of Mrs. George Wishart, 154 Dufferin Avenue.

Mrs. Harrison presided. During the business period it was decided to contribute $10 to the China Relief Fund.

A letter of thanks was received in response to the parcels of food and clothing previously sent to the French child, who is a war orphan.

Miss Josephine Tickell was in charge of the program on National Health. In the devotional period she stressed the connection between our physical and spiritual selves, and the importance of taking proper care of the body, in order to be able to make the best contribution possible.

Mrs. M. P. Buck, Mrs. G. Stanton and Mrs. J. Buchanan assisted in presenting the information regarding National Health. The necessity for something concrete being done was shown by certain alarming statistics. During World War II the losses from infant mortality in Canada totalled 130,000, while the losses of the combined Army, Navy and Airforce totalled 41,000. This shows definitely that something in connection with prenatal and postnatal care should be done. The percentage of infant mortality is considerably higher in the rural than the urban centres, due partially to the majority of doctors, nurses, hospitals and other facilities being located mainly in the larger centres.

Certain things are already being done. There are Federal grants for TB clinics, for patients with mental diseases, for crippled children, and for the civilian blind. The chief difficulty at present is the lack of trained personnel and sufficient hospital accommodation. The Federal government are conscious of the importance of a health program and have appointed commissions to study it and drafted several bills, but as yet no definite action has been taken. Until the present Dominion Provincial tax agreements are settled it will not be possible to put any health program into effect.

Many thinking Canadians are seriously concerned about the national aspects of health planning. It is evident that the needs are great and the present facilities inadequate.

Medical science has advanced remarkably in the last two decades, insulin, vitamins, hormones, sulphas, penicillin, yet what a mockery, if this increased knowledge is not resulting in proportionately more abundant health for people. No stream rises higher than its source—no nation greater than the people who are her citizens. If Canada is to inherit rich destiny, health must be planned on a national scale.

Considerable discussion followed. Mrs. Cornish and her committee served refreshments.

Cancer Institute To Wage Campaign On Dread Disease

Ottawa, Jan. 29 (CP)—Canadian health authorities moved today to launch a national attack against cancer, second-place grim reaper of human life in the Dominion with an annual toll of between 12,000 and 14,000 persons. Heart disease ranks first.

The campaign will be launched through a national cancer institute, backed by the best brains of medical science in the country and money from the Dominion treasury and from the people themselves. Its objectives will be to encourage early treatment of of cancer and to stimulate and co-ordinate research work through cancer's cause maybe discovered.

The institute was formed yesterday before the close of a two-day cancer conference by the Federal Health Deparment. The conference brought together representatives of the Federal and Provincial Health Departments, the Canadian Cancer Society, the Medical Research Division of the National Research Council, the Nine Medical Colleges, the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, the Canadian Medical Association various public health bodies and representatives of universities and active cancer treatment centres.

Drafting of Charter

The meeting set up an interim committee of 13 to complete drafting of a chapter and bylaws for the institute. It was hoped to complete the work by September when another general conference will be held but in the meantime the institute will proceed with such part of the program as is possible.

It will; for instance, consider assistance of cancer research workers, granting of scholarships and fellowships and study what encouragement might be given to cancer work in any part of the Dominion.

Dr. G.D.W. Cameron, Deputy Minister of Health, promised that the institute would attempt to make certain that anyone with anything to contribute to the cancer fight would not be hampered by lack of funds or facilities. But the institute would be a voluntary body and would not replace in any way the Canadian Cancer Society which he said was "deserving of all the support it can get."

Dr. C. H. Best, prominent Toronto research doctor, said some of the tools for cancer research were coming from the atomic energy development plant at Chalk River, Ont. This research might make earlier recognition of cancer possible.

Dr. A. W. Blair of Regina, director of the Saskatchewan cancer commission, was appointed chairman of the Interim Commission.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Friends Who Long To Help

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband died recently, and our friends were extremely kind and thoughtful in coming to offer their sympathy and their help. Would they expect me to return these calls when I am able to do so? I deeply appreciated their goodness to me, and I don't want to omit doing anything I should do, even if it would be difficult for me at present.

A. G. B.

No, dear lady, your friends will not expect you to return their calls of sympathy, and they would not, of course, want you to take on such a burden. Perhaps, however, when you feel you can, you would like to write them little notes (they need be only a sentence or two) of appreciation for their goodness, and also if you feel you would like to, ask them if they would drop in to see you sometime soon. In other words, your devoted friends, rather than expecting you to come to see them, will welcome word that you again want to establish contact by letting them come to see you. And this kind way-of-friendship would, I know, be of wonderful help and comfort to you in the so-difficult adjustment of these days.

Formal Name for Package-Sending

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

To settle a dispute, will you please answer this question: When a married woman orders an article to be sent to her at her house, what form of name should she give to the salesperson?

S. R.

Her formal name:
Mrs. John Robinson

Present for Kind Emperor and Wife

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My employer and his wife, both of whom have been very nice to me, are leaving the end of this month for a trip to the South. I have never given either one a gift, but they have done so many pleasant things for me that I thought it might be a good idea to give them a little going-away present. Do you think this might be considered presumptuous an my part? If you approve, what do you suggest I send them?

Sara

I do approve. Since your employer and his wife have been so kind to you, here is an opportunity for you to make a return bow to them. I'm sure they will appreciate your thoughtfulness, and will not consider it at all presumptuous. But I think your gift should be a very simple one: perhaps a carefully chosen book, or a group of current magazines, or a box of candy, maybe of various kinds of peppermints (which are "good travelers"). And, enclosed with your gift, a gracious note of good wishes for the trip.

Don't Wait Till All Guests Have Arrived

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When my husband and I are having six or eight guests to an informal dinner, is it proper to serve the cocktails after the first couple arrive, or should we wait until all the guests have arrived?

Hostess

Don't wait for all the guests to arrive. That gets the party off to a slow, awkward start.

Thank-You Note To Her Co-Workers

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell me how I should address my note of thanks for a wedding present I received from a group of co-workers in the office where I have worked for several years?

Rita

If (as I hope) individual names of the givers were listed on the card enclosed with the gift, you should write a personal note of appreciation to each one. But if the card carried such a general signature as "From the girls in your office", you'll have to write a general note of thanks with the envelope addressed to the workers in the department, and with the salutation perhaps "Dear Friends".

Informals Used for Invitation-replies

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When I read some time ago in your column about the uses of Informals, I didn't own any. But now that I have some (Christmas present!), would you tell me if it is proper to acknowledge invitations on them, as well as to write invitations on them? If so, how?

Marge

Yes, it is proper to acknowledge on an Informal an invitation written on an Informal. If you are accepting the invitation, you may write, on the inside page of the Informal:

Delighted to come
January 10, at five o'clock or:

With pleasure!
January 18, at 8 o'clock

If you are regretting, you may write:

I'm so sorry I can't come
January 11th. I'll be out-of-town.

Fashion Flashes

WELCOME HOME to pleats, generously cut sleeves and other style details restricted during the war years. For southern wear, there are charming playsuits with shirtwaists tops, and all-around pleated skirts over matching, brief shorts. The fabrics include pure silk crepe and the finest of thin wool crepes.

THE FORECAST, so far as millinery is concerned, is for continued emphasis on the small, head-hugging hat. For resort wear, one house shows a small, head-fitting bonnet of natural, rough Mexican straw made with a tiny off-face roll that extends down over the ears and around to the low back. A flange of dark brown veiling is studded with rhinestones.

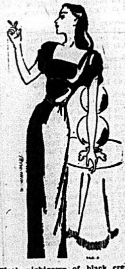
ON THE BEACH it would seem that every other gal is wearing one of those boxy toppers in white terry cloth or thin wool, made with a matching hood that is very peaked, the hood starting from the high one-button closing.

NICE NOVELTIES abound in bags prepared for Spring. Green or red lizard is used for a bag built on birdhouse lines. The slanting "roof" top opens out in two parts from the centre to reveal two mirrors.

HANDS OUT for handsome gloves. Very pale shell-pink mocha suede is used for a beautiful glove of six-button length, the cuff decorated with swirls of hand-faggotting. The glove is hand-whipped.

WE APPROVE heartily of those youthful little afternoon-into-evening frocks fashioned of white wool. A pretty number has a deep, oval neckline scalloped and embroidered in gilt thread, with additional gilt thread embroidery on the forearm of the long sleeve. Dress has simple self belt with small, gilt-embroidered pouch pocket.

Black Beauty



Sleek nightgown of black crepe satin

By VERA WINSTON

BLACK seems to be the big color for lingerie this season, judging from recent collections and store reports. Nice as a gift, whether to a friend or for the buyer, is a sleek nightgown of black crepe satin. It is smart because there is no extraneous trim, giving the material a chance to shine. It has a deep square neckline and draped sleeves. The high waisted bodice is draped vertically over the bust and the midriff is molded.

Big Beautiful Belts

By ALICE ALDEN

THE BELT is still bound to the mode as a major fashion accessory. It is a good way to dress up a simple frock and an ideal liaison between skirt and blouse. Criterion, who does those sparkingly handsome leather belts, among other designs, comes up with this impressive affair, which hey have named "Converto." It s a study in black and gold, black or the leather, gold for the kidkin discs centered with gilt nailheads.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Be A Bathing Beauty

If you want to look your best, you must give serious thought to rules of health—diet, exercise, fresh air, sunshine, scrupulous cleanliness of the body surface. You cannot build beauty on any other basis. The daily bath promotes health and gives the complexion an appearance of freshness. Its benefits are well understood by lovelies of the stage and screen whose livelihood and prestige are dependent upon maintaining splendid appearance, keeping youthful and attractive.

Experiments prove that myriads of bacteria and parasites exist upon an unclean skin surface, give rise to pimples, boils, carbuncles and other cutaneous infections.

The effect of bathing does not end with the skin, but has a profound influence upon the entire constitution. When the skin functions normally as an organ of elimination, the lungs and kidneys have less work to do, can perform their work with greater efficiency. The daily bath is supposed to be a national institution, but many men and women do not bathe as frequently as they should.

Girls and boys who are afflicted with blackheads and pimples, who find the reflection in the mirror nothing less than heart-breaking, are especially in need of the daily renovation with soap and warm water, plus a heavy brush and friction.

The perfect bath consists of a five-minute soaking in the tub, a thorough scrubbing with a soaped brush, followed by an alternating hot and cold shower. Rinsing is necessary to remove soap deposits that should not remain upon the epidermal coat. Dead skin scales, which harbor chemicals deposited by the sweat glands, must be removed.

After the bath, the skin should be dried quickly and thoroughly. A wet skin is a cold skin, and a cold skin chaps. Those tiny red points that we call "gooseflesh" may appear on the arms and legs. A brisk rubdown stimulates circulation; good circulation brings coloring to the cheeks and lips.

Bath Salts Soften The Water

If you can spare the time, and the strain on the purse strings is not too great, there are endless additions to your bath routine that are fun. Going over the body surface with a perfumed bath oil will leave the skin smooth and fine. This treatment is recommended to individuals who suffer from cutaneous dryness and that intolerable trouble known as "bath itch".

Tonic rubs are pleasant. Or one can indulge in a dusting powder that will impart a delightful fragrance. Bath salts soften the water, make the bath more thorough.

English Nurses Study in Canada

Toronto, Jan. 28—(CP)—Canadian Red Cross outpost hospitals offer a rich experience to nurses in the opinion of two English girls now enrolled at the University of Toronto. They are Miss Elsie Stephenson and Miss Eileen Reese, who came to Canada together on Florence Nightingale International Foundation scholarships.

Miss Stephenson received recognition at Christmas when she attended alone at the birth of a baby at Lion's Head Red Cross outpost hospital, while Tobermory and the adjacent part of Ontario's Bruce peninsula was snowbound.

Previously she had done relief work with the British Red Cross in Egypt, Italy and Yugoslavia, and handled Canadian Red Cross prisoners-of-war food parcels and medical supplies in Germany.

Miss Reese worked in hospitals in Egypt, Palestine and Malta. During the recent Christmas holidays she was stationed at the Bracebridge outpost hospital.

The girls are scheduled to return to England in the spring, but first intend to devote the money earned while on hospital duty in Ontario to view the Canadian Rockies.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 15 and go with a boy who is also 15.

I have six girl friends with whom I go out quite often. We like to go out in groups of boys and girls so that we can have more fun, but my boy friend does not like to. He says we are a gang, and he does not like gangs.

My problem is, should I break off with this boy or with my friends?

"Perturbed"

If you have to make a choice, "Perturbed," then I advise you to stick with your "gang" and let the boy friend go off by himself if he likes solitude better. At your age, going out in groups is a fine idea; much better, I think, than pairing off in exclusive couples. Naturally, every boy wants to take his girl to the movies or a dance by himself occasionally; that's fair enough. But, in general, I'm for teen-agers doing things in groups.

And there's something else. No matter how fond you may be of this particular boy friend, it's not likely that the choice you make at 15 will be permanent. So the chances are that if you deserted your other friends to please this boy, sooner or later your relationship with him will be off and then you might find yourself very lonesome. Besides which, the sociable boy who likes group fun is apt to be a better bet than the one who wants to be exclusive.

Don't Fall For This Man's Monkey Business, "Heartbroken."

I am a girl 16, and last last summer I fell in love with a man 26. He thought me older, but when I told him my right age, it did not seem to make any difference —in his feeling toward me. Upon my being so honest with him, he told me that he was engaged to a girl nearer his own age. She had wanted him to marry her for some time, but he did not think he could go through with it.

We went out again several times after this, and while in a restaurant one evening he came in with his fiance, and came over to my table to talk to me. I reminded him of a picture he had promised me, and he went back to his own table and asked this girl for the picture of him she had in her wallet. Then he returned and told me he wanted me to have it.

Please advise me what to do, as I know I shall never find another one whom I shall love, cherish or trust as much as I do him.

"Heartbroken"

If you feel that this is the finest man you're ever likely to meet, "Heartbrokn," then you certainly are in a bad way. What there is about him to make you love, cherish or trust him—especially trust him—I can't imagine. Can't you see he's making a monkey out of you? Are you silly enough to fall for such shenanigans as he's putting on?

Your adolescent adoration no doubt flatters and amuses him, for he certainly is not taking it seriously, whatever he tries to make you believe. What he probably said to his fiance is the restaurant was: "Let me have that picture in your wallet to give this little girl who's so crazy about me. She'll love it, and I'll give you another."

Snap out of it, "Heartbroken!" Don't let this man make a fool of you, and don't you make one of yourself.

At 33, This Man Doesn't Want to Live Any Longer

Please let me know how to build up hopes for myself.

I am a man of 33, with a wife and seven children, and I am tired of this world. It is too hard to live in.

My father died when I was 9 years old, and I went to work when I was 11 As I look at things now, I wonder why I should live and suffer any longer, and raise my family to suffer, too Things are getting harder every day I have no one to help me along, for this is my own battle and I feel I have lost, it so I surrender. The saying, "Death ends all suffering," looks like the only help for me and my family.

Like all poor men, I made the mistake of trying to raise a family. When people find out that you have a big family to support, and you have no work for them, then they want you to work for less money. Yes, people laugh at poor men, even when the poor man's sons fight and die for them. Is death not the best hope?

"E. V."

In your state of depression and despair, "E. V.," it would seem mockery for anyone to tell you that surrender is never the right answer to any battle of life, no matter how hopeless it may sometimes seem. You would not believe it if you were told that there is always some way out if you can hold on until you can find it yourself, or someone can help you find it.

But did you know that there is someone who would really try to help you find that way out? If you will write a letter, giving your name and address, to Dr. H. M. Warren, National Save-A-Life League, 505 Fifth Avenue, New York 17. N. Y., he will see that someone in your vicinity gets in touch with you who will do his best to help you solve the problems that have become too much for you. Won't you do this?

If You Think He's Losing Interest, You're Probably Right

After going with a boy for three weeks, he told me he loved me. I didn't believe him, and I told him so.

Now about six weeks later, I find I do love him and he claims he really loves me. He said that at first he only went out with me to forget a girl he liked very much and that when he told me he loved me, he didn't mean it. But now he is sure, and he wants me to believe him.

I don't see him as much as I used to, but when I do he tells me he still feels the same. It seems to me, though, that this past week he has been losing interest. How can I be sure he does love me?

"Veteran's Sweetheart"

I think you should have stayed with your first answer to this boy and gone right on not believing him when he said he loved you. And if it seems that he's losing whatever interest he had in you, you're undoubtedly quite right. You wouldn't get a feeling like that if it weren't true.

You don't give your age, but you should be old enough to know how you can be sure he loves you, here's my answer: I'm sure he doesn't.

Stop Dreaming and Get Busy Brother!

I am a young man 26, just discharged from the service, and I can't get a girl friend. I have no luck with the girls. I want to get married and have my own home, but I don't seem to succeed.

I dream of love and think about it almost all day I was in love once, but she married another fellow.

I hope you can help me.

"A.D.T"

Instead of doing so much dreaming, "A.D.T." I'd suggest that you try a little direct action. Make some definite plans about how to meet girls and then carry them out. There are plenty of good reputable ways in which you can get acquainted with young women in your own age group, and an unmarried veteran in his twenties is just what most of them are looking for.

My advice to you would be to start by joining your local Y.M. C.A. Every Y.M.C.A. has a variety of clubs and activities for young men, and most such organizations arrange parties and dances where men and girls can meet each other.

Look around the place where you work, too, and if there's a girl who attracts you, invite her out; then give her such a good time she'll look forward to a second invitation. Don't try to rush one girl, though. Take as many out as you can find opportunity to do, until you meet one with whom you are especially congenial.

You probably let yourself get discouraged when your first girl married someone else. But keep looking! There are plenty of nice girls dying to meet eligible young men.

Miami Not Doing So Well

(By Tom Sheehan in Boston Sunday Globe)

Have you been thinking about taking a little trip to Miami this winter and putting it off because you are worried about the high hotel rates?

Well, if you have, set your mind at rest because it is beginning to look as though the line has broken. Even the hotel associations are admitting that the bookings haven't been what they thought they would be by this time.

It's only January 15, but the tipoff on the local situation was given when the hotel associations in the hope of stimulating business, recently anounced the hotels down here even those over on the beach, are only about 60 per cent booked for the peak of the season, which is the latter part of February and March. At other periods, both before and after the peak, they admit they have bookings for only 40 per cent of the rooms available.

The asking prices are still terrific, but don't let the wax mustache on the desk clerk frighten you He's got orders not to let you get away from the desk without renting you something, even at your own price, if its reasonable.

The asking prices will probably hold up where they are now until about Feb. 1, but even the natives, who exist for twelve months a year on what they are able to pick up from December until April, admit the honeymoon is about over.

This time last year hotel rooms were so scarce you had to know Joe to get a room and you had to pay Joe plenty to get it.

Favorite method employed by the black marketeers in rooms was to reserve all the available rooms. They were reserved in any name, just as long as they were reserved.

Joe, puffing his big black cigar usually lurked around the lobby His shill was usually the clerk on duty on the desk or one of the bellhops.

If the clerk was the shill, after he had sorrowfully explained his inability to take care of you with a room, he would point out Joe and tell that he thought that the gentleman with the cigar had a room he wasn't going to use, but that he hadn't given it up as yet If it was a bellhop who was doing the shilling, you were usually buttonholed after you turned away from the desk and led over to Joe with somewhat the same explanation. Joe, it usually developed, would let you have the room, but for a price.

Naturally hundreds of miles from home and with vacation money burning holes in the pockets, most travellers didn't quibble about the price. They had to have a room. After the money had changed hands Joe usually explained that because hotel management insisted on renting the rooms only to those they had been reserved for in the past you would have to register under a name other than your own.

Which of course is a violation of the law. Once you wrote the phoney name on the register you were a party to an illegal act and couldn't very well squawk without putting your own head in the noose.

To give the hotels credit, they attempted to resist this type of racketeering, but with not too much success. That's why the reserving of rooms was mostly done by one member of the hotel staff, usually the manager. But even that didn't stop the racketeers.

Joe, I'm glad to report has disappeared from the local scene. The hotels naturally want no part of him, but they'd like to be assured that the period of prosperity he was a part of hasn't gone forever.

Not that they're putting on a bold front. Over on Miami Beach they have developed a cute way of preventing potential guests from realizing just how empty the hotels are until they check in.

When you register the clerk puts an impressive dummy plan of the hotel before you on which almost all the rooms have been blocked out as though they're rented. You are asked to make your selection from what's left If it so happens that you are one of those fussy customers who will not be satisfied with anything less than the kind of exposure you desire and all such rooms are blocked off on the plan as being occupied, the clerk asks you to take one of the other rooms while he arranges with Mr. So and So to move.

"Oh, no trouble at all," he will assure you if you protest that you have no desire to cause such an inconvenience to anybody. "Mr. So and So is an old friend of the management and doesn't care what room he has and has said so many times." Naturally, nobody moves except you.

If you know how to handle hotel managers and room clerks you can rent one of those nice rooms overlooking the beach for $5 a day right now. This time last year the same rooms were renting for three and four times that at the same hotels I have in mind.

Nor if the apartment rental situation here much different. Those people who rented their apartments in advance at about the same prices they got last year are counting themselves lucky. Apartments in the nicer sections of Miami and Miami Beach are still bringing top prices, but the customers aren't just renting anything the way they were last year.

Well, they tell me that black market money is scarce down here this year. Black marketers unable to bank a lot of folding money without causing a sensation, were down here throwing it around and enjoying themselves this time last year, but they're among the missing this year.

What's more, this time a year ago there were a lot of boys getting out of the service.

Furthermore, a year ago this time many of the hotels, while they had been turned loose by the government, hadn't been reconditioned for occupancy. They and a lot more hotels and apartments which have been built in the intervening months, are ready now, but apparently as many customers aren't available now as were expected to be at this time.

If the real estate and high rent bubble has really burst down here, and it seems reasonable to assume it has when the natives themselves admit as much it is a good thing.

Rents were so all out of proportion that tiny bedrooms in private home were bringing $5 a day and it was not unusual for the landlady to expect you to share your bed with a stranger and your bathroom with several.

During normal times down here the same landladies were so glad to get a tenant that they would rent you the same room for $5 a week and loan you money to eat with if your cheque was slow in arriving.

Of course, in those days hotel rooms were so plentiful around town that several hotels were standing as empty reminders of the 1926 boom here.

ESQUIRES TAKE FLYERS IN 2ND STRAIGHT WIN

For the second time in as many nights Belleville "Y" Esquires defeated Trenton Flyers by the same scoe 32-30. The game was thrilling and close checking throughout as the teams stuck strictly to basketball and a very clean game was enjoyed by the fans in attendance.

The game started off slowly and in the case of all their previous games the locals found themselves trailing 8-2 at end of the initial quarter but they steadied down in the second quarter to reverse the score on their Airforce rivals and the half ended 10-10.

As the second half opened the game began to open up and the lead see-sawed with first one team and then the other having the play and at the end of quarter Trenton led 19-17. In the final half the close checking still held and ith only 45 seconds to go the score was 28-28 then the Esquires threw in two quick baskets to sew up the game as the Flyers could only get one back.

The Esquires were led by Geo. Faulkner with 11 points followed by Don Mason and Ralph McCabe with 6 points each, while for Trenton Sherwood and Watson with 9 points and Moulden with 6 points were best.

Belleville "Y" Esquires: Mason 6, Pigden 2, Dickens 3, Whiting 4, McCabe 6, Hyde 0, Coppell 0, Wright 0, Faulkner 11. Total 32.

Trenton Flyers: Sherwood 9, Bremner 0, Leedham 0, Moulden 6, Fox 0, Marks 0, Haime 3, Watson 9, Campbell 3. Total 30.

HOCKEY PLAYERS TO MEET LEAGUE ON PENSION PLAN

Some Teams in National League Already Have Named Representatives

(By WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 29. (CP)—If and when the National Hockey League decides that a pension plan is a good thing for its hard-working puck propellers, the official scorer should credit Boston's Bob Murphy—the Union man—with an assist.

Murphy actually has no direct connection with a current move by players to present their pension plan to League President Clarence Campbell but just as in baseball, it was the man who hoped to form guilds for both sports, who started players thinking of their own interests.

So far there has been no date set for the Montreal confab and the players haven't stated what they want. They'll likely follow along the lines of the baseballers who asked for a pension plan last Summer and may know the results of their efforts when the game's biggies gather in New York this weekend for the annual baseball dinner.

What the moguls will offer remain to be seen but roughly what the baseball boys requested was $50 monthly retirement for a player with five years major-league experience; $100 for 10-year men with $10 monthly increase for each year between five and ten.

Talk of hockey's pension plan started in Boston, Murphy's hometowns, when the Bruins announced Veterans Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer would represent the team at a meeting with Campbell. Montreal Canadiens have named Hector (Toe) Blake and Billy Reay as their spokesmen and other clubs have still to be heard from.

Campbell said he hadn't been approached on the pension scheme and only knows what he reads in the papers. . . .Previously he expressed a willingness to meet team representatives on the pension scheme or any . other problems.

Kingarvie Wins Biscayne Purse At Hialeah

(By The Canadian Press)

Marty Servo, 27-year-old Schenectady scrapper, who was forced to relinquish his welterweight boxing title to Sugar Ray Robinson last September due to a nose injury, said yesterday at Schenectady he plans to return to the ring with the intention of regaining his crown. However, his manager, Al Weill, put the brakes to Servo's comeback aspirations with the assertion he would not let Servo try a serious comeback until he is O.K.'s by a physician and has a few tune up fights against second-raters.

Servo said he wants a crack at Robinson, present titleholder, at a New York ball park this summer.

Kingarvie, last season's King's Plate winner at Toronto's Woodbine Park, won his first Florida race yesterday in the featured Boscayne Purse The four-year-old gelding from the stable of R. S. McLaughlin, Oshawa, completed the mile and a furlong in 1:50 flat.

Bernborough, Australia's greatest race horse since Phar Lap, sails today from Melborne in a specially-padded stall aboard the liner Wangaratta, to the United States. The Aussie racing sensation has been purchased by movie magnate Louis B. Mayer for stud service.

Kenneth Chantler of Montreal, Canada's outstanding racquets player, meets Robert Grant, hardest-hitting player in the game, in New York today for the American open championship, winner of the best-of-seven match to meet Jim Dear of Britain in February for the world's title.

Del Ennis, outfielder for Philadelphia Phillies and 1946 rookie of the year, yesterday signed a one-year contract and stated he was "well satisfied." Herb Pennock, general manager of the National League club said he expects Ennis to become 'one of the stars of baseball."

Brantford Chiefs, O.H.A. junior B hockey team involved in two recent bus crashes, have met with an added disaster. It has been discovered that thieves stole a considerable amount of hockey equipment at the scene of the first crash, as the Chiefs were returning from Stratford.

Sports Roundup

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 29. (CP)—Little-known facts about well-known people: Winston Churchill's mother, Jennie Jerome of New York, was the daughter of Leonard W. Jerome, owner of the old Jerome Park in the Bronx where modern American racing was born Sept. 25, 1866. . . The winner of the inauguration stakes there that day was John Hunter's Kentucky, and Joe H. (N.Y. Herald Tribune) Palmer reports that Jerome lifted his daughter atop the back of the victorious horse. . . Tommy Lockhart, Mr. Hockey of the United States, once challenged an eight-man track team after an argument with its coach, then went out and beat its star high-jumper and ran its best distance runner to a dead heat in a two-mile event. . . Almost a decade later, at 34, the New York Hockey executive put on spiked shoes for the first time when the No. 1 man on his relay team took ill just before a race.

Pep Talk

Lockhart also was a star bicycle rider in the early 1900's. . now president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States and Associated with various other teams and leagues in official capacities, Lockhart says two world wars have taught him that almost anybody can do almost anything if they really try. . . . "If they can take boys off the street and teach them to fly planes in 90 days, the same thing can be done in other fields."

"I do not think they dare try me," Mr. Mikolajczyk, leader of the Peasant Party which opposes the government bloc, told a press conference in Warsaw. His only program at present is his appeal to the Supreme Court against the way in which the general election was conducted. The government bloc has won a decisive majority. ESQUIRES EDGE FLYERS 32-30 IN CLOSE TILT

Before a large gallery of highly excited fans, who saw one of the best games of the current basketball campaign, Belleville "Y" Esquires defeated Trenton RCAF Flyers 32-30 in a very exciting game at Belleville Collegiate. The win gave the locals the league lead with 3 wins and a loss while Trenton have three wins and two losses.

The game started slowly, as both teams checked very closely and it was not until near the end of the first quarter that the game began to open up. At the end of quarter Trenton led 8-4. As the second half opened game suddenly speeded up with Trenton seeming to have the edge and several fouls by the locals didn't help much as tempers flared on occasions but as suddenly as it started the game soon resumed a speedy rate and as the half time whistle went Trenton had a 21-16 lead.

It was in the third quarter that they won the game as they simply checked the visiting Flyers right into the floor and succeeded for a whole quarter to keep them off the score sheet while they themselves were piling in 10 points, and as the quarter ended Belleville led 26-21. In the final quarters the tension on both teams was terrific as they battled from one end of the floor to the other and right down to the final 5 seconds the game was in doubt.

For the Esquires' Johnny Hayman led the marksmen with 10 points with coach George Faulkner getting 8 and Ralph McCabe 5 points. For the Flyers Haime with 8 points, Wat--n 7 and Alf Moulden with 5 points were outstanding but it can be said here that they're was not a bad player on either squad as all played all out basketball.

HOCKEY PLAYERS TO MEET LEAGUE ON PENSION PLAN

Some Teams in National League Already Have Named Representatives

(By WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 29. (CP)—If and when the National Hockey League decides that a pension plan is a good thing for its hard-working puck propellers, the official scorer should credit Boston's Bob Murphy—the Union man—with an assist.

Murphy actually has no direct connection with a current move by players to present their pension plan to League President Clarence Campbell but just as in baseball, it was the man who hoped to form guilds for both sports, who started players thinking of their own interests.

So far there has been no date set for the Montreal confab and the players haven't stated what they want. They'll likely follow along the lines of the baseballers who asked for a pension plan last Summer and may know the results of their efforts when the game's biggies gather in New York this weekend for the annual baseball dinner.

What the moguls will offer remain to be seen but roughly what the baseball boys requested was $50 monthly retirement for a player with five years major-league experience; $100 for 10-year men with $10 monthly increase for each year between five and ten.

Talk of hockey's pension plan started in Boston, Murphy's hometowns, when the Bruins announced Veterans Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer would represent the team at a meeting with Campbell. Montreal Canadiens have named Hector (Toe) Blake and Billy Reay as their spokesmen and other clubs have still to be heard from.

Campbell said he hadn't been approached on the pension scheme and only knows what he reads in the papers. . .Previously he expressed a willingness to meet team representatives on the pension scheme or any . . other problems.

Kingarvie Wins Biscayne Purse At Hialeah

(By The Canadian Press)

Marty Servo, 27-year-old Schenectady scrapper, who was forced to relinquish his welterweight boxing title to Sugar Ray Robinson last September due to a nose injury, said yesterday at Schenectady he plans to return to the ring with the intention of regaining his crown. However, his manager, Al Weill, put the brakes to Servo's comeback aspirations with the assertion he would not let Servo try a serious comeback until he is O.K.'s by a physician and has a few tune up fights against second-raters.

Servo said he wants a crack at Robinson, present titleholder, at a New York ball park this summer.

Kingarvie, last season's King's Plate winner at Toronto's Woodbine Park, won his first Florida race yesterday in the featured Boscayne Purse The four-year-old gelding from the stable of R. S. McLaughlin, Oshawa, completed the mile and a furlong in 1:50 flat.

Sports Roundup

New York, Jan. 29. (CP)—Little-known facts about well-known people: Winston Churchill's mother, Jennie Jerome of New York, was the daughter of Leonard W. Jerome, owner of the old Jerome Park in the Bronx where modern American racing was born Sept. 25, 1866. . . The winner of the inauguration stakes there that day was John Hunter's Kentucky, and Joe H. (N.Y. Herald Tribune) Palmer reports that Jerome lifted his daughter atop the back of the victorious horse. . . Tommy Lockhart, Mr. Hockey of the United States, once challenged an eight-man track team after an argument with its coach, then went out and beat its star high-jumper and ran its best distance runner to a dead heat in a two-mile event. . . Almost a decade later, at 34, the New York Hockey executive put on spiked shoes for the first time when the No. 1 man on his relay team took ill just before a race.

Pep Talk

Lockhart also was a star bicycle rider in the early 1900's. . now president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States and Associated with various other teams and leagues in official capacities, Lockhart says two world wars have taught him that almost anybody can do almost anything if they really try. . . . New York Rangers Defeat Hamilton Tigers at Kingston In Hall of Fame Contest

Eddie Runions, Formerly of Belleville, Scores Goal Against Rayner

(By The Canadian Press)

There was new life in both senior and junior divisions of the Ontario Hockey Association today, after the senior Owen Sound Mohawks racked up their fifth straight triumph and the junior Toronto St. Michael's Majors took their second defeat of the season.

In the Senior A circuit Owen Sound edged out Stratford Indians 3-2, thus gaining undisputed possession of second place, but still way behind the Hamilton Tigers. In Junior A, Galt Red Wings got the winning goal seconds from the end to beat St. Mikes 8-7, and the Wings in second place are within 12 points of the league-leading eastern junior champs.

Hamilton's powerful Tigers meanwhile suffered their second loss of the season, but this time it took New York Rangers, hottest team in the National Hockey League, to do the trick, 5-2, in an exhibition game at Kingston for benefit of the Hockey Hall of Fame. At that the Tigers in shoving two goals past Chuck Rayner in the Ranger nets accomplished something that Toronto Leafs haven't been able to do in their last two tilts with Rangers at Toronto.

The Harty Arena at Kingston was jammed to its 2,600 capacity when N.H.L. President Clarence Campbell faced off the puck.

Both teams went scoreless in the first period.

Laycoe scored against Hamilton's veteran Art Childs early in the second, and Shillington flipped a backhand shot past the redoubtable Chuck Rayner to tie it up. Then Rangers went to work in earnest, and Bell, Leswick and Laprade made it 4-1 before the period ended.

Runion Scores

Levandoski on a pass from grey-haired Neil Colville made it 5-1 early in the third, but it seemed to Kingston fans that the men of Manhattan were sagging a little in the fast going of the last frame. Anyway Tigers' Runions beat Rayner again on a slick pass from Mason to end the scoring. There were only five penalties, four of them to Rangers.

At Owen Sound the Mohawks were always in front, Gillespie and Boddy scoring in the first, Steele of Stratford, in the second, and then Kilpatrick of Mohawks and Eady of Stratford, in the third.

In the Junior classic at Galt the Red Wings came from behind in the last period to defeat the mighty St. Mikes. It was Freddie Glover's goal on passes from Woseman and Uniac, with 28 seconds of play left, that decided the issue.

Deflected Into Net

St. Michael's took a 2-1 lead in the first, one of these looking lucky to Galt fans when Mackell managed to deflect a blue-line shot from Eddie Sandford into the Galt goal. St. Mikes were still ahead 5-3 after the second period, and then the lead changed repeatedly until St. Mikes were leading 7-6 with less than four minutes of play. Hnatuk tied it at 18.02, and Glover's clincher came at 19.32.

Scott and Bert Giesbrecht led Galt scorers with two each; Glover, Hnatuk, Wiseman and Wylie got the others. Flashy Fleming Mackell rammed in three for the Collegians. Hannigan scored twice and Sandford and Costello scored singles.

CANADIENS GAIN ON LEAFS WITH WIN OVER HAWKS

Montreal Club Now Only Three Points Behind the Toronto Squad

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal Canadiens chalked up a chunky gain today in their effort to overhaul the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs. The Canadiens, closing in on Toronto like a thunderstorm, whipped Chicago Black Hawks, 4-2, in the big league's only scheduled match last night to move within three points of the Leafs. But the frequency of Chicago losses, 24 now in 37 games, made the feat little to write home about.

The Canadiens, nine points behind the leading Leafs just ten days ago, had to drive all the way to narrow the margin. The last-place Black Hawks, playing before a home crowd of 16,565, spotted the Habitants two opening-period goals and narrowed the lead to 3-2 in the final frame.

Jimmy Peters' unassisted tally at 17.13 of the last period put the game on ice for the Montrealers.

Leo Gravelle, Canadiens' starry rookie, opened the scoring at 6.31 of the first period and Elmer Lach took a double relay from Ken Reardon and Maurice Richard to make it 2-0. Alex Kaleta got one back for Chicago, which Toe Blake nullified in the second period, and Doug Bentley got their second tally in the final frame.

With only one N.H.L. clash scheduled for tonight, the fifth-place Detroit Red Wings meet the third-place Bruins at Boston.

ROCKY GRAZIANO ASKED TO APPEAR TO TELL STORY

Claims $100,000 Bribe Offered to Throw Fight Too Ridiculous to Report

New York, Jan. 29 — (AP) — Middleweight boxer Rocky Graziano will have opportunity Friday to convince the New York Athletic Commission that the $100,000 bribe offer he claims to have received was too "ridiculous" to report.

Graziano's chance for a return title bout with middleweight champion Tony Zale on March 21 possibly is at stake.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, whose investigation of sports contests already has resulted in the conviction of one man and indictment of three others in connection with an attempted "fix" in professional football, disclosed the bribe offer to Graziano.

Graziano told reporters last night that Hogan and his assistants had twisted into something serious his story of being offered a bribe by an unidentified man to "throw" his scheduled fight Dec. 27 with Ruben (Cowboy) Shank of Denver.

However, chairman Eddie Eagan ordered Graziano to appear Friday before the Athletic Commission "in connection with the circumstances surrounding his cancelled fight" with Shank.

Irving Cohen, Graziano's manager, said he asked the cancellation after the fighter developed a back ailment. Hogan had said Graziano "faked" a sore back to halt the match.

Eagan said the commission can "take disciplinary action if a fighter has been offered a bribe and has not reported it to the commission."

OMAHA PUSHES INTO 1ST PLACE

(By The Canadian Press)

The tie game merits considerable respect in the United States Hockey League. The season passed the two-third mark last night with both northern and southern division leaders owing their positions to deadlocked games.

To point up the whole situation Dallas and Omaha played to a 6-6 tie last night at Omaha.

The result pushed Omaha into undisputed possession of first place in the northern division and further entrenched Dallas in the top spot in the southern division. Ten ties in 40 games is Omaha's mark and in the last 14 games Dallas has left the rink with seven ties.

In the only other game last night St. Paul rallied for two goals in the last six minutes to down Houston 4-3 at St. Paul.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The eyes of Hockey Belleville will be focused on the Intermediates tonight in Kingston where they take on the Queen's University Seconds in their third "A" tilt of the current season. The Reds have won one and lost one, and had they been an evenly balanced team they should now be resting at the top of the heap with two wins under their collective belts. However with some bolstering in goal they should give both Kingston teams, Lions and Queen's some healthy battles before playoff time.

• • •

The Reds are well equipped up front and neutral observers down Kingston way the other night after the game which saw the flying Reds blew a four goal lead in the first period to go down eventually 9-8 predicted they would finish on top of the heap, with a change or two in the line-up. The Redshirts have plenty of power on the attack with their second line and other forward reserves showing plenty of speed and teamwork.

• • •

Tonight they will have the benefit of encouragement of their wives and sweethearts, who travel with them on the 50 mile trek — and barring accidents they should come home with a win. As we mentioned before bus accommodation is crowded due to the ladies going along, and there will be no room for fans.

• • •

"You have a smart team down there — and when they get a little more condition and practice they will make the best of 'em step." The above was Mike Rodden's comment after the junior "B" game in Kingston the other night when the fast-travelling Saints of that city picked by many as potential Ontario champions were held to a 4-3 score by our Bees in two periods — but showed their condition class in a 6-goal scoring splurge in the third heat.

• • •

Mike, speaking via the Bell system, was apparently impressed with the work of the Bees as a team. They went well, he said, especially in the second period when they held the Saints scoreless and rammed home a couple of tallies themselves to make the score 4-2.

• • •

Incelement hockey weather responsible for lack of practice and postponement of games, the bugbear of all teams which depend on natural ice, has again taken its toll of Belleville hockey prowess. The Bees had been idle so long that introductions were almost necessary, and some of the boys even shook hands with one another prior to game time in Kingston on Monday.

• • •

But stiff-legged from little skating, they showed plenty of fighting spirit when they clashed with the Saintly Saints; a squad that has more work to do than a John Lewis lawyer in the post month or so. The Kingston squad is reported to be at its peak right now even if the Barrie Flyers did hand them a sad shellacking the other night. They have beaten some of the best junior "B" and other teams in Ontario, and it is a distinct feather in the Bees' cap that they were able to hold them down for even two periods.

• • •

But if and when cold weather returns, and the Bees get some much-needed practice, they might turn the tables on the highly-touted Saints with the benefit of home town ice and some more moral and verbal support.

• • •

And here's a final tip to captains and managers of the Ki-Y hockey squads. The deadline for submitting these player forms you have to Joe Shortt at the Y.M.C.A. is Thursday night. Otherwise the schedules will be drafted without your entries. There will be three series played this season bantam, 11 years and under up to Jan. 1st; midget, 14 years and under to Jan. 1st and juvenile, 17 years and under up to Jan. 1st. So get those player forms in tomorrow at the latest, if you want to give these kids a chance to play hockey. Do it tonight.

• • •

There are breathings of discontent emanating from the Mountain View and Picton regions anent the refereeing in the current Intermediate "B" basketball series. In fact a Picton Times sports scribe comes out flatfooted with the statement that Mountain View and Picton have legitimate squawks regarding protests of games played last week between Mountain View and Belleville and Picton and Trenton. Protests of this nature are usually settled by the executive in charge and in cases of complaints regarding officials these should be reported immediatly to the convener of referees. In any case official protests, so we are informed, have to be lodged within 48 hours following the date of the games.

• • •

Jimmy Wilde, former flyweight champion of the world and now a boxing writer in Ole Lunnon, thinks that the realization of Bruce Woodcock, British heavyweight champ, to snatch the world crown from the sepia locks of one Joe Louis, is debatable.

• • •

"I know" says Jimmie, "that this Doncaster man has done all that can be asked of him in this country, but is this form good enough?." Woodcock has been collecting big purses for affairs against inferior continentals, Renet, Martin and Anderssen, he goes on, but none of these bouts have been beneficial to him.

• • •

He has the highest esteem for Woodcock as a fighter and a boxer, Wilde writes, "but it is my opinion that if he expects to have a chance at defeating Louis he must meet and beat some of the rugged American heavies like Jersey Joe Walcott, Ray Elmer, Lee Oma and others.

• • •

Wilde thinks that even if Woodcock beats Joe Baksi, rough and tough Yankee heavy in London soon, the win would not be sufficient to get the Doncaster Dunker a crack at Louis. "This would be a mistake," he opines.

• • •

Louis is no ordinary world champion, in the former flyweight champ's opinion. "He is well preserved at the age of 32 and though naturally slower with the passing of the years he is still a great champion and a k.o. specialist. It would be a tremendous triumph for British boxing if Woodcock could win the world title, but I doubt if this will happen while Louis sits on the heavyweight throne."

• • •

Pratt Planning To Finish Hockey Career in Minors

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

Philadelphia, Jan. 29 — (AP)— Just a year ago today husky Babe Pratt, star defenceman with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League, was temporarily suspended from the N.H.L. for "violating the rules against gambling." Now he hopes his return to the hockey minors—with Hershey of the American League—will be a stepping-stone to a coaching job.

Pratt was re-instated two weeks later, on Feb. 14, 1946, by the N.H.L. Board of Governors who accepted the leniency recommendation of Mervin (Red) Dutton, then N.H.L. president. Pratt declared at the time he felt he was innocent of any wrongdoing as he never had bet against his own team.

"I either bet on the Leafs to win or I bet on games involving two other clubs," Pratt explained then. "I lost at the start and then I kept on trying to make up my losses." He promised Dutton that he would never bet on hockey again.

Dutton said that Pratt's frankness and willingness to admit that he had violated the anti-betting rule as well as Pratt's fine record in hockey for many years had influenced the governors toward leniency.

Pratt was sold by Toronto to Boston last summer and the Bruins, in turn, recently shipped him to Hershey.

Actually Pratt isn't certain just how long he'll be with Hershey. Feb. 10 is the deadline for the National League to bring up players from the minors and the husky defenceman feels that if he can take off some weight, Boston might recall him.

Pratt added that if Boston did not do so he planned to finish his hockey career in the American League.

ROCKETS SNAP LOSING STREAK BY EDGING BEARS

First Time Philadelphia Has Defeated Hershey This Season

The victory-hungry Philadelphia Rockets snapped their string of 14 straight games without a win last night by edging Hershey Bears, eastern division leaders 5-4, for the first time this season.

The victory, Philadelphia's 4th in 44 games, came in the second period when Billy Warwick tallied his second goal of the game to put the Rockets ahead 4-2. Other Rockets' goal-getters were Abby Collings, Leo Richard and Augie Herchenratter.

Gordie Bruce produced a pair of goals for the Bears while Pete Babando and Herb Cain notched the others.

Hershey was the third club in the American Hockey League the Rockets have been able to beat this season. Previously they won from New Haven twice and Providence.

In the league's only other contest Cleveland Barons won their fourth straight game, whipping St. Louis Flyers, western division cellar-dwellers 3-2. The triumph boosted the Barons lead in the western section to 3½ games over the idle Buffalo Bisons. It was the Flyers' sixth loss in seven games.

Pat McReavy and Tom Jamieson notched the Flyers' goals, the first two of the game.

But the Barons, paced by high-scoring Johnny Holota, the league's leading goal-getter, came right back to make it 2-2 at the end of the first period. Holota drove in his 35th goal of the season followed by Pete Leswick.

Hank Goldup scored the payoff marker for Cleveland in the final period.

Regina, Jan. 29 — (CP) —With impassioned gestures recalling the late Knute Rockne of Indiana's Notre Dame football fame, Father Athol Murray of Notre Dame College, Wilcox, Sask., exhorted his Hounds hockey squad.

"Fellows, if you win this one I'll get you anything you want."

The score was 3-2 for the vaunted Moose Jaw Canucks, the team built around Metro Prystai, Saskatchewan junior hockey league star and top-calibre National Hockey League material.

The Hounds rushed into the third period, piled in three goals without a reply, marking up their six victory of the season and sending the startled Canucks down to their sixth loss.

The upset last week at Weyburn was one of the most surprising of the season.

Victory has not come often to Notre Dame where the enrolment of about 250 makes up half the population of the town 30 miles south of Regina. The school's intermediate hockey team has won one Saskatchewan title and the junior club once took the southern Saskatchewan crown. But the spirit of "dear old Notre Dame" is evident every time they hit the ice.

Father Murray, founder and head of the 18-year-old college, proudly points to some distinguished hockey alumni. The centre of interest now is the Toronto Maple Leafs where the brothers Nick and Don Metz remember the exhortations of the 54-year-old priest.

And there are glowing N. H. L. prospects on this year's team. Detroit Red Wings have their eye on hard-hitting defenceman Cy McDonald and centre Jim Hanson while Chicago Black Hawks scout All Ritchie esteems Rod Booth another fast-moving forward.

The Hounds are culled from classes ranging from grade 10 to second year university at the school which includes students of all denominations who can start at grade one and finish with a Bachelor of Arts Degree. They come from all parts of the continent.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Maurice Richard of Montreal, garnered an assist in last night's sole National Hockey League encounter to increase his scoring race leadership to 47 points, made up of 29 goals and 18 assists. Chicago's Max Bentley earned an assist to move into a second place tie with Ted (Teeter) Kennedy, Toronto. Each have 39 points, Max 14 goals and 25 assists and Kennedy 20 and 19. The leaders:

	G.	A.	Pts.
Richard, Montreal	29	18	47
Kennedy, Toronto	20	19	39

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

The Kibitzer

When Elya Tyme plays bridge she need not weep at her mistakes. We know she gives the experts cards and spades at making cakes.

Players in the big time have no trouble with a mass of ducates like you see here. They reach a grand slam in no-trump and make it with seeming ease. Their boredom is maddening.

Make south the declarer at seven no-trump. West leads the spade king and south pulls it in with the ace. Three top hearts are taken and east is now known to have the top remaining hearts.

Five clubs are run, south sluffing the spade. The diamond ace gathers in a trick and thus is each hand reduced to three cards.

Dummy has left a small club, a small diamond, and spade jack. East hangs onto a good heart and two diamonds. South keeps a small heart and K 5 of diamonds. West has spade queen and two diamonds.

At this crucial moment, dummy steps out with the lead of the final club. It looks like an innocent little card. But let east and west try to wiggle out of that one. It is a tight double squeeze.

East dare not give up the heart. If he does, the south heart would be good when that hand gets in with diamond king. So, east peels off one of his diamonds and leaves himself with the queen.

When east gives up a diamond, south has no further use for his heart and flings it. But now look at the spot poor west is in.

West dare not give up spade queen. The dummy jack would be good. So, he coughs up a diamond. This gives south the last two tricks with diamonds. A double squeeze sure makes it tough on the customers.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sir Ralph Richardson, the British actor who was knighted by the King at New Year's for his contribution to stage and movies is being sought by Sameul Goldwyn to play the Heroin's predudiced father in the screen version of Gwethalyn Graham's best seller, "Earth and High Heaven."

The film version of the noval promises to be a five-star production with Joan Fontaine already cast as the Westmount English heroine and Gregory Peck as the young Jewish lawyer-hero. A camera crew will go to Montreal in April for background shots.

No Fake For Wald

Actual copies of the Los Angeles Times and the Los Angeles Examiner will appear in Jerry Wald's production of "The Unfaithful." Use of the real papers —printed in special editions to tie in with the film's treatment of post-war social unheaval—was deemed necessary by Wald to achieve a reality essential to the picture's topical theme.

Seven special editions of each paper will be printed for use in the film, which stars Ann Sheridan, Lew Ayres and Zachary Scott.

Sinatra As Bandit

Frank Sinatra has been cast opposite young Katherine Grayson in "The Kissing Bandit," a period musical to be produced this spring by Joe Pasternak. The two have already appeared together, though not paired, in "Anchors Aweigh."

Around The Lots

George Sanders will replace Richard Ney in the second masculine lead in "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," starring Gene Tierney and Rex Harrison. Ney had to leave the cast because of conflicting schedules with "Ivy," in which he is now playing. Sanders also is playing Charles II in "Forever Amber" and will alternate his roles.

Ethel Barrymore has almost finished her part in the film "Moss Rose" and plans to go to England on its completion to appear on the London stage in "The Glass Menagerie."

Little Benny's Note Book

In school today Miss Kitty was telling the class about ignorant people worshipping idols before the days of free education, saying, But the days of ignorance and idol worship are not altogether passed, by any means. One of the most common forms of idolatry is the worship of riches, which will probably continue to exist as long as people fail to understand that money doesn't necessarily bring happiness. In fact, some of the unhappiest people are the richest, and there are many famous sayings to prove that wise men have always understood this. I refer to such expressions as Money is dross, and Who steels my perse steels trash, she said.

Which just then the bell rang for recess, and the kids were pushing around Mr. Glackens's baskit buying pretzils, and me and Puds Simkins each had a cent to buy one, and I said, Hay, Puds, how about money being dross?

What about it? Puds said, and I said, Let's each throw our cent away before it brings us unhappiness by making us choke on a pretzil. Even if it dont make us feel better, it'll be a cheep way to find out, I said.

Sure, it's libel to save us from throwing away a doller some time Puds said. Okay, I'll throw mine in the pretzil baskit, he said.

Which he did, saying, Money is dross, and I threw mine in too, saying, Who steels my perse steels trash.

Hay there, stop that, what's the idea? Mr. Glackens said. Do you realize I have to go to all the trubble of fishing those pennies out of there? he said.

And he poked a pretzil at each of us and we started a race to see who could eat theirs the slowest and then changed it to see who could finish the fastest, on account of being less paneful.

NEXT AT THE BELLE — Leon Errol, the screen's inimitable comedian, starring in RKO-Radio's "Riverboat Rhythm," portrays the dual role of a Yankee showboat operator and a Kentucky Colonel with the up-and-coming young romantic team of Joan Newton and Glenn Vernon add complications. Frankie Carle and his band are featured in this hilarious comedy with music. The major feature starting tomorrow is "Crack-Up", starring Pat O'Brien, Claire Trevor and Herbert Marshall.

Joe Pulks Has Average of 24.1 Points a Game

New York, Jan. 29—(AP)—Joe Pulks, Philadelphia's one - man gang, headed today closer to the 1,000-mark as Basketball Association of America rivals continued to find him a hard man to stop.

The lanky hookshot artist, playing his first season with the pro Warriors, possesses a phenomenal average of 24.1 points a game and a total of 821 points for a tremendous lead in the loop's individual scoring race.

The distant runner-up is Detroit's Stan Maisek who has scored 525 points in 36 games for a 14.5 average. Max Zaslofsky held his third spot with 489 points in 36 games with Frankie Baumholtz of Cleveland fourth.

Baumholtz, who racked up 13 points in Cleveland's 80-70 win over Toronto in the Ohio city last night, has accumulated 462 points in 34 games. The victory gave the third-place Rebels an even .500 rating in the western division with 17 wins against 17 losses.

Leo Durocher Claims Legality In His Marriage

Los Angeles, Jan. 29 —(AP)— Garrulous Leo Durocher, Brooklyn baseball manager who ran afoul of state law by marrying movie actress Laraine Day before she was legally free to wed, last night issued a statement that he and Miss Day were "legally man and wife and we intend to remain so as long as we live."

Durocher and Miss Day were married last week in El Paso, Tex., after she obtained a Mexican divorce in Juarez from J. Ray Hendricks, airport executive. This was one day after Superior Judge George A. Dockweiler granted her an interlocutory California divorce and custody of the three children she and Hendricks had adopted. The interlocutory decree does not become final for another year and under it Miss Day was prohibited from remarrying until that time.

Judge Dockweiler has set next Tuesday for a hearing on his order to show why he should not dissolve his interlocutory decree.

CHAPTER 18

"I don't want very much. Jake wouldn't live on your money. He's very proud."

"Christa I knew something was worrying you. I want you to be happy. It's nearly twelve. Don't you think it would be better for us to begin our new year and our new life out there with the others, dancing?"

"Wait until I..." and snapping open a jeweled compact she daubed powder on her nose, and slashed her mouth to a deeper crimson.

Fifteen minutes later, when he saw her dancing with Mary Albert's husband, her head tilted flirting with him, Renny was so filled with disgust that he went out on the wind-torn roof, caring not that snow sprinkled his clothes and that the high wind made him grasp the railing. Money! That was all Christa had ever wanted of him. Renny cursed the fortune left to him by numerous frugal New England Maynards. Her need of money and her fear of poverty now explained everything in her attitude that had puzzled him. Now the pride restored, position secured, she would go back to Paris after the Reno interlude and probably flaunt her money in Jake's face. During the few minutes of shameful revelation in Richard's study she had succeeded in wiping out even the respect Renny had had for her as Allison's mother.

He came into the room again and over many heads he saw Arlen dancing with Richard and listening with an amused absent smile to what Richard was saying so fervently. It was an unfettered Renny who looked at her now, and there were no other eyes between them Strong chords with Christa, which had held him back had been broken. He felt that a miraculous change had taken place in him in the past few minutes. When his mind took up the melody of the music "Falling in Love Again..." it was as if Christa had never existed, and he had never married —was being taken back ten years and looking across a crowded room at a girl he loved. He loved Arlen! And his senses and his mind echoed with the knowledge!

He walked to the middle of the room, tapped Richard on the shoulder, and said, "May I cut, old man? I believe Louise wants you to tell the butler not to look so glum."

Richard laughed. "Breaking, eh? Do you think you're in college?"

"Tonight," said Renny. "I feel even younger than that."

He took Arlen in his arms and held her close. "Falling in love again." Should he tell her now at the maddest hour of the year? No. Not until Christa had sailed for aris and he was free would he tell her. Not until then could he ask her to marry him. To marry Arlen! And he would bring to that marriage no bitterness left over from the first. He passed Christa on the floor and gave her the casual smile of a stranger. In his arms he was holding—what was it Arlen had said once? —"paradise regained!"

The beat of the drum heralded the new year. Every one stopped voices went up, and people kissed. Renny drew Arlen closer and kissed her long and fiercely.

He said "I can't find a cocktail, Arlen. Will you drink an imaginary toast with me to 'paradise regained'?" and he was so concerned with the tumult of his own feelings he did not notice the pain that swept across her face.

Then Christa was going to stay Arlen thought, and his kiss had been the impulsive kiss of a man who has regained what he believed lost, and their being together at the midnight hour had accidental and he had kissed her because kisses were given generously at New Year. Arlen hid the bleakness in her eyes against his shoulder as the music started again.

Toby, with flushed face and disappointed eyes, suddenly appeared. "Arlen, I want to see you. Renny, I'm sorry."

Toby took her hand and guided her through the throng of people. Louise stopped them.

"Where are you off to? Now don't run away. We're all going to the hotel where we have reservations, and probably a dozen other places before morning. I think this is going off beautifully, don't you? But I'm panicky for fear the drinks will run out. Toby, I've never seen you look so thoroughly disagreeable."

"Have you some nice nails for me to bite in half, Louise?" Toby flung back.

Arlen asked lightly why the rush? Do you want to get to the hotel first and get the best place?"

"We're not going to any New Year's doings.'

"I dont understand."

"Get your coat and I'll explain. I've got to see you alone."

She said nothing, felt nothing, because nothing seemed to matter anymore. When she had put on her coat and came out, Toby took her hand and hurried her into the elevator. She did not protest. She hated the gayety she was leaving and wondered if she had ever been gay, wondering how any one could be gay when everything was spitting, tottering, falling before her eyes. In the other car she did not ask where he was taking her. There were no questions now. The one question that had tapped against her mind for months had been answered. Christa had answered it. Arlen had never felt so empty of all feeling, and even Toby fiendish driving did not disturb her.

When Toby skidded the car to a standstill on the wet street, Arlen realized he had brought her home.

"Elissa said she and Julian were going to a party after midnight," he said. "What's the matter with you?" he cried.

"I'm cold, Toby. Too much excitement and too many drafts for me. Come in."

"When I saw you dancing with Renny, I thought you were going to faint."

"I've never fainted in my life."

He followed her in and his eyes furtively followed every movement she made in taking off her coat and stooping down to light the gas logs. Restlessly he smoked a cigarette, lighted another in a few moments, and drew the smoke in deeply. When Arlen looked up, he was sitting on the divan, his head on his hands.

"I couldn't pretend I was having a good time at Louise's New Year's party or no New Year's," he said thickly. "I had a terrific row with mother. She threw me out and told me she'd disown me. It was awful! I couldn't go on with the party—feeling like this."

"It was over me, wasn't it?"

"I've got a right to love whom I please, haven't I? I told her I wasn't a child and I've a right to get married if I want to. She —I've never seen her like that before. Oh, it's all happened before—these scenes when she thinks I'm serious. But this time she told me she didn't pretend to be ill. All the other times she told me she didn't think she'd live long she didn't want me to leave her. That was just a lie to keep me tied to her. But I'm through with that. I'm through with her. I told her so.

Arlen knew that his threats had been unavailing and in the fray Toby had suffered more than Fanny because hers was the stronger personality In the house in Virginia to which she had taken him, she was waiting how confident that the power of her money would bring him back. Had not Renny once said, "Toby is slightly mad. He comes from pretty mad stock?"

"What are you going to do, Toby?"

"Do?" He looked up. "You've never told me you would or you would not marry me. Are you going to send me back to her and let her gloat over your turning me down? She'd suffocate me with pity and her, "I told you so'." He took her hands and held them tightly. "You can dispise me for being weak. All right. I am weak. Granted. But, Arlen, you can't send me back to her. Will you marry me tonight—now?"

"Toby, nothing is very clear to me just now. But you've got to get yourself together. Don't you realize it's selfish of you to want to marry me like this just to hurt your mother? That's not the way to be free, Toby, by marrying me. If I loved you, I wouldn't marry you in the state you're in tonight. Nothing is very clear. Everything is horribly muddled. But that much is clear."

"She said that about you—that you weren't in love with me."

"I never told you I was in love with you. I promised nothing. Toby, please....."

"She said it was Renny you loved and that you were using me to see if Christa came back to stay. You had to find out about Renny before you made up your mind about me She knew! You can't fool her. I've been lots of things but never a dupe. You've preached a lot of things to me, a lot of high-toned morals, and yet tonight, with Christa looking on, you kissed Renny. I saw you. Everybody saw you. All the things my mother said about you were true."

"And Christa is back to stay," Arlen said slowly, "and still I say I won't marry you, Toby. Does that look as though I've been playing with you? I might have married if you had come to me loving me, but to threaten me....Toby, I'm the dupe. I'm the convenient weapon with which you want to hurt your mother—and no matter how bitterly you feel toward her now she'll still be your mother—and neither I nor any other woman can take you away from her completely. Why don't you admit you want to hurt her more than you want to marry me?"

"Then why don't you admit you're in love with Renny?"

"I do admit it. I love him but he doesn't know I love him. His kissing me tonight was only in fun—at midnight on New Year's —and it surprised me as much as it surprised everybody else. Toby, I wanted to help you out of your difficulties. I knew you were unhappy. All I told you I meant for the best. I know how unhappy people can be made by affairs at home. It was because I was interested in you that I suggested your getting a job and making something of yourself independently of your mother. I'd never stand between you and her."

"A job, eh?" He laughed. "I had a job but I lost it. All right. I lied to you but I couldn't stand it there." He put his head in his hands again and said piteously, "I wanted to do the right thing. I swear. I tried but I couldn't. Oh, Im sorry about all this. I love you so much but I can't do even the smallest thing to make you respect me. I couldn't even keep a job! You can hate me for lying to you but you can't hate me for loving you. What have you got facing you? Meeting Christa as Renny's wife and probably accepting her overtures of friendship? It's as bad as what I have facing me—going back to mother and telling her you wouldn't marry me. She'll take me back, but she'll hate you for hurting me." He looked up. "I won't go back. I'll kill myself first."

Arlen put her hand on his shoulder. "No, you won't do that. You don't have to go back until you and your mother feel saner. Toby, I'm not turning you down because you lied, because you have no job, because of your unfair accusations. I love Renny and in a week you'd be miserable knowing that I loved him."

"No, no, I wouldn't. I'd have to accept that. Men have married women who've loved other men. Arlen, I could get a job in in Philadelphia with an oil company. You can't go on living here near Renny and Christa. When Elissa marries, you'll be alone again. What are you going to do?"

"I can keep my job and live in New York and not see Renny."

"You must think I'm a fool," he shouted. "Doesn't Mother know? Doesn't Christa know? Renny is in love with you. Why should he take all the trouble to bring you here? To help you? Men don't do that. That's why Christa came back—because of you! You won't see Renny, eh? You'll meet him in back streets and in basement restaurants. All your high-toned moral talk boils down to the fact that you're in love with a married man. Nobody knows anything about you."

Arlen could hear Fanny's shrill voice crying, "Nobody knows anything about her. Who is she? Picked up on a beach by Renny and accepted by Louise, who is fool enough to accept anybody with good manners." All that Toby was saying was a reiteration of what Fanny had said.

"I am a nobody," said Arlen. At Louise's I felt only a little better than a servant. But I'm not going to defend myself against your unfair attacks Toby. You know enough to say only what your mother said. In one breath you beg me to marry you to save your pride, and in the next you accuse me of the worst with Renny. It's not true."

"You hate mother. It's a wonder you don't marry me to spite her."

"Spite her—why? Oh, Toby, stop talking like a fool! Go to a hotel and get some sleep and in the morning you'll be glad I didn't elope with you. In the morning your mother will be sorry for what she said to you."

He got up. "Nothing you can say can alter the fact that you're sending me back and she'll spend the rest of her life gloating over this failure."

Arlen's voice was wearily pleading. "Toby, why have you put this into my hands?' Why should I take the responsibility of all this? I'm your friend, yes, but I can't decide about your life or settle your difficulties with your mother." She passed her hand over her eyes. "Oh, all this doesn't make sense. What are we saying to each other?"

ICE JAMS NIAGARA RIVER

Niagara Falls, Jan. 29 — (CP) —An ice bridge stretching for nearly three quarters of a mile has formed in the lower Niagara River today, caused by the mild weather breaking up ice fields in Lake Erie. The ice span is the largest ever seen here by old-time residents and veteran rivermen. It far exceeds the length of the huge ice bridge which destroyed the famous old Honeymoon Bridge in the winter of 1938-39.

The upper and lower Niagara River now is choked with ice floes. These miniature icebergs have jammed up beneath the cataracts, causing the record-size ice bridge, which now extends down the river nearly half way from the falls to the whirlpool rapids.

PURSE SNATCHER AT WORK

Windsor, Jan. 29 (CP)—A purse snatcher attacked Mary Connors, 55, last night on West-Central Bruce Avenue and stole $33 in cash—but was kicked to the pavement before escaping.

When the young man grabbed at her purse, which had been knocked to the sidewalk, Miss Connors gave him a studs kick which knocked him down. The thief fumbled for the purse, picked it up and fled.

Snow is Carted Back From Dumps To City Streets

North Bay, Jan. 29. (CP)—The snow which municipal employees diligently lifted from North Bay streets last week was equally diligently re-imported from countryside dumps today and carefully replaced on the pavements on which it originally fell.

Faced with the opening of the city's second annual Snow Frolic today and snow-less streets, all available crews were put to work, bringing snow back to the downtown area. By mid-morning North Bay was declared "passably wintry again".

CHANNEL SCHEME REVIEWED

London, Jan. 29 — (Reuters) — A scheme for a channel tunnel between England and France — mooted at regular intervals before the war — is to be revived, and an all-party committee of British members of Parliament is being formed to study the question in the light of new engineering devices and political and economic trends. The tunnel would be 30 miles long and would cost about $120,000,000.

Wayward Seal Prefers Milk To Nice Fresh Fish

Truro, Mass., Jan. 29—(AP) This Cape Cod town, where a number of whales have washed up on the beach, had a new rare visitor today — a seal that doesn't like fish.

Captain Charles Ellis, veteran keeper of Highland Light, said the seal was the first of this species he had ever seen in these waters.

And the seal's favorite dish has been discovered too. It's milk.

Presidential Dinner Swell Party Says Bernard Shor

Washington, Jan. 29. (AP)— Take it from Bernard (Toots) Shor, the Trumans threw a swell party last night.

The New York steak and chop purveyor and his blonde wife were among 100 or so guests at a formal presidential dinner honoring Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg (Rep.-Mich.)

With no deference whatever to his own famous eating place, Shor told a reporter later:

"Best darned meal I ever had in my whole life."

HEAVY SNOWFALL COVERS MOST OF PROVINCE

Tornado Sweeps Thru Arkansas, Missouri

Four Members Of One Family Killed at Montier

Woman Perishes Amidst Falling Debris of Her Home

Mammoth Springs, Ark., Jan. 30 (AP)—Violent tornadic winds killed at least five persons and injured 14 others in a destructive sweep through north-central Arkansas and southern Missouri last night.

Hardest hit was Salem, Ark., 20 miles southeast of here. Six persons were injured, one seriously, and 30 homes were destroyed. Seven additional houses were damaged.

The tornado moved northward from Salem, ripping through the small communities of Thayer, Montier and Hutton Valley in southern Missouri.

Four persons, all members of one family, were killed at Montier and Mrs. Charles Lawson died at Thayer amidst the falling debris of her home. Her husband, who sought to save her, suffered injuries.

Communication lines were disrupted but reports reaching here from Salem and surrounding areas indicated the property damage would run into the thousands of dollars.

Some of the wrecked homes caught fire in the wake of the tornado.

Disaster relief workers left for Salem to start preparations for feeding and sheltering the homeless. Salem has a population of approximately 570.

Ten of 15 buildings were reported demolished in the Missouri towns.

Twelve Injured In Alabama

Montgomery, Ala., Jan. 30 (AP)—A tornado struck just outside Montgomery today, injuring at least 12 persons and levelling a score of houses and barns.

Two of the victims, both Negroes, were in serious condition, but there were no reports of deaths.

Roaring in from the southwest, the storm dipped into a rural community two miles past the city limits and just beyond the United States Army's Gunter Field, only a short distance from where a tornado struck on Feb. 12, 1945, killing 26 persons.

Today's twister cut a path about a half mile long and 200 yards wide through the sparsely settled community northeast of the city.

Gunter Field's power was cut off but no damage was reported.

Huge Expenditure Needed to Expand Hospital Services

Windsor, Jan. 30 —(CP)— Dr. Harvey Agnew of Toronto, secretary of the Canadian Hospital Council, said last night it would cost $289,250,000 to make Canadian hospitals capable of properly accommodating all existing medical cases.

"The situations is deteriorating badly," he told the Board of Governors of Metropolitan General Hospital. Little hospital construction had been undertaken during the war and officials now hesitated to build because of high costs and shortages of material and labor.

Canadian hospitals had 120,000 beds but "to do a real job" they needed another 42,000 immediately and 20,000 more before 1950.

"My object in presenting these astronomical figures is to indicate the enormity of the task of raising these funds," he said. "To be frank, private philanthropy cannot do it. The state — Dominion, Province or Municipality—must contribute the major portion of the capital fund."

SYSTEM TO BLAME

Montreal, Jan. 30 — (CP) — Senator T. D. Bouchard, Liberal member of the Senate from St. Hyacinthe, Que., said last night that the educational system was to blame for much disunity in Canada, and he called for the establishment of "non-confessional" schools in Quebec province.

Prime Minister King to Speak At Bell Centenary

Brantford, Jan. 30. (CP)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King has accepted an invitation to participate in the Alexander Graham Bell Centenary celebrations here in March, it was announced here today.

The Prime Minister will be principal speaker at the Celebrities' Dinner, to be held in the Bell Homestead, March 3—the scene of the telephone's invention, 73 years ago. Proceedings at the dinner—which will be attended by leaders in political, scientific, cultural and educational life—will be broadcast over a national network.

The Dominion government is officially recognizing the 100th anniversary of Bell's birth in Edinburgh, by issuing an Alexander Graham Bell Centennial stamp.

3-year-old Child Dies in Fire, 8 Others Escape

Sudbury, Jan. 30. (CP)—Three-year-old Jean Deschamp was burned to death early today in a fire that destroyed the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Deschamps. Eight other persons escaped from the blazing frame dwelling.

The parents, Mr. Descramps' 86-year-old father, and six children were asleep in the one-storey four-room dwelling when fire broke out near the stove in the living room shortly after 1 a.m. The children ranged in age from nine months to 14 years.

Wearing only night clothes, all occupants except little Jean dashed out into sub-zero weather. The child apparently dashed into a locked porch and was trapped there by the flames.

The mother fought with firemen who detained her from rushing back into the house to try to rescue the girl. As she struggled, the house collapsed.

The couple and the grandfather suffered severe burns about the face and hands. Mrs. Deschamps was given hospital treatment for shock.

TO SPREAD PROGRAM

New York, Jan. 30 —(AP)—Theodore C. Wierehe, chairman of the Kiwanis Boys Baseball Federation, said yesterday the club's sandlot program which now covers much of New York State would be extended to other parts of the United States and Canada.

Union Brief States U.S. Employers 'Gambled' to Evade Wage-Hour Act

Detroit, Jan. 30—(AP) — The C.I.O. declared today the outpouring of portal pay suits for more than $4,000,000,000 resulted from a "colossal gamble" by American employers to evade the wage-hour acts.

Union lawyers contended in a brief filed with Judge Frank A. Picard that employer liability for such pay had been spelled out time and again since 1939.

Mose of the portal pay suits have been filed by C.I.O. member unions.

Counsel for labor, industry and the government were to argue before Judge Picard in a hearing expected to wind up today.

A Supreme Court decision upholding Judge Picard's findings in a case involving the Mount Clemens (Mich.) Pottery Company opened the flood gates for the similar litigation which followed on a vast scale.

Judge Picard held that the workers are entitled to back pay for non-productive time necessarily spent on company premises. The Supreme Court, agreeing, directed him to determine how much the pottery employees should receive.

The C.I.O. brief was filed in connection with Judge Picard's hearing today of views from labor, industry and the government on what the damages ought to be.

WILL ANNOUNCE CANADA'SPOSITION IN PEACE MAKING

Prime Minister King Or External Affairs Minister Will Give House Details

Ottawa, Jan. 30 — (CP)—Announcement will be made at the opening of Parliament this afternoon of Canada's position in the skirmish with the Big Four deputy foreign ministers of the making of the German peace, it was learned authoritatively today.

The announcement will come from either External Affairs Minister St. Laurent or Prime Minister Mackenzie King and possibly both may have something to say on the matter.

At the same time, the text of the Canadian submission to the deputies on the peace settlement will be released, whether or not Canada goes ahead with presentation of it to the council.

It was understood this submission will outline in general terms Canada's view on the drafting of the agreement.

The government statement in the Commons will give the reasons for Canada's stand.

Only Want Brief

The dispute with the big powers arises from the denial by the deputies of Canada's request for a full opportunity to give her views on the peace settlement, rather than be confined to the submission of a written brief.

The announcement is expected to be made in the Commons between 4 p.m. and 5 p.m., E.S.T., possibly nearer 5 p.m. After the members have heard the reading of the speech from the throne in the Senate Chamber at the formal opening.

Once the Commoners have returned to their own Chamber from the Senate, they will hear tributes to members who have died during the recess and possibly will deal with the case of Fred Rose, the Labor Progressive member for Cartier who is serving a prison term on espionage charges. Rose's seat likely will be declared vacant.

MAN GIVES SELF UP

St. Catharines, Jan. 30 (CP) — Police said that 12 hours after a man robbed taxi driver Lawrence Hamelin of nearby Burlington of his automobile and $3, a man who identified himself as David Herono, 30, of North Bay walked into the police station here today and told law officers he committed the robbery.

Detective James Anderson later quoted the man as saying:

"I have been drinking too much lately and realize I have done something wrong."

Burlington police were notified and said they would send men to take the man to Burlington.

WON'T GET FAR

London, Ont., Jan. 30 —(CP)—Police don't think that thieves who stole a former army truck overnight will get far. The hood was left behind, making the vehicle easy to recognize and it is believed also that the open motor would be immobilized soon in the current sleet storm. The 1944 brown colored truck was taken from a service garage.

WILL MAKE FINAL BID TO SETTLE LABOR DISPUTE

13,000 Miners Will Strike Saturday Unless New Contract Signed

Sydney, N.S., Jan. 30 (CP)—A final bid to settle a labor dispute involving all Maritime coal pits and 13,000 miners will be made here tomorrow — deadline for strike action by district 26 United Mine Workers (C.C.L.).

Labor Minister Mitchell, in a last hour attempt to stave off the threatened strike which authorities say would have a serious effect on Maritime industrial activity and power supply, last night called on Mr. Justice W. F. Carroll of the Nova Scotia Supreme Court to act as conciliator.

He chose the chairman of the Royal Commission on coal which has just completed a 300,000-word report on the industry for tabling in the Commons tomorrow and a man considered a leading Canadian authority on colliery problems.

Mr. Justice Carroll will leave Halifax today and has indicated he will hold his first meeting with company and union officials here tomorrow morning.

The conciliator said last night he had sent word to Harold C. M. Gordon, manager of coal operations for the Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, and Freeman Jenkins, president of the U.M.W., that he would like to begin conferences with them tomorrow morning.

Stick To Contract

There was no word from Mr. Gordon but Mr. Jenkins said the question as to whether Mr. Justice Carroll's appointment would delay action strike action was for the U.M.W. board to decide.

However, another union official was reported to have said he doubted if the appointment would make any difference. This official reiterated Mr. Jenkins' previous comment that the U.M.W. would stick to its "no contract no work policy".

Meanwhile, strike preparations went forward and special committees were constituted to arrange the provision of maintenance gangs to man the pits if the strike is carried out.

WILL RULED LEGAL

Calgary, Jan. 30 —(CP)— A $14,500 will signed only with an "X" was ruled legal by Judge J. W. MacDonald in district court here yesterday.

When Charles Eggie signed the will last summer he was suffering from a paralytic stroke. Unable to speak or write, he signed his will with the "X" mark with the assistance of a friend and in the presence of a third person, it was testified.

Eggie left $14,500 in bonds to his brother-in-law, James Anderson, with whom he had lived for more than 30 years.

BRITISH TROOPS HUNT ABDUCTORS IN JERUSALEM

Jewish Quarter Cordoned Off and Several Hundred Herded Into Pens

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, Jan. 30. (AP)—British troops swooped down on the Montefiore quarter of Jerusalem early today and began a house-to-house search for the kidnappers of a British banker who stumbled into a clinic dazed and bleeding last night after being held prisoner for 78 hours.

The section—an ancient Jewish quarter outside the old city walls—was cordoned off and several hundred persons were herded into hastily-erected screening pens for questioning. At mid-morning it was announced that six had been detained for further examination.

Details of how the kidnapped banker, H. A. J. Collins, a retired British army major, regained his freedom, were not immediately disclosed. Taken to a hospital, where his condition was described this morning as "serious", the dazed Collins told police:

"I was badly treated and had to fight my way out."

Reliable informants said British orders clamping martial law on Tel Aviv, Petah Tikvah and Ramat Gan has been rescinded early today. British authorities

Isvestia Charges Attempt to Form Bloc Against Reds

Moscow, Jan. 30 — (AP)—The Soviet government newspaper Izvestia declared today that the 'United Europe Committee' headed by Britain's wartime prime minister Winston Churchill was an attempt to form a bloc aimed at the Soviet Union.

The paper declared that Fascists and reactionaries in Germany and Italy had "taken wings at the idea," seeing in it a chance for "a return to the old times."

(In London the laborite Daily Herald said editorially that the committee was "primarily an attempt to play power politics against Russia."

The committee, organized earlier this month in London with Churchill as chairman, favors establishment of a regional organization in Europe similar to the Pas-American Union. The committee, outlining its aims, said that only creation of a system of world government could assure on end to war and declared that appropriate nations should be encouraged to group themselves together in larger units" as a step in this direction.)

$57,000 FIRE

Tillsonburg, Jan. 30 — (CP) — Fire of unknown origin destroyed the tobacco pack barn together with 19 tons of 1946 crop tobacco on the farm of Lee Mudge, a mile east of Tillsonburg Monday evening with a loss estimated at $57,000 covered partially by insurance.

BITTER DEBATE EXPECTED ON THRONE SPEECH

Viscount Alexander To Deliver Address At Third Session Of 20th Parliament

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 30 — (CP)—Viscount Alexander, the Governor-General, will open the third session of the 20th Parliament today with the reading of the speech from the Throne before Commoners and Senators in the red-carpeted Senate Chamber.

The traditional ceremony, starting at 3 p. m., (EST) will mark the formal beginning of a sitting which many observers predict will be interspersed with sharp and perhaps bitter debate on control legislation the government is expected to introduce.

While this session opens earlier than the 5½-month sitting which ended last Aug. 30, it is not likely to be any shorter and the expectation is that the long debates will continue until the end of June or early in July.

When today's formalities in the Senate Chamber are completed, the Commoners will go back to their own chamber, sit there briefly and rise for the day. They will meet again tomorrow for an hour or so but the real business of the session will not begin until debate is opened Monday on the reply to the Throne Speech.

This debate, traditionally long since the Throne Speech outlines the government's legislative program for the year, likely will last two or three weeks with a heavy slate of speakers participating from each of the major groups in the House.

Four New Members

Four new members, elected since the last session, will take their seats for the first time. They are Gerard Cournoyer, Liberal member for Richelieu-Vercheres, Real Caouette, L'Association Des Electeurs member for Pontiac, Cal Miller, Progressive Conservative member for Portage La Prairie, and Harold Timmins, Progressive Conservative member for Toronto Parkdale.

The Throne Speech is expected to stress the need for continued controls and to disclose the government's intention to introduce bills to give statutory form to many of these powers which it feels still are necessary to avert inflation.

Motor Licences Good Till Feb. 28

Toronto, Jan. 30 (CP)—Last year's motor licences will be good for another month, an announcement from the Highway Minister, George Doucett, read yesterday. The Feb. 28 extension also applies to drivers' permits. The change was made because road conditions in rural districts hampered many owners in their efforts to get to issueing offices.

Opponents of Britain's Nationalization Program More Vigorous in Protests

By JUDSON O'QUINN

London, Jan. 30 (AP)—Opponents of Britain's Labor Government have fought bitterly the principle of nationalization but there has been no criticism of prices paid for holdings taken over in the first-hour moves on the Socialist checkerboard.

There have been no cries of expropriation from private owners affected in the nationalization of the Bank of England, the civil airlines, the coal mines and the communication network of cables and wireless, even though the coal mine owners and cable and wireless stockholders will not receive final settlement for another two years.

Squawks are rising, however, as the government ascends the next rung of its nationalization ladder. Railway proprietors and others are fighting a bill to bring inland transport under government ownership. The National Health Service Act is under attack of physicians.

A bill to nationalize electric utilities was published Jan. 10 for action by the House of Commons, and a board to supervise and control the iron and steel industry has been created, but a measure to nationalize is improbable for another year.

These nationalization projects probably will complete the government's first "five-year" plan. Their realization in 1948 would give the Socialist two years to

Snow and Freezing Rain Make Roads Almost Impassable

Milder Weather in Store But Cold Wave Promised

The Ontario Department of Highways warned against unnecessary travel on southern Ontario roads today as snow, sleet, freezing rain and hail drove south and east off Lake Huron and Georgian Bay.

"Most main routes are heavy," a department spokesman warned just before noon. "Any one of them may become blocked temporarily at any time this afternoon. If that happens we'll plow it out as soon as possible. Forecasts indicate drifting will probably keep up all day."

Overnight snowfall up to the forenoon ranged from 18 inches in the section immediately south to Georgian Bay to about four inches in parts of the Sarnia, Stratford and Woodstock areas.

Sanding Trucks Out

The Highway Department sent sanding trucks out through the Niagara Peninsula and the region north of Lake Erie where sleet and freezing rain turned road surfaces into skating rinks. In most other parts of southern Ontario the weather called for a plowing job.

Northern Ontario escaped the fury of the storm.

A Canadian Press survey showed that elsewhere Ontario residents reeled under a mixture of weather that slowed traffic and brought inconveniences and discomfort to thousands of persons.

A midwinter electrical storm crackled over Barrie, Stratford, St. Thomas and Sarnia. Hail fell on Kingston and sleet swept Galt.

Foot at Oshawa

Oshawa had a foot of fresh snow, Brantford six inches, Hamilton and Kingston seven inches and Midland eight inches.

Officials of the Canadian Niagara Power Company at Niagara Falls said tons of ice flowing down from the upper lakes into the turbines of their plant, situated above the Horseshoe Falls in the Niagara River, has lowered production of electrical power by 10 per cent. They said the ice flow this morning was the heaviest thus far this year.

The sleet brought some line trouble to communications services through the Niagara Peninsula but major difficulties feared earlier failed to develop.

Services Cancelled

At Chatham bus services cancelled last night were resumed this morning as the ice disintegrated under a pounding rain. Weather forecast for tonight was for lower temperatures, giving rise to fears that the district may again be covered with glare ice.

A check revealed only minor damage to hydro and telephone wires. Crews were busy during the night making temporary repairs. As the morning advanced, a rising temperature loosened ice from wires and trees, and removed the threat of trouble on the scale of a month ago.

Hydro services in one section of Thamesville were cut off for most of the night. Service was restored at eight o'clock this morning. Power service in a large section of Howard Township was suspended early yesterday when a tree crashed on a main line while it was being felled by a farmer.

Coupled with apprehensions over the sleet storm, county officials were somewhat apprehensive over the rising waters of the Thames river.

Man Requested To Get in Touch With Authorities

Los Angeles, Jan. 30. (AP)—Police, beset by crank notes, phone calls and spurious confessions, appealed today to the man—or woman—they believe butchered attractive Elizabeth Short, to keep his promise to get in touch with authorities again.

The person who police think killed and mutilated the 22-year-old film hopeful, or at least knows who did, sent to a newspaper last Friday, an envelope containing many of her personal papers. Appended was a message, crudely pasted together with letters clipped from newspaper headlines. It said:

"Here is Dahlia's belongings. Letter to follow."

A number of similar letters did follow, but none bore the appearance of authenticity. So police, through the newspapers, sent out an appeal addressed to "the slayer of Elizabeth Short". It said in part:

". . .all police officers are well aware that there are two sides to every story, and we can only promise that you will receive fair treatment and a just trial."

Miss Short was known to her friends as the "Black Dahlia".

Police at San Diego said yesterday Emily Williams, 24, a waitress, had recanted an earlier statement that she had phoned from a hotel bar to the effect she had killed Miss Short, and would not be charged.

And in Los Angeles police said they had found numerous discrepancies in the story of Daniel Voorhees, 33, a restaurant porter, who surrendered Tuesday night and wrote and signed a terse confession.

Police Search Palace for Bombs After Warning

London, Jan. 30 — (AP) —Police searched Buckingham Palace for a bomb early today after a "warning" telephoned from a public booth, but nothing suspicious was found.

Scotland Yard said on unknown person called a London telephone exchange and shouted: "Clear Buckingham Palace, because bombs have been placed there to go off on Saturday."

Similar warnings, all of which proved false alarms, were reported more than a month ago. Some newspapers suggested they were linked with attacks on government installations in Palestine.

Normal security precautions were in force today at Buckingham Palace where the King, Queen and Princesses are in residence.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, January 30 (CP) — Synopsis: Freezing rain and ice pellets are falling over Southern Ontario this morning while moderate to heavy snow with high winds is general over Central Ontario. Numerous thunderstorms were reported this morning in the Great Lakes Region. The intense storm causing this precipitation is centred over Iowa and is moving slowly northeastward. Over the midwestern states to the north and west of this centre severe blizzard conditions exist. Even over Southwestern Ontario winds as high as 50 mph have been reported this morning. After a temporary mild spell over Southern Ontario tonight temperatures will again drop sharply on Friday. High winds and snow squalls will accompany the colder weather. It is interesting to note the temperature contrast across Lake Erie this morning. While Toronto has a temperature of 18 degrees Akron, O., reports 61 degrees

It's tag time for dogs and licence time for owners of bicycles in the city.

These licences are now available to the public at the City Hall and dog and bicycle owners are requested to secure them immediately. They can be procured in the office of the City Treasurer.

TRAVELLERS' CARS TOWED OFF STREETS

Numbers of out-of-town motorists who left their autos parked on downtown streets during the night received a bit of a surprise when they emerged from their hotels this morning to find their autos had disappeared.

Unaware of the local by-law forbidding all-night parking, the commercial travellers had left their cars on the streets all night with result that they obstructed city operation of the street snowplows. The Public Works Department had the cars towed to local garages.

One traveller complained to police that he had endeavored to get his auto into a garage for the night but garages were already filled so he was forced to leave his auto on the street.

Three Months In Jail For Bicycle Theft

Trenton — John Stewart, Trenton, appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in police court on Tuesday afternoon charged with theft of a bicycle and was sentenced to three months in the county jail. Stewart was found guilty of stealing the bicycle from a local citizen and selling same to a sporting goods store for $20.

Douglas Smith also appeared on a charge of theft by conversion but had his case dismissed.

Douglas McMurter, Trenton, appearing on a charge of common assault, had his case enlarged until called.

Thomas G. Cook, charged with false pretenses, had his case enlarged to Feb. 4th. for mental examination.

Harry Menzie and Alvin Deslauriers were each fined $13 under the Liquor Control Act.

The following persons were charged and found guilty of infractions of the Highway Traffic Act: Gerald R. Foster, $12.50; Emerson Jas. Clark, $12.50; Warner Wood, 4.50. The above cases were investigated by Provincial Traffic Officer, Sam Irvine.

Everett McDonald, H. L. Sweetman, Maurice Gartenburg and Earl Lawrence paid $2 each, parking by-law fines.

Struck by Car.

Charles Sandercock, age 57, of R. R. 1, Wellington, was struck by a car driven by Bill Elliott of Newtonville, Ontario, just east of the Trenton Air Station on Wednesday night at the height of a bad snowstorm. According to a statement to police, Elliott said he was blinded by the glaring headlights of an on-coming car and if he had not noticed the man at the moment he did, and swerved, it in all probability would have been a fatal accident. Sandercock was struck by the right front fender and suffered bruises and facial lacerations. He was picked up by the driver and rushed to the office of Dr. Gordon Telfer where he received medical aid.

James Truaisch Leases Station

Former parts and stock manager at Bateman's Motors on Moira Street, Mr. James Truaisch has disassociated himself with the firm and has taken over the management of the Imperial gasoline service station on Front Street across from the fire hall. The service station was formerly owned by Mr. C. N. Nicholson, Victoria Ave.

Prior to becoming parts manager with Bateman's Motors Mr. Truaisch had worked in the same capacity with Trudeau Motors. At the time he left Bateman's, Mr. Truaisch was presented with a Ronson lighter by the staff members.

Red Cross Society Hears Reports Of Activities in City and District

On Wednesday evening the local branch of Canadian Red Cross met in the Board Room of the Y.M.C.A., with the president, Mr. M P Duff, in charge. Mr. Duff opened the business of the meeting with a few remarks concerning post-war problems, saying that these offer as many opportunities for Red Cross service as did the problems confronting the members during the war period He made particular mention of the free blood transfusion service, which is already available in some parts of Canada, and of the development of nutrition classes.

600 Members in City

In Belleville there are approximately 600 members of this organization, who will be asked to contribute generously in March of this year to help in raising $10,000 in this community, fifty per cent of which will be retained for the advancement of local projects, the other fifty per cent to go to Toronto Division. The president expressed appreciation for the fine work done by the officers and their committees during the past year He especially wished to go on record as expressing personal gratitude to the Ontario Intelligencer for promoting Red Cross campaigns in the city. He said, "As a society we are indebted to the County Council, to the County Clerk, to the governor of the jail at the courthouse and to the Y.M.C.A. for always putting a room at our disposal. To all of these I express our deepest appreciation and gratitude."

Prinor to the presentation of medals for promotion of Junior Red Cross in the public schools, Mr. Duff remarked that in Canada there are 900,000 members of this branch of the society.

Mrs. C. A. Cameron congratulated Miss Winnifred Leslie, of King George School teaching staff, on her success in reaching the high standard set for promoting Red Cross work in public schools, and said she was delighted to have the privilege of pinning the award, a very beautiful medal. Mr. K. Bird, principal of Prince of Wales School was also eligible to receive an award, but was unable to be present at this meeting.

The work of Miss Dwyer among the B.C.I.V.S. students was cited by Miss Tickell, but she explained that secondary schools were not eligible for awards. Following the reading of the secretary's minutes other reports were given as follows:

Mrs. Watts, Public Health nurse reporting for the Junior Red Cross in the four public schools of the city, said:

"Junior Red Cross enrollment has been almost 100 per cent, forty-five class rooms out of forty-seven having each its own organization, some of the senior grades holding monthly meetings. Each group pays $1.00 membership and each child receives a button and a membership card with ten health rules. Program features are the use of posters, health talks and daily inspections in the junior grades. Senior pupils specialize in the visiting of sick members, with gifts of fruit or flowers. Candy has been sent to the children in the School for the Deaf at Brantford for both Christmas and Easter. Donations of pennies have amounted to almost $70, including membership fees.

B.C.I.V.S. Red Cross Club.

Speaking of the activities of the B.C.I.V.S. Red Cross Club, Miss Dwyer told of the donation of hand knitted garments to the local Red Cross; of boxes of children's knitted clothing sent to the Outpost Hospital at Bancroft; and of eight boxes of used clothing sent to Dr. Vente in Holland. A cheque for $25 was sent to Bancroft Red Cross Hospital, and another for the same amount to the Book Committee for children at the Hospital for Incurable Children, Toronto. In December this group sponsored the sending of food parcels to French children, eighteen such boxes going monthly. It may be of interest to know that these parcels have gone to children in that part of France which the Canadians in World War II were forced to demolish in conquering the Germans. A new interest is 'Friendship Boxes" which will be sent by individual students here to high school students in Europe; the first group will go to Dutch boys and girls of Zwolle.

Inadequate Equipment.

Presenting the report of the Women's Work Committee, Mrs. Mikel told a little of a new venture undertaken by this committee. "In Ontario there are 28 Red Cross Outpost Hospitals," she stated, "and recently the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross has been asked to adopt the Outpost Hospital at Whitney, a small village 45 miles north of Bancroft, and 65 miles east of Huntsville. Accordingly, last July Miss J. Tickell with Mrs. Bulger, Mrs. Northcote and Mrs. Mikel visited the Whitney Hospital to ascertain the needs there. They found the hospital in a small frame building inadequately equipped according to standards expected in a medical establishment. Oil lamps were the only means of night lighting. They found improper beds, a gasoline washing machine and an ice-supplied refrigerator, much too small for hospital use.

Since that time the Belleville branch has purchased proper beds and mattresses and installed an electrical unit which is giving splendid satisfaction. An electric refrigerator and washer will be purchased as soon as procurable.

Much Work Accomplished

Mrs. Mikel continued:

"Owing to the necessity of closing the office and workrooms at the Kiwanis Centre on April 1st, 1946, the regular work of the Red Cross groups had to be discontinued. While the workrooms and groups were in operation for only the first three months of 1946, considerable work was accomplished and 51 cartons were shipped containing 4,710 articles and one carton contained wool sent to the Grenville Mission.

"The articles shipped were: Quilts, 86; knitted British civilian relief, 1,313; service comforts, 358; British civilian relief, clothing, quilts, etc., 2,538; hospital supplies to Red Cross hospitals in Bancroft, Apsley, Whitney, 185; Good Neighborhood Club, Toronto, 68; Junior Red Cross, 137; leather and felt jerkins, 25. This was the work of 40 groups of women in Belleville and the surrounding country.

Review of Work

"It is interesting to review the work accomplished by the Women's War Work Committee since the re-opening of the Belleville branch of the Red Cross in 1939 to the present time," commented Mrs. Mikel. "There were 1,366 cartons shipped containing the following goods: British Civilian Relief, clothing, quilts, etc., 108,903; knitted articles for the services and civilian relief, 48,517; hospital supplies, 48,482; leather, Grenville and felt jerkins, 800; totalling $205,802 articles."

"Besides this there were distributed locally to veterans, families in distress and children of war brides some 2,900 pieces. There are also on hand about 125 pieces of knitted clothing for babies and children. This work was accomplished by 65 different groups containing approximately 850 women. There was also shipped from this office about 10,000 pounds of honey and jam during the same period.

"It is hoped that the workrooms can be opened up very shortly for there is a decided demand for children's clothing ranging from two to 14 years of age. The letter received Jan. 2, 1947, says, 'Too much stress cannot be placed on the urgency of making this clothing immediately for these children in such dire distress'."

Work of Nursing Reserve

The following report is a brief summary of the activities of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Nursing Reserve submitted by Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, local officer:

"Most important of the activities was the meeting of war brides and the training of a junior class in home nursing. The Home nursing class consisted of twelve children between the ages of twelve and sixteen. Classes were held in St. Thomas' Church Parish Hall and all completed this training and received A.Y.P.A. nursing badges. The class is continuing and on completion of this year's training if successful will receive Red Cross nursing pins.

A Red Cross loan cupboard was established at the clinic for the general use of the sick public under the supervision of the V.O.N. Some of the equipment provided was flannelette sheets, cotton sheets, pillow cases, towels, hot water bottle, bed pan, etc. Considerable use was made of the articles and it appears much benefit was received

1,100 Persons Welcomed

The responsibility of meeting the war brides was entrusted to the Reserve and to date over eleven hundred mothers and children have been received at the Red Cross hut. Of this number one hundred and seventy were for Belleville and the balance for the district. A light lunch consisting of tea, coffee, toast, biscuits also chocolate bars and cigarettes was furnished the brides and their next of kin and the work in this connection was most efficiently handled by the ladies of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, approximately four thousand lunches have been served The babies were also made comfortable to continue their journey.

The visiting committee under Mrs. Buchanan has had a very busy time assisting the brides to get established and helping with their many problems. Teas have been held at Y.M.C.A. twice monthly to provide an opportunity to meet friends and become better acquainted. Many individual calls were made where problems of an unusual nature developed. Some of them required financial and medical aid together with a few words of wisdom. In this group some thirty families required emergency attention.

Garden parties were held at the homes of Mrs. G K. Graham and Mrs. John English and a tea party at the Corby public library. These parties were well attended and all appeared to enjoy them immensely.

A Christmas tree for the children was held in St. Thomas Parish Hall and gifts were presented to each child. Some fifty mothers and seventy children attended. Over one hundred brides and their husbands attended party at the same place in the evening.

A nutrition class has been formed and is being held Thursday evening at the Belleville Collegiate for the purpose of acquainting brides with Canadian methods of cooking and household management.

In concluding this report it is my thought that considerable has been accomplished and much credit is due the nursing reserve for their untiring efforts, and many thanks to the service clubs for their help at the station However, it becomes more obvious that the services of a trained Social Service worker are urgently required in Belleville to look after cases beyond our scope."

He stated these medals are forwarded to the local branch from Divisional Red Cross headquarters in Toronto for presentation to these teachers for their work in connection with Junior Red Cross conducted in the local public schools. At the conclusion of local business Mr. Duff declared the meeting adjourned.

PARTY MAY DIVIDE

London, Jan. 30 (AP)—Possibility of a new division in the Labor Party on the question of peacetime conscription materialized in parliament today after the government had expressed hope of cutting Britain's regular army to "substantially" less than 1,000,000 men.

One segment of the party decided last night to press for an end to conscription when Prime Minister Attlee presents the government's new peacetime conscription bill in the Commons—probably in about six weeks.

Another group of Laborites is known to favor sharp reductions in military forces in view of the grace manpower shortage.

J. McVeigh Given Transfer to Sarnia Store Managership

Has Taken Big Interest in Community Activities During His 12-Year Residence Here

Well-known business and service club man, Mr. Jack McVeigh, for the past ten years manager of the Belleville branch of Kresge Stores, has been promoted to the managership of the Sarnia branch of the firm, it was announced here today. Mr. McVeigh leaves for his new sphere of duty this weekend. He is succeeded by Mr. J. Mulvahill, former manager at Stratford, who has been associated with the firm for the past twelve years.

Mr. McVeigh leaves behind him an enviable record of community service. Coming here in 1936 he immediately "fell in love" with his adopted city and its people, and applied himself to its betterment. Joining the Belleville Kiwanis Club his organizing and executive ability was soon recognized and he served for six years on the board of directors. In 1944 he was honored with the presidency of the club and his record of service to the club and the community in that year is one of the highlights of Kiwanis archives.

Worked on Victory Loans

During the war years he associated himself with the raising of money through the media of Victory Loans. For five successive loans he headed the public relations department of the Belleville committee

He has been president of the Retail Merchants' Association here and a member of the Y.M.C.A. directorate. He also applied his abilities to the activities of the Belleville Corvette Committee, and was a member of the Chamber of Commerce.

A member of the Knights of Columbus and the Holy Name Society, Mr. McVeigh was a devoted worker in St. Michael's Parish here.

Interested in Sports.

He took an ardent interest in sport especially with the younger fellows and it was partly through his efforts that the rejuvenation of organized baseball took place here two years ago. He was president of the Belleville Baseball Association in 1945 and he was largely instrumental in the surprising success of that organization in that year and in 1946.

Born in Halleybury, Ont., Mr. McVeigh moved later with his parents to Renfrew where he received his public and high school education. He joined the Kresge Stores Company in Flint, Mich., in 1930 and three years later was appointed manager in Toronto. He served in a similar capacity in Hamilton and Kitchener and in 1936 was promoted to the managership of the Belleville store.

He married the former Winifred Spencer of Flint, Mich., and has four girls and one son. Mrs. McVeigh and family will remain in residence in the city for some time before leaving for Sarnia and their new home.

"I leave Belleville with feelings of sincere regret," Mr. McVeigh said today. "It is a wonderful city and has grand people. We have made many friends here and the parting of the ways will be difficult."

Motorists Stall on Hills — Street car motorman and pedestrian both come to the aid of motorist stuck on Avenue Rd. hill trolley tracks last night in snowstorm as car wheels spin on hard-packed snow. Many drivers were forced to leave their cars below the Hill district.

One of the last babies to come over with the last group of war brides and children escorted by the Canadian Red Cross was Jimmy Boyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Boyd, Windsor, Ontario. The baby is shown here in the arms of Red Cross Nursing Aide, Elaine Cannon. Wee Jimmy was the last infant to pass through the Toronto reception centre. The Red Cross Escort and Reception Service, which has guided and cared for 61,200 war brides and children, is closing officially on February 2.

Temporary Lull Develops In Noranda Strike

Noranda, Que., Jan. 30 (CP)—Pickets trudged up an down in front of the big Noranda mine in 30 below zero wheather today as a temporary lull developed in the strike situation pending the arrival here of senior labor leaders and a government commissioner.

Joe Rankin, international representative of the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.) whose Noranda local called the strike here 10 weeks ago for wage increases and a union check-off, said today that Murray Cotterill, representative of the United Steelworkers of America, is expected to arrive here tomorrow.

A. R. Mosher, president of the Canadian Congress of Labor, announced in Ottawa last night that he had requested Cotterill also president of the Toronto Labor Council, to go to Noranda "for the purpose of observing the actions of the Quebec Provincial police in this critical situation." Rankin said other Labor leaders were expected.

Mr. Justice Oscar Boulanger, Industrial Disputes Inquiry commissioner, is due to arrive here Monday from Quebec and will preside at a hearing opening Tuesday at which the Union and Noranda Mines Limited will present their sides of the dispute.

May Possibly Spread

Possibility that the strike may spread to other northern Quebec and Ontario Mines still existed but indications were that the miners would observe a request made by Mosher "to make every endeavor to avoid any precipitate action" until Mr. Jutice Boulanger has had an opportunity to investigate the situation and report.

Union officials at Kirkland Lake Ont., said last night that an "overwhelming majority" of members of the local there voted to give their executive full powers to decide on any sympathy strike action that may be called. Similar support was said to have been voted at Timmins, Ont.

About 40 pickets were on duty today. Several car loads of strike sympathizers arrived this morning from Timmins' Sudbury and Kirkland Lake, adding to the 400 or 500 men who came into town from other mining towns in the district earlier in the week.

KIDNEY ACIDS Rob your Rest..

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—blame it on 'nerves'—when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons and excess acids from the blood. If they fail and impurities stay in the system—disturbed rest often follows. If you don't rest well get and use Dodd's Kidney Pills. Dodd's help the kidneys so that you can rest better—and feel better. 136

Triplets Given Year's Supply Carnation Milk

Bancroft — (Special) — Mrs. William Davidson and the triplets who were born to her over the New Year holiday are now not "patients" but "boarders" at the Red Cross Hospital here. Don and Douglas now weigh seven pounds two ounces, while the girl member of the trio, Doreen, tips the scales at six pounds fourteen ounces.

Learning that Dr. O. W. Anderson, Bancroft physician who brought the tiny trio into the world on a sub-zero New Year's Eve and morning, had placed the babies on supplementary feeding, Mr. Harry Taylor, a representative of the Carnation Milk Company, who was in the village the other day, immediately got in touch with his company.

The result. The babies will receive a year's supply of Carnation Milk, the gift of the company.

The objective set for the purchase of the new home for the eleven-piece Davidson family, has now reached the half-way mark, with subscriptions coming in steadily from local and outside points. Until the full amount is acquired and the new home ready for occupancy, the triplets and their mother will remain in hospital.

Dispelling prevalent rumors that hospital authorities were charging $3.25 daily per capita for the "boarders," officials stated today that the triplets are being maintained at a daily cost of 60 cents each and the mother $3.00.

Admiralty to Loan 14,000-Ton Carrier to Canada

London, Jan. 30 — (CP) — The Admiralty announced today that the 14,000-ton light fleet carrier Magnificent will be lent this year to the Royal Canadian Navy which already has on loan the Magnificent's sister ship, Warrior.

The announcement was part of a review showing that Britain had loaned, sold or arranged to sell 420 naval vessels to six Dominions and 13 foreign governments during the last six years.

Other ships transferred to Canada include six escort destroyers loaned in 1943 and 1944, the 8,000-ton cruisers Ontario and Ugande, given to the R.C.N. in 1944 and 1945, and the destroyers Crescent and Crusader, made part of the R.C.N. in 1945.

Divorcee Found Dying on Street, Internally Injured

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 30 — (AP) — Elizabeth Sattler, 28-year-old divorcee and daughter of West Virginia's state labor commissioner, was found dying on a Charleston street early today and police theorized she may have been slain.

Two squad car patrolmen reported the pretty brunette was doubled with pain and gasping for breath when they found her.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at hospital and authorities said an autopsy showed several internal injuries, as if she had been run over by an automobile.

Police Chief Harold B. Cornwell said he was inclined to "view the case with suspicion, but we feel we'll soon know exactly what occurred."

Miss Sattler, a public school teacher here, was divorced eight months ago and had been living with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. F. Sattler, a block from where she was found. Her divorce decree permitted her to resume her maiden name.

Chief Cornwell said five men and four women "friends and associates" were being questioned at headquarters.

Storms in Britain

Britain has faced problems in the past few years that have taxed her people. In the last war she bore a great share of the burden of humanity in the presence of the gravest threat in history to the spirit of freedom. What she endured in bombing and shortages in war days the world well knows. And it knows that she achieved supremely great results in helping to save the world for freedom and in bringing the aggressors to justice. Her rationing had to be severe and the war has left results not yet overcome but the Britons are heroically facing these with the hope predominent that these problems will be solved in a short time. She is making her way in the markets of the world and has reported greatly increased production in many lines.

The weather has twice in the past year added to the hardships of the British people. Last summer her crops were damaged and threatened with very great losses from untoward rain and storms. With shortage of fuel and expectation of cuts in electricity, the weather has again proven reactionary, winter's storms striking at transportation and the business of the country. Farms have been marooned and food supplies have been affected.

This great people has attacked the problems of the after-war era with all its energy. It is to be hoped that the weather situation will be relieved by cessation of storms which have helped to tie up communications and add to the problems.

Air Crash at Copenhagen

Loss of lives in air crashes during the past few weeks has attracted the notice of the world. The loss of the plane at Copenhagen at the last weekend drew especial attention because the world at large knew something about the more famous persons aboard, Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden, Grace Moore, one of the great singers of the day, and other prominent and well-known persons. Even the loss of the least known persons is to be deplored as is any accident of any kind. Naturally the human interest is more intense and the sorrow more widely felt when those who have lost their lives are well-known. In one swift plunge all was over at Copenhagen, crew and passengers and plane all lost.

The fatal blow at so large a company of people cannot but focus the thought on and intensify the search for some means of reducing and preventing such tragedies. Everyone recognizes that there is a certain risk in such travel. It has been shown by statistics that the air travel risk a passenger takes is becoming less and less, the human loss per passenger mile having shown steady decline. That however does not lessen the poignancy of grief over any air tragedy.

Aviation will go on and on in development and in quest of the greatest safety. Its progress has been very great and it holds out promise for greater progress in the future.

The death of the Prince of the Royal House of Sweden, second in line to the Swedish throne, has thrown Sweden and other countries into mourning. That of Grace Moore who went through life adding joy to the world by her songs and her marvellous endowment of voice is irreparable. Her passing is a tragedy that the people of the theatre and concert hall, of the countless motion picture houses and the people in every realm feel keenly at their hearts. They had learned to treasure the message of such a minstrel of song who had triumphed on musical comedy stage, in grand opera and in motion pictures and was so lavish of her genius for the world's cheer, happiness and gaiety.

National Health Week

Should Canadians consider the possibility of Canada becoming a leader among the great nations of the world? Is it presumption or wild fancy ever to dream of such a possibility? Or should we pause in our hectic life long enough to examine the possibilities of Canada's being forced into that position in spite of herself.

Some facts suggest themselves in our endeavour to answer these questions. For example, the area of Canada — the third largest country in the world; our natural resources — among the greatest of the great countries; our achievements — in navigation, commerce and applied science; our contribution to medicine, particularly through insulin; our high standards of education; our high standards of living.

Also, it is quite possible Canada will become the centre of world air travel. Thus, if we should be forced right out into the middle of the stage, what are we going to do about it? Let the story of Canada in 1914-18 and 1939-45 help to answer the question. We faced world situations in a great way. Can anyone suppose we should not face this possible new situation in as great a way?

But what is this supposition about Canada as a great nation to do with health and Nation Health Week, observed throughout the Dominion this year from February 2nd to 8th.?

Simply this. To face a great situation in a great way demands a people as great as they can possibly be in body, mind and spirit. And, body, mind and spirit are indissolubly bound together. Granted that Canada enjoyed not only health, but optimim health, in body, mind and spirit, Canadians could do anything that mortals could be expected to do.

Nation Health Week, sponsored by the Health League of Canada, is supported by federal, provincial and municipal health authorities, education departments, boards of education, schools, churches, women's organizations, service clubs — newspapers, radio, magazines and journals, motion pictures and other such media — all banded in one great chorus to proclaim the gospel of the best health for all Canadians."

We Grow Older

In the old Roman days it was truthfully said that the crowd on the Appian Way never grew old. The same cannot be said in modern times of the crowds on Broadway and Fifth Avenue. The City Health Department, reporting on this matter recently, sketches the change in the situation since 1898. If a typical slice of the population had gone strolling in 1898 each one hundred strollers would have been divided as follows: Under 15, 30.7; between 15 and 44, 53.4; between 45 and 64, 13.1; over 65, 2.8. If the same thing had occurred in 1945 the the proportions would have been: Under 15, 19.8; 15 to 44, 52.9; 45 to 64, 21.8; over 65, 5.5. The drop in the number of strollers under 15 would astound our parents and grandparents — 11 out of every 30.7 have disappeared. Likewise, there has been an increase of more than 11 in the strollers over the age of 44.

The decrease in the death rate, cut almost in half by a drop from 20.3 to 10.3 a thousand, accounts for the survival of the middle-aged and old. The infant death rate fell enormously — from 140.9 a thousand live births to 30.4. One can scarcely begin to imagine the weight of sorrow that has been lifted from parental shoulders. If we have fewer young people today, in proportion to population, it is partly because the birth rate dropped from 36.4 a thousand to 16.7. The large family is no longer the pattern. More people miss the joys and anxieties of parenthood.

Half a century from now what will be the story? Unless some deep social influence increases the birth rate the crowd on the streets will be still older than it is today. The degenerative diseases that kill off the elderly will be restricted or conquered. We have to hope that the spirit of youth will be prolonged as health and strength are prolonged. Otherwise the prospect of an aging population, whose chief aim in life would be to keep its feet dry and stay alive, would be dismally uninviting.

VILLAGE — CITY

The cities, swollen, rich and proud,
Where most are strangers in a crowd,
Have lost some bits of happiness
The little villages possess;
For greatness ruthlessly destroys
Innumerable lesser joys.

The city people come and go,
And few of all their fellows know.
But those who walk a village street
Know everyone they chance to meet,
And on the way to store or shop
Have time to chat, with friends to stop.

Success and fame will have their cost!
Another joy to cities lost
Is trudging down a dusty trail
To watch and wait and get the mail.
Though long or short that daily trip,
It means an hour of fellowship.

I wonder, as I join the file,
Is greatness, after all, worth while?
It seems the little towns possess
More time and ways to happiness —
For instance, one, that dusty trail
To walk and wait get the mail!

Whitehall Note Book

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 30 —(CP)— The Liberal party, worth 2,250,000 votes in the 1945 general election, up 1,000,000 from 1935, has disturbed both Conservative and Labor parties — something they did not think it capable of doing.

The Labor government attitude has been that the Liberals, represented in the Commons by only 11 members, were pretty safely in support of most Socialist doctrines and would cause no trouble. The Conservatives took the attitude that the Liberal Nationals — there are 13 in the House — represented true Liberalism and of course would vote with the Conservatives on every occasion.

Now there are evidences of a split in Liberal opinion and instead of a Liberal revival there may be a division under which some will swing towards the Conservatives and others towards Labor.

Some Liberals think the government is doing well in bringing in legislation to nationalize transport; others think it is going too far.

If the Liberal party is to divide over nationalization and other issues, then the Labor and Conservative planners at once must be on the alert to pick up as many new recruits as possible.

But if the Liberal party is to stay united and go trumpeting about the country with a policy critical of the more extreme Labor moves but still somewhat left of the Conservatives, then it may begin collecting serious numbers of supporters.

Whatever happens, there will be no more comments like those of Alan W. Grey, chairman of the Junior Conservatives Uxbridge Division, who said publicly:

"The Liberals in Britain today are strikingly similar to the fleas in Ireland — people are just too kind-hearted to kill them."

Gold Production $65,463,142 in '46 In Ontario

Toronto, Jan. 30 —(CP)— Ontario's gold mining industry produced bullion valued at $65,463,142 in the year 1946, an increase of 10 per cent over $59,379,496 in 1945. Mills treated 7,223,430 tons of ore, against 6,202,493, an increase of 16 per cent. Gold recovery at 1,775,016 ounces was up 15.46 per cent and silver contained in bullion was up 19.01 per cent totalling 340,239. In reporting statistics for the year the Provincial Department of Mines states the industry completed 1946 in an optimistic mood, notwithstanding a severe setback suffered in the early part of July when Canada re-established a parity between Canadian and United States dollars thereby reducing the value of Canadian gold from $38.50 to $35 an ounce Canadian funds.

Production for the month of December amounted to $5,504,694, highest monthly output since June which was the last "high premium" month. This production was from 602,840 tons of ore milled. Production in December, 1945, was $5,622,718 from 539,792 tons milled.

Production for the year by various mining districts, with comparable figures for 1945 in brackets, follows:

Porcupine $33,785,928 ($32,131,111) from 3,954,113 tons of ore milled (3,584,537); Kirkland Lake-Larder Lake $20,241,142 ($18,484,292) from 1,940,120 tons (1,671,402); Matachewan - Sudbury $1,579,731 ($1,355,334) from 431,509, tons (467,917); Northwestern Ontario, including Algoma, Thunder Bay, Patricia, Kenora, Rainy River, $9,856,341 ($7,307,866) from 897,688 tons (578,637); miscellaneous value in 1945 $983 with no comparable figure for 1946.

Production for the month of December, with comparable figures for December, 1945, in brackets, follows:

Porcupine $2,828,588 ($3,024,322) from 307,680 tons (334,689); Kirkland Lake-Larder Lake $1,663,475 ($1,789,385) from 169,908 tons (106,156); Matachewan-Sudbury $148,868 $180,054) from 45,599 tons (39,560); Northwestern Ontario $863,763 ($628,957) from 79,653 tons (55,387.)

Windsor, Jan. 30 —(CP)— Smoke—and not the Jerome Kern variety—gets in their eyes, but the citizens of Windsor apparently don't mind. PEACE BRIDGE TOLLS UP IN SPITE OF CUT IN RATES

Fort Erie, Jan. 30 —(CP)— Chairman Harry Yates of the Peace Bridge authority released figures yesterday showing that in spite of a cut in tolls made early last fall, receipts of the Peace Bridge linking Fort Erie and Buffalo increased from $503,843 in 1945 to $672,606 in 1946. Yates, favored lowered tolls a year ago now says, "I tolled you so."

DONT LET YOUR DIET THROW YOU

Yankee wiseacre valetudinarians (Glossary: Yankee means North American; wiseacre, any damn fool who thinks he or she knows as much or more about health, pathology, theraputics dietetics, nutrition etc. etc., as an ordinary doctor knows; valetudinarian, a wiseacre who gets so far out of this world following the freak healers, strange diets and pseudo science that even when his purchasing power is exhausted, he can never be quite content with the honest treatment of these practitioners around here), for some reason or other that I don't understand, are not now importuning this service for lists of foods that will not cause acidosis. Formerly this question brought a great many letters. Can it be, I wonder hopefully, that the younger generation....

A good many wiseacres who know just enough to understand that, if not why, I do not prescribe for a correspondent still are too dumb to realize that, or why I do not provide a correspondent with a diet or a list of foods he or she may or may not eat or a list of foods that contain this or a list of foods that do not contain that or even tell him or her which foods are nourishing but not fattening or which foods are nourishing but easily digestible or which foods are nonstarchy.

These credulous wiseacres have been expoited so well and so long by the charlatans that they have come to believe an "ordinary" doctor knows only about "pills and potions" and only the mail order and miracle men are endowed with the wisdom to tell customers what to eat and what to avoid. This childish idea pervades our entire national consciousness—it accounts for the farcical court performance in which the illegal practitioner so easily convinces the court that he was not practicing medicine because he gave no drugs no "pills and potions." This mockery saves many a crook from a just verdict for the court or jury prefers to ignore the statutory definition that a person who holds himself out as being able to diagnose, treat, operate or prescribe for any human disease pain, injury deformity or physical condition ....by means or method" is practicing medicine.

As Dr. J. R. Forbes observed (Lancet, Aug. 31, '46), the enforced disappearance of dietary regimens due to rationing and food shortages in the last few years in England seemed to have little or no ill effect—in fact he finds that many diets customarily prescribed for such conditions as peptic ulcer—and Forbes now allows his ulcer patients to eat within reason whatever they find they can eat without upset or discomfort afterwards. His patients seem to be getting along better now that they do not feel obliged to consider their stomack or debate the digestibility of each dish before tackling it.

This reminds me—if any of your poor geeks with hyperchlorhydria, "indigestion," smokers duodenal ulcer complex or gastric ulcer and no fooling notice a slight discrepancy in the foods I mention in the paragraph on hyperacidity and the menus for a week for patient and the rest of the family, in the booklet "So You Have Indigestion" (for copy send a dime not messed up with any adhesive substance and a stamped envelope bearing your address) please don't fash yourself about it. The way to handle such a problem is simple—just sneak up on the item, gobble it up (of course with proper mastication), and be guided by what you hear from it later. If it "agrees" you're so much to the god; if it gives you any trouble ..well, this is a free country and you have the right to cuss me out and demand your money back.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why are maps made with north at the top?

Almost all modern maps and geographical charts are made with the north at the top. Maps with other directions at the top are exceptional. No scientific principle makes this particular orientation essential and it is merely a convenient practice based on centuries of usage.

Most of the Greek and Roman map-makers placed east at the top of their maps because it was the direction of the rising sun. As a rule medieval Christian cartographers followed the same custom. Their belief that the original Garden of Eden lay on the eastern border of the known world supplied a further incentive toward this orientation. Geographers who made maps with east at the top were guided by the same principle that guided architects who planned churches and cathedrals with the altar at the east end.

There were a few exceptions. There is a map of the world in the British Museum made in Rome in 1546 with west at the top. The draughtsman apparently drew it west and east because he wished to fit the British Isles into an atlas that was wider than it was high. Another map in the same collection was orientated with south at the top. It was made in 1492, before the convention was well established that maps should be made with the north up and the south down, and it was the natural orientation for a German cartographer to adopt in preparing a map showing the way to Rome from Germany. Strangely enough, orientation toward the south was the general custom among the Arab map-makers of the Middle Ages.

The modern custom of orientating maps with the north at the top was undoubtedly suggested by Ptolemy, the Greek geographer who lived at Alexandria in the second century A.D. He made his maps with north up and south down. With the revival of Ptolemy's geography during the Renaissance the orientation adopted by him gradually became an established custom in Europe. The fact that the most of the known land area of the earth was in the northern hemisphere encouraged the practice, which was further confirmed by the increasing use of meridians and parallels in cartography. North is at the top of the maps of the British Isles made by Matthew Paris in the 13th century, and the use of the same orientation was used in sailors' charts dating from about 1300. It was natural that the globe-makers of the 16th century should observe the same custom and place the north pole on the upper hemisphere and the south pole on the southern. That is how it happens that we say "down South" and "up North" and regard the North Pole as the top and the South Pole as the bottom of the earth.

A person in the south is likely to say "up North," while a person in the North is likely to say "down South." Nowadays the average American in speaking of the Northern and the Southern States says "in the North" and "in the South"; but until the time of the Civil War the phrases were "at the North" and "at the South." The country was settled largely from east to the west and Easterners say "out West" and Westerners say "back East." Oddly enough, New Englanders refer to Maine as "down east," and elsewhere in the Eastern States all of New England is often designated "down east." It is an American idiom hard to account for. Perhaps the underlying thought of "down" in the phrase was originally "down on the coast" in contrast to the interior or hinterland. Contrary to a popular impression, "down east" does not go back to Colonial times. The earliest known use of the phrase is dated 1825.

3 Rural Churches Submit Reports Of Year's Activities

The three congregations composing the Bayside Charge held their congregational meetings recently. Despite unfavorable weather conditions the attendance in each instance was most gratifying, and a splendid spirit of co-operation prevailed throughout.

Wesley

The Wesley Church held a meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Rutter, where the minister, Rev. A. C. McCallum presided, and conducted a brief devotional period before the transaction of the regular business, with Mrs. R. Kempster as secretary. Mr. H. M. Rutter, treasurer, submitted a report showing a substantial Balance. Mrs. C. Wilson, reporting for the Woman's Association, gave a resume of the work of the year 1946, displaying much diligence on the part of all the members. The Bayside W.M.S. reached their allocation, and the missionary givings of the congregation were well in advance of the previous year. In his report the minister thanked all for their hearty support, referring to the loyal support of the choir, and to Mr. Rutter for his continued interest.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

Session, Mr. Frank Reid and Mr. Donald Gunn, Stewards—Messrs H. M. Rutter, (treasurer) J. Stewart (Secretary) Frank Denyes.

All departments reported a successful year. Mrs. G. Bellham submitted the Sunday School report, which evidenced a degree of progress. The Supt., Mr. W.A. Jeffrey, expressed gratitude to the teachers and parents for their co-operation. Mrs. Walter Jones president of the W.A. submitted a report showing that more than $300 had bee raised by that organization. The ladies assumed the major responsibility for the redecorating of the church, and are to be congratulated upon the success of this venture. Congregational treasurer, Mr. C. Rush reported all financial obligations met. It is regretted that Mr. Rush finds it necessary to relinquish his office, which he has held for many years. A vote of appreciation was extended to Mr. Rush for his services. Mr. Bert Sarles a member of the property committee, referred to the splendid co-operation between the men and women of the congregation during the recent renovation of the church. He felt the effort had stimulated the interest in the work of the church as a vital factor in the community. During the year eight new members had been added to the membership.

The following officers were elected:—

Session:—Messrs C. Rush, W.A. Jeffrey, G. Saylor, Board of Stewards:—Messrs Glen Myers, (Treasurer), Lorne Hunt (Secretary), H. S. DeMille, W. Jones C. Jeffrey, F. Sandercock. Pianist:—Mrs. W. A. Jeffrey, Assistant:—Mrs. Dan Bowers. Choir leader:—Mr. Albert Jones. Plate collectors:—Messrs W. Jones and F. Sandercock.

The meeting closed with the benediction, after which delicious refreshments were served by the ladies.

CENTENARY

The various reports which were given at the congregational meeting held in the Centenary Church last Thursday evening, showed that the church had enjoyed one of the best years in its history.

The Rev. A. C. McCallum presided, and associated with him was Edgar Ray, Secretary-Treasurer. Proceedings opened with a brief devotional period conducted by the minister. Mr. McCallum stressed the necessity of the church exercising a dynamic influence in the community. The Session Report as submitted by Mr. R. Edmundson showed a slight increase in membership and the communion had been dispensed each quarter The minister reported on the state of the congregation in regard to church attendance and visitations. There were two deaths, eight baptisms and one wedding.

Edgar Ray treasurer, gave the financial statement which showed increased givings with a substantial balance on hand. Donations to the missionary maintenance Fund amounted to $184 Pension Capital Fund, $103. Sunday School and Young Peoples Union raised over $200, while Woman's Missionary Society and Woman's Association had record years. The Missionary Society report was presented by Mrs. D. Holtch. Mrs. Lillian Hall gave the report of the Woman's Association.

Mr. D. A. Thrasher, chairman of the Property Committee offered several suggestions as to the repair and upkeeping on the church property. It was decided to leave the matter in hands of the committee to do what seemed to be best.

The election of officers resulted as follows:—

Session:—Messrs G. Shortt, H. Roblin, R. H. Hart, J. Keene, E. Ray, D. H. Holton and R. Edmundson, Clerk of Session.

Stewards:—E. Ray, (Secretary-Treasurer), E. G. Hart, H. G. McLeod, Ray Hall, G. Sills, G. Wood, H. Blakely and P. Sutherland.

The election resulted in the following being appointed as stewards, Harold Blakely, replacing Douglas Harder and Percy Sutherland as a new member. Mr. W. S. McLeod was appointed chairman and E. G. Hart, secretary, and Mr. Edgar as treasurer. The members of Session were all re-elected and the same applied to the trustees. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr. McCallum and Mrs. Mooney for their services. The minister expressed his appreciation of the kind and sympathetic co-operation of all. Following the business the ladies provided a delightful lunch and a social time was enjoyed by all.

The three congregations were unanimous in their appreciation of the services of Rev. McCallum and his sister, Mrs. H. J. Mooney. Mr. McCallum was invited to remain another year.

"We're Hateful" But Get House

Adelaide, Australia, Jan. 30—(CP)—A man in Adelaide advertised for a house — and got one. His advertisement read:—

"I am a beaut. I only work when I have to, and I don't like gardening.

"If you must know, I beat my wife.

"I have a youngster, too, who will draw nice pictures on your walls, the little pet.

"I put up with them because I love them. I'll go on living with them.

"The question is — where? Your guess is as good as mine, but I'm not particular, as long as we are on our own.

"I'm tired of beating up the in-laws, so if you think your house can stand it, please ring F3294."

Next morning a man rang the number given and said: "Who are you, anyway?"

Given the information, the caller rang off with, "I was curious to know if you were fair dinkum. I think you must be nuts."

Five minutes later another man rang and offered a caravan at the seaside. The offer was declined.

Soon after a third rang and said: "I like your sense of humor, Joe. I haven't got a house to offer, but I like your style and I'll do my best to find you one."

The fourth caller offered a new five-roomed house for a "man with imagination."

Family Quarrel Interrupted By Crown Witness

Sarnia, Ont., Jan. 30. (CP)—Harry Holmes, a Crown witness in the murder trial of Joseph Taylor, testified yesterday that he had interrupted a family quarrel in which Taylor told him "this is none of your business nor your home." That was a few hours before Mrs. Joseph Taylor was found severely injured in the Taylor's beach cabin near here on the night of Nov. 29. She died on Nov. 30.

Holmes, a friend of the accused, said that he met Taylor and the slain woman in a beverage room Nov. 29 and after they drank beer they purchased wine which they took to the Taylor cabin. Another neighbor joined the party.

During the party, Holmes testified, an argument arose which resulted in Mrs. Taylor going to her bedroom, followed by Taylor. Holmes said he heard a scuffle and went to the door, where Taylor told him to stay out of it. Later, when Holmes went to his car to drive home, he found Mrs. Taylor in the rear seat and she asked to be driven to the highway. He said the woman had a bottle of beer with her but that he refused to open it because "she had had enough."

Holmes said he had let Mrs. Taylor out of his car a quarter of a mile from the Taylor cabin because she wanted "to take up time in getting back."

When it was suggested he was afraid to return with her he said:

"I had seen one battle that night and had interrupted it and I certainly didn't want to see any more."

There she is studying French before going to Africa, where she will serve as a missionary-nurse, under the Soudan United Mission Board. She writes of the scarcity of food and fuel in Europe and reminds us of how favored we are in Canada. It is cold enough for snow there but they have no heat in the churches. In the homes one room is heated. Beds are made warm with a "cruche".

Mr. Carl Bedal, Queen's University, Kingston visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bedal over the weekend.

Mr. Magnus Beggs, who has spent the summer in Brighton for the past few years, passed away quite suddenly, near Los Angeles, Calif. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Irene Sanford of Brighton. Mr. Beggs' father, Mr. Peter Beggs, was at one time editor of the Brighton paper.

WEDDINGS

COOPER—COLEMAN

Ferns, pink, white and mauve snapdragons artistically arranged in tall standards formed the setting in Albert Street United Church, Oshawa on Saturday afternoon, at 2.30 p.m., January 25, for a pretty wedding when Barbara Joan Coleman was united in marriage to Mr. Eric Cooper by the Rev. E. Donevan Jones. Mrs. Carl Morgan played the wedding music and Mrs. Mona Morrison sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Coleman, of Oshawa, and the groom, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cooper, of Belleville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a gown of white slipper satin and net, styled with sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice, bracelet length sleeves, tiny buttons outlined the back of the gown, the long bouffant skirt was floor length. A heart-shaped net headdress held the veil of embroidered net which swept into a long train, and she carried a cascade of red roses and white carnations tied with white satin ribbon. Her jewelry was a strand of pearls.

Miss Lois Coleman was maid of honor for her cousin, and wore a long frock of petal pink faconne crepe, designed with square neckline, short sleeves, and very full skirt. She wore a headdress of pink snapdragons and carried cascade of pink carnations tied with chiffon ribbon. Long mittens of the same material as her gown completed her costume.

Mr. George Cooper was best man for his brother and the ushers were Mr. William Coleman, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Kenneth Jackson.

The reception was held in the Sunday School auditorium. Mrs. Coleman, the bride's mother, received the guests wearing a powder blue street length dress, made with elbow length sleeves and draped skirt, navy hat accented with powder blue coque feathers, and a corsage of rose carnations. Mrs. Cooper, the groom's mother, assisted in welcoming the guests, wearing French blue crepe, flower trimmed hat and corsage of pink carnations. Rev. Mr. Jones proposed the toast to the bride and groom. A group of the Women's Association of Albert Street United Church served the wedding dinner. Mrs. Robert Holden, Sr., and Mrs. Henry Hogarth poured tea. The tables were effective with ivory tapers in silver holders and bouquets of pink carnations. The wedding cake nested in pink tulle occupied the place of honor on the bride's table.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls and Buffalo, the bride wore coral wool suit topped by a brown mouton coat, the gift of the groom, a brown and coral feather hat with veil, and a corsage of mauve orchids On their return Mr. and Mrs. Cooper will reside at 133 Clarke Street, in Oshawa.

Easy Breathing Exercises Help Many Beauty Defects

Lovely actress Marguerite Chapman knows how much easy breathing exercises will benefit the complexion

By HELEN FOLLETT

GIRLS who aren't chesty or busty needn't expect to stand in the front line of the beauty chorus. Slim legs one must have, also a trim waist and neat hips, and a real facade north of the human equator. One way to attain the fashionable figure is to air-wash your lungs at every opportunity. This practice will give you the idea that you look best when your chest is inflated. It promotes good posture. Fill out the chest and undeveloped breasts will assume more normal contours.

Beauty attributes acquired from the daily habit of air-washing the lungs are manifold. As circulation reacts upon the complexion, pumping ozone into your bellows puts color in the cheeks, creates a rosy glow that puts the rouge compact to shame. Digestion is stimulated; that is all for the good since many complexion ills are due to digestive motors that do not function as they should. Fresh air puts on the eye shine. It boosts the spirits, creates appetite, makes sleep sound and refreshing.

For ten minutes each day, try clavicular breathing. With each inhalation the body must stretch itself high, bringing the backbone out of its huddle, expanding the apieces of the lungs. For the girl who is cursed with a concaved chest and who would be bosomy, this is an effective, worthwhile exervise. Makes one feel peppy, too.

For the Waistline

For the woman whose waistline has been lost in an accumulation of fat cells, diaphragmatic breathing is recommended. She should take long, deep breaths through the nostrils, drawing in the air until the chest has lifted to its highest, at the same time drawing in the abdominal muscles. She must exhale slowly through the lips.

While doing this the body should be held erect, hands placed on the hips, feet four or five inches apart. Mrs. Lazy Bones can do this exercise in bed, if she wishes. It will help her to start the day with energy and spirit.

Winter Fashions in Vegetables

Wise mothers no longer talk much at the table about why certain foods should be eaten; instead they cook their vegetables for instance, in the best possible way and second helpings are demanded. Since the methods of cooking vegetables have been modernized there is no difficulty in persuading either children or adults to take their share.

Bright colors always attract the eye and stimulate the appetite. The texture of vegetables cooked until just tender crisp is satisfying when one bites into them and in addition they keep their natural vivid coloring. The true flavor is there too.

Plain boiled or mashed vegetables are fine occasionally, but become monotonous, if served every day. Good sauces and other special touches keep up the interest.

Food ideas do not just happen nor are they dreamed up. Most new recipes are the result of ceraful planning and experimentation even if the original idea is more or less visionary. The home economists of the Consumer Section, of the Dominion Department of Agriculture work on their ideas until the resulting recipe is practical, satisfying and accurate although there may still be something to dream about. Here are three excellent and unusual recipes using inexpensive winter vegetables.

Parsnip and Apple Casserole

4 cups thinly sliced parsnips
2 cups sliced apples
1½ tablespoons brown sugar
1¼ teaspoons salt
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons water.

Arrange alternate layers of parsnips and apples in a casserole. Sprinkle each layer with sugar and salt and dot with butter. Add water, cover casserole, and bake in a moderate oven, 350°F, for 1 hour, or until tender. Six servings.

Onion Shortcake

10 medium sized onions
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons fat
biscuit dough (soft)
¼ teaspoon paprika
1 tablespoon chopped parsley (optional)
1 cup medium white sauce
¼ teaspoon salt
Dash of nutmeg
1 egg slightly beaten

Peel and slice onions, sprinkle with 1 teaspoon salt. Melt fat, add onions, cover and simmer until tender. Cool. Spread soft biscuit dough in a greased 10 inch square pan. Cover with onions and sprinkle with paprika and chopped parsley. To the white sauce add salt, nutmeg and slightly beaten egg. Pour the sauce over the onions. Bake in hot oven, 425°F, for 25 - 30 minutes. Six to eight servings.

Beets Piquantes

3 tablespoons fat
3 tablespoons flour
1½ cups beet liquid
1½ teaspoons brown sugar
1½ teaspoon salt
4½ tablespoons horseradish
3 cups diced cooked beets

Melt fat in saucepan. Blend in flour and beet juice. Cook, stirring constantly until thickened. Add sugar, salt, horseradish and beets. Heat thoroughly and serve. Six servings.

Successful Year Reported At Vestry Meeting

Marmora. (Special.)—A highly successful year was reported at the annual vestry meeting of St. Paul's Anglican Church held in the Parish Hall on Monday evening, when the 1946 activities of the various organizations were reviewed.

Rector Presides

Rev. J. M. Brownlie, rector presided over a good attendance and opened the meeting with prayer. He then read a report of the general activities of the past year and presenting his own report as rector, gave the following statistics:

Services: Morning Prayer 23; Evening Prayer 19; celebrations of Holy Communion 35; early celebrations 6; private celebrations 8; baptisms 25, (including 7 adults); confirmed 9; marriages 9; burials 9.

Receipts Highest in Years

The treasurer's report as compiled by G. Kerr, was presented by C. R. Whittemore, showing receipts as the highest for some years and a balance on hand after meeting the yearly obligations.

J. W. Hickey gave the report of the Anglican Advance Appeal pledges and receipts. The former greatly exceeds the local quota and payments are being well met. In the temporary absenec of Mrs. J. M. Brownlie, the report of the W.A. was given by Mrs. R. G. Winters. This organization, the newest to function in the parish also enjoyed a prosperous year. The Ladies' Guild added another good year to its history in that receipts reached a high mark with goodly expenditures in parochial work, and substantial support being given to the church Decoration Fund. The report in detail was given by Miss M. Savage, the retiring treasurer.

Supported Missions

W. J. Cottrell, Missions treasurer, showed the support of Missions to have been highly commendable. At the conclusion of his report, the rector read a letter addressed to the parish by Canon N. R. Stout, which had been sent to the fifty-five parishes in the Diocese of Ontario which had met their missionary apportionment in full. In the absence of the Sunday School secretary-treasurer, Miss Jennie Gray, that report was given by W. J. Cottrell. After revealing that the Sunday School had had a good year financially, the speaker paid fitting tribute to the work of the Sunday School as a whole. "Stand by the Sunday School and fortify it", he urged, "for it faces much in the years ahead as the great instrument to cope with juvenile delinquency".

The report of the newly reorganized Laymen's Association was furnished by the rector. Concluding reports both of an encouraging nature were those of the Altar Guild and the Flower Fund presented by Mesdames R. G. Winters and E. Hewitt.

Appointments Made

The rector reappointed H. R. Pearce as rector's warden and W. D. Lavender was re-elected as people's warden. Also re-elected were G. Kerr, as treasurer. W. J. Cottrell as Missions' treasurer and C. R. Whittemore, as auditor.

Lay delegates to the Synod were appointed as follows: L. R. Rundle, (3 years); C. H. Buskard, (2 years); L. K. Crawford, (1 year). Alternatives S. C. Boyd and J. W. Hickey.

Ray Smith was elected Vestry Clerk.

The following will comprise the Executive Council—The rector, wardens, lay delegates, the president and secretary of the Ladies' Guild; the president and secretary of the W.A.; the superintendent and secretary of the Sunday School and members of the sidemen's body.

Members of the sidemen's body, additional to H. R. Pearce, W. D. Lavender, G. Kerr, C. R. Whittemore, C. H. Buskard and L. K. Crawford are R. J. Scott, G. Brown, E. Hewitt, S. C. Boyd, R. E. Bonter, J. W. Hickey, D. Robertson, J. A. Rice, W. M. Regan, W. Simmons, N. A. Kilpatrick and D. McIlroy.

Matters of interest to the congregation such as improved lighting for the church, were discussed. Votes of thanks to the rector and Mrs. Brownlie, the wardens and the organizations of the church were voiced before the meeting closed with the benediction being pronounced by the rector. Refreshments were served by members of the Ladies' Guild.

Study Question Of Higher Prices For Feed Grain

By JACK AVESON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Winnipeg, Jan. 30 —(CP)— The 11th annual convention of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture today settled down to passage of resolutions following an open session yesterday at which the pros and cons of increased feed grain prices in relation to stepped-up hog production were widely discussed.

Today's meetings were expected to mark the end of the convention's public sessions. The board of directors is scheduled to wind up the annual meeting Friday.

At that meeting official action is expected on a resolution advocating that both the floor and ceiling prices for barley and oats be raised.

Yesterday's session dealt with the feed grain problem, with emphasis on the current shortage in Eastern Canada and the advisability of maintaining bacon exports to the United Kingdom.

Eastern delegates felt that if barley was subsidized, Eastern farmers should not be expected to assume financial responsibility. Western delegates agreed, saying the same contention would hold good if hog production in the East was subsidized.

Desirability of a long-term agricultural program was stressed by a number of speakers, including P. E. French of Vernon, B.C., president of the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture.

The current feed shortage in Eastern Canada was described by J. R. Ascoli of Montreal, import-export manager of the Co-operative Federee of Quebec as "critical." Something would have to be done about it if present bacon committments to Great Britain were to be fulfilled.

Some fear was expressed that regardless of what policy was adopted, sufficient barley would not be produced to fill needs of an expanded Eastern hog market after Western hog producers had obtained their necessary feed supplies and the foreign trade satisfied.

Adjusted freight rates were urged by R. W. Morrison of Alvinston, Ont., so that Eastern Canada could feed grains from the West at low cost.

50 JAPANESE DROWN

Madoc

Mrs. Jack Kincaid Holds Reception

Madoc. (Special.)—Mrs. Jack Kincaid, (nee Jean Hart, of London), received for the first time since her marriage, at the home of Mrs. Fraser Aylsworth, Madoc, on Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The bride wore her wedding gown of white lace and a rose corsage. She was assisted in receiving her guests by Mrs. (Dr.) Alexander and Mrs. Pencock, aunts of the groom and by Mrs. F. Aylsworth and Mrs. Kelvin Kincaid. Little Miss Mary Jane Kincaid, dressed in white, attended the door. The living room was tastefully decorated with snapdragons and begonias.

The tea room was a centre of attraction decorated with Spring flowers. An heirloom lace tablecloth was used, centred by a bouquet of daffodils and iris, with yellow candles in silver holders. Mrs. (Dr.) Beatty and Mrs. Robert Bristol poured tea, while Mrs. McCracken, Mrs. Grinrod, Mrs. K. Nicol, Mrs. Jim Kincaid and Miss Barbara Kincaid assisted in the serving. The groom is a popular young business man and town councillor and many friends called to welcome his bride.

Perfect Plan ...Valentine's Day For a Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My dearest girl friend is going to be married on February 27, and I want to give a shower in her honor. Do you think it would be nice if I had the shower on Valentine's Day, or would that be too late a date before her wedding?

Edith

By all means choose this romantic day, St. Valentine's Day, for your shower. This day, and the timing too (about two weeks before the wedding would be perfect, most appropriate. And you will have a gala opportunity to have heart-decorations for your table, particularly for your centrepiece, for the gift-wrappings too, and for favors. Maybe you could persuade each guest to write a Valentine verse, a 4-line jingle in honor of Cupid, to enclose with her gift.

How Bride's Mother Signs Wedding Invitation Notes

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When the mother of the bride-to-be is writing the notes of invitation to her daughter's informal wedding, should she sign them "Mr. and Mrs. John Smith" or "Mrs. Elizabeth A. Smith"?

L. S.

Neither of these signatures is correct; there should be no title in a signature. To these notes the bride's mother should sign her name only (including her husband's invitation in the body of the note), and she should never sign her name as "Mrs. Elizabeth A. Smith". As with all notes, she would sign the invitations to relatives and intimate friends with her first name only. And invitations to people she doesn't know very well but who do know her husband's name (for example, a relative of the groom's), she would sign:

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Allen Smith

Invitations sent to guests who must be informed of her formal name so that they would know how to address their reply (for example, the groom's aunt whom the bride's mother has never met) she should sign:

Sincerely,
Elizabeth Allen Smith
(Mrs. John Smith)

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

What's To Be Done With An Utterly Useless Husband?

When you have a clock that doesn't go, a tool that's broken, a piece of household equipment that doesn't work, or anything else around the house that's become completely useless, what do you do about it?

Well, that depends on the type of temperament you have. If you have energy and initiative, you find out, first, whether or nto it's possible to make the thing useful again. You tinker with it yourself, you take it to a repairman, you do what you can get it back to a state where it's worth giving house room to. But if, after it's been given every chance, it still remains useless, you throw it out.

On the other hand, if you're a procrastinator by nature,, a person without any get-up-and-go; one who just lets things slide along as they are because it's easier than making an effort to change them, you'll probably let the useless article sit around day in and day out, doing nobody any good and very likely in everybody's way.

Here's a woman who seems to be the latter type, putting up with an utterly useless husband year after year; describing herself as on the verge of a nervous breakdown and toying with the idea of leaving him, yet apparently with so little gumption that she'd rather wait till the nervous breakdown catches up with her than take a definite step of any kind.

Here are a few of her grievances:

"My husband will never lift a hand in any way, or do anything for me. He will come home at night, read the paper, eat his supper, and then lie down until ten o'clock or a little after, when he gets up dresses up and is gone until one or half past. This happens every night of the week. On Sunday, he sleeps all day until it is time to eat, then gets up, eats, and goes right back to bed again, to relax, he says.

"He does not say five words to me any evening. Even while he eats his supper, he does not talk. He will play with the baby five or ten minutes and that is all. I am alone night after night after the baby is asleep, just sitting listening to the radio until I get tired and go to bed.

"There isn't one little thing he will do for me, not even empty the ice pan and bring oil up from the cellar. All last winter I had to take care of the furnace myself in order to keep the baby warm. To top it off, he wants me to wait on him hand and foot.

"Please let me know what you would do.

"Mrs. W. D. H."

You want to know what I would do, Lady? Well, I'd do with a useless husband just what I'd do with any other useless thing around the house, as I suggested in the beginning. First, I'd give it a chance to make itself useful again, and if that didn't work, I'd dispense with it. But definitely. Perhaps you can't exactly throw such a husband out, as you would a useless article, but that's just a manner of speaking. You can achieve your same objective—that of getting him out of your life—just as well by taking yourself off.

I'd go at the first part of my program by telling him calmly but firmly that marriage is a partnership; that you're ready to do your share but not both yours and his; I'd point out that where a woman is keeping house and taking care of a baby, it's up to the man to do the heavy jobs of tending the furnace and the like. I'd say that it's his home just as much as yours and if he's not interested in keeping up his end, you're not going to do it for him; I'd add that if you have to do all the work to make a home for your baby and yourself, anyway, you'd prefer to do it under a roof you'd provide for the two of you, rather than in a house with a husband who won't even talk to you but goes off and leaxes you alone every night. I'd do my best to avoid quarrelling, but I'd make it all very clear.

Then I'd give him a couple of weeks to see what he intended to do about the situation. And if what he did was exactly nothing, then he'd come home one night and find the house cold and dark, no supper ready to be eaten, and yourself and the baby gone. For in the meantime, you would have made a plan as to what you'd do. If you have parents, relatives, or friends you could stay with until you had time to turn around, get in touch with them first and arrange for that. If not, figure on some place you can go to earn a living for yourself and the baby. Other women have carried out such a program, "Mrs. W. D. H." Why not you?

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Some Girls, Walk, Some Lope.

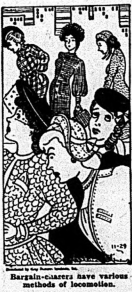
Old-timers say that elegance of carriage went out with the steel-riveted, double-turreted corset. This is one time when the ancients and honorables are dead right. Maybe the women couldn't assume a slouchy attitude, being tightly boarded up in their straight front stays. At any rate, since corsets were chucked into the furnace and soft, unboned foundation garments came along as understudies, the average feminine figure seems to have lost snap and style.

Observe the bargain chasers in the buy-ways. They have a variety of methods of getting where they are going. Some slouch, same take mincing steps; some wiggle their hips, appearing to walk side-wise, crab-fashion. It is to laugh! Where is the woman who walks with grace and dignity? She is missing, or there are few of her kind. Self-respect should impel a woman to locomote with spirit, a light step, a properly-carried body.

Look at any crowd of high school girls. Most of them lope. Some look as if they were about to spring. Others take long, awkward steps. Too bad. Their bodies, like their faces, are in the making; they should endeavor to do everything that contributes toward good-looks. And grace is essential to charm.

In walking, rhythmic movement of the legs, arms and torso can be cultivated. Pull up the spinal column; keep the head level; assume a soldierly pose; hum a marching tune. Mark the beat with an accented step. Let the arms fall easily. In rhythmic walking no casual observer will notice anything but that the act of walking is being beautifully accomplished.

To be healthy, every individual should walk two miles a day. The home woman will assert that she walks many times that distance travelling the daily routine, running from front door to back, answering the telephone, going about her duties. Even so, it is not the same as outdoor exercise, which gives refreshment to the mind and the spirit. Walking should be purposeful. Strolling or sauntering does not benefit the musculature. It does not air-wash the lungs.



Bargain-chasers have various methods of locomotion.

Clothing should be light, shoes comfortable, preferably of sports design. Never extend the journey to the point of fatigue, even if you have a desire to delete adipose tissue.

Career girls who work at desks all days should walk part of the distance to the office each morning in order to avoid spread amidships that comes from too much sitting. This practice is health-giving. It beautifies the body. Inhaling fresh air to the capacity of the lungs stimulates circulation, helps to renew tissues, has a glowing effect upon the complexion.

White Bag Winner

By ALICE ALDEN

SINCE SUMMER trends are distinctly discernible in merchandise prepared for winter resort use, it looks, from here, as though the white bag was due for a big year. Under the southern sun, and at Western resorts, fine big bags of gleaming white leather are used with afternoon frocks. Josef is the designer of this handsome bag of pique-grained white calfskin that is washable. The bag has an adjustable shoulder strap and a well-rounded bottom, an indication of its generous interior. It will be fine with prints next summer!

THERE'S NOTHING like navy blue with a dash of white for either a dress or a hat. An advance Spring hat of navy silk faille is made with a bloused crown and has starched white lace facings on the off-face brim and navy quill.

The Women of Czechoslovakia

(By RUTH WALSHE in London Calling)

Recently, I won, together with forty-one other British students and graduates, a scholarship from the Czech Ministry of Education, which enabled me to spend five weeks in Czechoslavakia. The aim of our trip was to see as much of the country as possible, to speak to as many Czech people as we could get hold of, and, by doing so, to exchange our views and to strengthen the relations between our two countries.

As a woman, I was mostly interested in the women of Czechoslovaika, and it will be mainly of the women I shall tell you. What do we women want to know most about other women? About their looks, I suppose, and their clothes.

Now, you must remember this: the Czech women have passed through a most dreadful ordeal—more than six years of German occupation. What they suffered during that period can never be fully realized by those of us who were more fortunate. So it is a wonderful sign of feminine resilience that, today the Czech women again look well and healthy—even a little plumpish according to non-Czech standards.

You can watch the fashionable ones in the main streets of Prague, or of Bratislava, the capital of Slovakia. They are still very attractive and smart. It is true that the material and cut of their dresses, costumes, and coats are not as good as ours in Britain, but they make up for it by having exceptionally chic hair-styles (they favor the Edwardian fashion), by being discreetly and cleverly made-up, and by wearing very artistic, though not genuine, jewellery.

It struck me how many Czech women wore hats and stockings—unlike most of their sisters in England — although their stockings are often only lisle and, usually, a darkish brown in color. In spite of the huge Bata factories, good shoes are very scarce in Czechoslovakia, as most of them are being exported to Russia. So, during the warmer seasons, the women have to make do with summer shoes and sandals, which are off the ration.

• • •

In Bratislava, I was rather charmed by seeing, side by side, the smart society women and the peasant girls in their most elaborate national costumes, with lots of petticoats showing, red boots, and face shawls or bonnets on their heads. The Czech children, are, on the whole, very well looked after, and nicely dressed in their swagger-coats, white stockings, and little stylish caps fastened with an elastic band under the chin.

Netherlands' award for service, the Bronze Honor Medal of the Order of the Oranje-Nassau, was presented to Leading Signalman Arthur John Hardy, Hamilton, by H. P. Van Gelder, Acting Consul of The Netherlands, here yesterday. Mr. Hardy, who volunteered with the R.C.N.V.R., served for two years on Dutch submarines in a liaison capacity.

The two main streets in Prague, Wenceslas Square and the so-called Moat, are very fashionable indeed, with beautiful shops, restaurants, and cafes. At night, they are brightly illuminated with neon-lights in all colors. Many of the shop windows have a wonderful display of all kinds of colored china and cut-glass as well as dress-jewels. Clothes shops are not so well stocked, and prices are rather high. But there seems to be an abundance of household goods — especially kitchen utensils. And there are lots of bottles of many different kinds of spirits on display — full bottles, not dummies.

Continental cafes, of course, are a great attraction to all foreigners. Either you can sit inside the cafe, absolutely losing yourself in a very comfortable easy chair in an atmosphere of quiet elegance, or, in good weather, you can place yourself outside on the pavement, facing the passers-by. The Czech women, too, love their cafes, and many of them meet regularly in a particular cafe where they exchange views and have a good gossip over some ice cream or over a cup of ersatz coffee. Pure coffee is extremely expensive.

But, now, let us leave the luxurious cafes and shops of the big towns, and consider the ordinary women of Czechoslovakia. Do they look tired and prematurely aged by the constant worries of shopping, and by trying to provide reasonably interesting meals for their families? On the whole, I think the answer is: 'No.'

Although nearly all food is strictly rationed in Bohemia and Moravia — the same applies to clothing, too, of course — the Czech women make the best of their difficult task. Milk, fats, and meat are rather scarce, but sugar and fruit are far more plentiful than in Britain. Both coffee and tea are expensive, 120 crowns a kilo — just under six shillings a pound. That is why there is mainly ersatz coffee and herbal tea to drink.

'There Are Toothpicks Everywhere.'

Salt is rationed, too, which explains the complete lack of salt-cellars on restaurant tables, and, instead of ordinary pepper, you get paprika — red pepper. But there are toothpicks everywhere —to make up for it, no doubt! Sweets are plentiful, though rationed — but there is no chocolate. You cannot get anything to eat in cafes or restaurants, not even bread or rolls, without giving up some of your coupons.

All this applies only to Bohemia and Moravia. In Slovakia —the eastern half of the country —hardly any food or clothes are rationed, but, on the other hand, life there is extremely expensive. And, everywhere, there is one thing of which Czech women do not seem to get their fair share: that is, cigarettes. The men are allowed 140 cigarettes in four weeks; the women do not get any at all.

What is the shopping like in Czechoslovakia? I should say the Czech housewives spend a lot of their precious time at it. They have to queue up quite a good deal, and when, at last, they reach the counter, proceedings still take a long time owing to the complicated Czech rationing system. There are no ration books —only cards, with lots of little squares marked 'meat,' 'bread,' and so on, which all have to be cut out by the shopkeepers and waiters.

What makes life much harder for the Czech housewives is the great scarcity of modern gadgets in their homes, such as washing machines, wringers, refrigerators, electric heaters, electric irons, and electric carpet sweepers. And, at present, there are very few laundries in Czechoslovakia, owing to the shortage of soap and chemicals. So the women have to do most of their washing themselves at home.

'Never mind, we shall all get these gadgets one day — but not until we have completed the more important task of reconstruction,' a woman said to me quite cheerfully. 'Luxuries can wait . . .' This, coming from a hard-working housewife, was impressive.

In the towns, the Czech families live mainly in flats. Only the richer people have their own houses — villas, they call them. The blocks of flats are very soundly built, with large windows and balconies lined with plants and flowers. Even in the poorest working-class districts of Prague, I saw no slums whatsoever. But there is a great housing shortage in Czechoslovakia as a result of so many homes having been destroyed by either bombing or street-fighting. But the Czech builders are hard at work, especially with house repairs.

We toured the country from west to east. Wherever we went, we found the same intelligent and industrious women: women who are not satisfied with being just good housewives and mothers, but who also take an active part in the reconstruction of their native land. Czech women play an important role in politics. They have equal rights of voting and are not debarred from any administrative post. At the moment, there are no women in the Czech government; but you can find them in the diplomatic service, although there are no women ambassadors.

Czech women, generally, are well-informed on foreign affairs. On the whole, they, like their men-folk, look to the eastern Slav countries — mainly to Russia — for help and support. But many of them have great admiration for the western powers, too, and wish nothing more ardently than to see the four great nations united at last.

Many Czech women explained to me at length the nature of their coalition government. It consists of four parties: the People's Party and the National Socialist Party, which are more to the right, and the Social Democrats and Communists, who work together, and claim to have the same final aims as the Russians but desire different means of achieving these aims.

I also learnt from women students a great deal about their government's 'Two Years Plan,' the most important item of which is the nationalization of industry. Seventy-five per cent of all industry — including all heavy industry — has, in fact, been nationalized already.

And, now, I should like to introduce to you three of my Czech women friends: one from Bohemia, one from Moravia, one from Slovakia.

Danica is a Prague girl — a student of English. During the whole of the German occupation she, like the rest of the Czech students, had to work in a factory. But now she is continuing her studies again, and hopes to get her doctor's degree in one more year. Danica was the interpreter for our English group in Prague, and she also helped in the office of the Students' Organization — all voluntary, of course. She was engaged once, but her fiance was killed by the Nazis three years ago. Yet she is not bitter, and she has a nice smile for everyone.

Then there is Irena, another student, from Boskovice, in Moravia. She studies history at Brno University, but, during the summer vacation, acts as principal of a magnificent students' camp near her home town. Irena is the only woman principal, and her camp is one of the show camps of Czechoslovakia, where international students are invited to stay. It is a big castle with a huge park, once owned by a German count. Irena is full of life but, if necessary, she can keep discipline as well as any man. She speaks English, French, German, and Russian — not bad for somebody whose academic study is history.

I met the Slovakian girl in Bratislava — at a street corner, selling maize. She cooked the maize in front of you in a big pot on an oilstove. The cobs cost only two crowns — twopence each — complete with salt. Milada wore one of those beautifully hand-embroidered Slovak dresses — with a zip-fastener in front. I admired her frock, and she told me it was given to her, for her wedding. Yes, she was married—had I not noticed the baby? And there was the pram, just behind the stove.

Milada told me her husband was a mechanic, but she wanted to help him a little, as well — so she had been growing maize and selling it in her spare time. 'We all have to work hard, these days,' she said. 'It is to help to rebuild our country.' Everyone pulls his weight to the utmost, I thought; and that, in a sentence, sums up the women of Czechoslovakia.

Back, Limbs Pained So Bad Could Hardly Do My Work

"In Poor Health for More Than a Year," Says This Woman. Got Dizzy Spells and Throbbing Headaches. Praises Syntona for Grand Relief.

Mrs. Mary Holland, 94 Avonlea Street, Ingersoll, Ont., is glad to pass her experience along to others, because she knows what it means to get relief from long-standing backache and rheumatic pains that caused suffering from day to day.

"My condition began something more than a year ago," said Mrs. Holland. "Since then I've suffered so with backache and rheumatic pains, I could hardly do my housework. Many days my limbs and joints would be very stiff and sore and my back felt so lame I didn't feel like doing anything. I was subject to dizzy spells and the worst throbbing headaches anyone could imagine.

"I had tried a number of things, but it wasn't until I got Syntona that I really began to feel better. This medicine helped me from the very first bottle and as I continued taking it the aches and pains eased up, the soreness went out of my back and now I have practically no trouble at all. I am also rid of dizzy spells and I don't get those awful headaches as I did before. It is almost unnecessary to say that I have more energy to do my work now and I am very thankful to this medicine and recommend it to others."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST. Find out how it can help you, too.

WILL ANNOUNCE

Then, when these matters have been disposed of, either Mr. King or Mr. St. Laurent will arise to make the foreign statement.

Submission in London

It was said here today that the official version of the reply of the deputies to Canada's request for a more active peace - making role showed that the deputies based their action on the ground that they had not the authority to give Canada this assurance.

Specifically, they said they felt their instructions did not give them the authority.

"I hope," said one official, "that the matter now can be cleared up."

It was understood that Canada's written submission already was in London but whether or not it would be handed to the deputies would depend on what the government decided to do.

One source emphasized that "this part of the episode is not necessarily the last word."

He went on to explain that the council of deputies was merely dealing with procedure, and would not do the actual work on the peace treaty. The real work would be done by the foreign ministers themselves.

Three To Support Theory

The informant said it seemed "quite definite" that three members of the Big Four—presumably Britain, the United States and France—would support the theory that all belligerents in the war against Germany should have a say in the shaping of the peace. It was something the Big Four themselves would have to work out.

He added that Canada was interested in the kind of peace that was drawn up because she always was called upon to fight in the case of a "bad peace". Therefore, she wanted to have something to do with the writing of a "good peace".

"Press reports would indicate that a lot of people are getting tired of having our country pushed around," he said. "However, it should be remembered that we are not the first country to suffer because of a bad peace."

He observed that Belgium and The etherlands, which bordered Germany and had occupying troops in that conquered land, had no more to say about the making of the peace at this point than did Canada.

WILL MAKE FINAL

In confirming the appointment of a conciliator at Ottawa last night, Mr. Mitchell said he hoped the miners would stay on the job. He added that failing success to bring Dosco and the U.M.W. to a satisfactory agreement Mr. Justice Carroll is authorized to report his recommendations within 14 days.

The present wage cntract between the U.M.W. and Dosco expires midnight Friday and all negotiations, including a three-way meeting at Ottawa with Mr. Mitchell last week have failed to bring about any settlement.

The announcement of the appointment of a conciliator came as Nova Scotia moved towards the first general strike since 1925.

The U.M.W. originally asked $2.30 a day over the [illegible] rate of $5.84. At the recent Ottawa conference this dem[illegible] ed down to $1.40 a day. Meantime Dosco offered a boost of one dollar a day contingent on increased production.

consolidate their lines before seeking another five years in office in the 1950 elections.

Complete nationalization of business, industry, transport and the land—eventual goal of the Labor party—may take 10 to 25 years, if the Socialists can stay in power that long.

In the financial pay-offs to date, private owners have fared as well—at least for the present—under government ownership as they did before.

Bank of England stockholders, first to surrender their securities March 1, 1946 will receive for the next 20 years the same return on their investments they did in the previous two decades.

In civil aviation, nationalized last year, Britain simply authorized the three companies it formed to issue stock and borrow necessary funds to operate. There were no previous private owners since the government already was in the airline business with British Overseas Airways orporation formed in 1939.

Britain departed from the stock value method in planning compensation for coal mine owners. The entire holdings—equipment and coal yet to be mined—were estimated to be worth $658,640,000. One published estimate of the total stock of the various companies taken over was $800,000,000.

An independent tribunal during the next two years will decide which part of the total each of the mining companies receives and in the interim the government will put up cash to continue existing dividends.

Extraordinary bravery during grain elevator fire in August, 1945, won for Leonard Rissonen, 32, (left), of Port Arthur the St. John Ambulance gold life-saving medal. It is the first such award in Canada since the establishment of the association in this country 51 years ago. Carl F. Mellerup, 41, (right), also of Port Arthur, has been awarded the silver life-saving medal for heroism in same disaster.

Highway Traffic Slowed To Snail's Pace by Snowstorm

With one of the heaviest sleet and snowfalls of the season descending on the district over the night highway traffic was slowed to a snail's pace early today as roads in both rural and urban districts were reported in an extremely heavy condition.

Result of the heavy going on the main highway system passenger buses and transports were running behind schedule, with one transport firm reporting the going "tough" and with trucks running about one hour behind their usual times. At times during the night trucks were held up temporarily as result of sleet conditions on the highways.

In the city all street and sidewalk snowplows operated throughout the night, although the stiff gales which were blowing soon filled in the plowed sidewalks and streets to make for heavy going.

Every effort was put forth by the local public works department to keep the bus routes plowed so that morning bus schedules could be kept, but despite the fact that sidewalk plows operated continuously through the night persons walking to work this morning on all but main travelled routes were forced to wade through considerable snow.

According to records at the city water purification plant, total precipitation on Wednesday and last night was 1.33 inches, or had the storm been all snow, a total of 13.5 inches.

First Allotment Of Baby Chicks Now Delivered

District poultrymen during the past week or ten days have already received their first allotment of baby chicks, according to the weekly crop report issued by the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

Early demand for baby chicks is up in comparison to last year, according to local hatcherymen, who stated that the campaign to have farmers take delivery of their chicks at an earlier date apparently had good effect.

They stated that under ordinary circumstances baby chicks had not been sent out much before the first of February, while this year shipments had been made all during January. The campaign to have farmers take delivery of chicks earlier was with the view of bringing pullets to maturity at an earlier date and thus take advantage of the premium offered for overseas shipment of eggs.

"However," commented one hatcheryman, "our total sales of chicks may not be up much over previous years as sales may fall off later in the season."

In the Hastings and Prince Edward districts, Western feed grains and concentrates are very scarce.

There has been an increase in the fall and early winter breeding of sows and poultry flocks are in high production at the present time.

CHINESE REDS CUT PEIPING—TIENTSIN RAILWAY LINE

Sever Route Over Which U. S. Military Units Must Withdraw From Peiping

By SPENCER MOOSA

Shanghai, Jan. 30—(AP)—Communist forces in North China cut the vital Peiping-Tientsin railway today, shortly after the announcement that American military units are being withdrawn from China.

The Communists severed, temporarily at least, the route over which United States forces must withdraw from Peiping, site of the truce headquarters that will be abandoned with the end of the long but futile peace efforts by the United States.

Associated Press correspondent John Roderick reported from Tientsin that the railway line was cut at Weishanchuang, about midway between Tientsin and Peiping. Fighting still waged there.

Before the Communists attacked the government's rail artery, American authorities in Peiping discredited reports that the Communists might attack the city before United States personnel left.

They asserted the Communists were too weak to take either Peiping or Tientsin, although they could delay or imperil the American withdrawal by damaging the railway — which is just what they did. However, such disruptions ordinarily can be quickly repaired.

It was the first serious Communist attack on the railway, which once was guarded by United States Marines, and was different from the sniping and ambushes in which Marines were caught several times.

Roderick said the Weishanchuang railway station was burned, a section of track "destroyed," and the attackers were in such force that the government sent up an armored train from Tientsin.

Observers in Peiping, in common with many in other Chinese cities, were convinced, however, that withdrawal of all American mediators would invite heavier fighting. They predicted both the government and the Communists would try to make drives in Manchuria and North China.

While both government and Communist leaders speculated over the effects of the departure of the Americans, informed sources in Nanking predicted that all Communist liaison offices in government territory would be closed with the possible exception of Nanking's.

Fire Destroys F. Crowe's Home Near Stockdale

Frankford — (Special) — Fire of an undetermined origin Wednesday afternoon completely destroyed the large frame farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Crowe, just west of Stockdale on the Frankford-Wooler road. The blaze is believed to have started in an unused back kitchen and had gained considerable start before being discovered.

Lack of water hampered the efforts of a volunteer fire brigade formed by neighbors who quickly gathered. When it was realized the house could not be saved efforts were turned to saving the household furniture, most of which was removed from the burning building.

The number of persons living in the dwelling was not ascertained but it was reported that two of the Crowe's married sons were living at home.

Britain's Cold Wave Continues Almost Unabated

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 30 — (CP)—Britain's "great freeze" — with 66-year-old cold records smashed in some parts of the country—continued almost unabated today but weather experts held out qualified hope of relief within a day or two.

Little snow was expected to fall today and temperatures were expected to moderate in Western England with the thaw spreading eastward, possibly within 48 hours. Meantime, the Thames froze at Windsor, west of London, the sea froze at Folkestone and Britons just froze.

The sub-zero weather situation was complicated by fuel shortages which forced the largest cuts in gas and electricity yet made in Southern England. Throughout much of Wednesday electricity supplies were slashed 25 per cent and gas supplies from 10 to 30 per cent.

The Central Electricity Board planned drastic new steps involving the longest cut on record — from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. today—unless home consumption is voluntarily reduced.

The cut last night closed Hyde Park — open throughout the war —forced theatres to use candles for footlights, browned out 1,400 miles of London streets, forced the use of flashlights during emergency operations, interferred with radio transmission and hampered street-car and subway services.

Although flying conditions were somewhat improved, most other means of transport still were severely impeded and merchants feared food shortages in major cities by the weekend.

The liner Queen Elizabeth was delayed an hour by tardy boat-trains bearing 2,000 passengers to Southampton and caught the tide by only 15 minutes in a sailing for New York — just escaping a 12-hour delay. At Portsmouth, a plate-glass windguard on the bridge of the battleship H. M. S. Vanguard, waiting to take aboard the Royal Family for their South African tour, was shattered by the cold.

He made the announcement following a visit to Windsor by Lt.-Cmdr. R. C. Chenoweth of Ottawa, assistant director of naval reserves.

LABOR IN BRITAIN MAKES STUDY OF SIZE OF UNIONS

Haulage Workers Called Strike in Defiance of T.G.W. Union

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 30—(CP)—Labor inquests on the 11-day strike of 48,000 haulage workers will involve study of whether unions have become too big and cumbrous to give prompt service to their members.

The strike was staged against the advice of the Transport and General Workers' Union, the largest British union with 1,250,000 members. The men protested their union failed to act with enough speed and vigor on their demands for wage and hours adjustments and finally resorted to a strike to bring some action after months of delay.

This is the second time in 18 months the T.G.W.U. has been defied by its membership with the development of unofficial strikes which interferred with ordinary people's food supplies. In 1945, just after the Labor government took office, 40,000 dock workers, T.G.W.U. members, staged an unofficial strike, refused to unload food ships and complained their union required a shake-up to improve negotiating machinery.

Amalgamation of 58 Unions

The T.G.W.U., a triumph of the organizing skill of Ernest Bevin, now foreign secretary, represents the amalgamation of 58 unions and has funds of more than £4,000,000 ($16,000,000). Recently it has strongly advocated a "closed shop" system in industry, with firms or public bodies like the London Passenger Transport Board employing only members of one union.

The T.G.W.U. says that a closed shop permits a union to impose discipline on the employees of an industry. The T.G.W.U. record of unofficial strikes, indicating discipline had failed, was being cited by critics even as George Jordan, a London Transport busman with 27 years' exemplary record, was being dismissed because he refused to switch allegiance from a smaller union.

The brunt of criticism from union members and outsiders has been taken by Arthur Deakin, secretary, genial native of Warwickshire who succeeded Bevin last year. He is the only officer elected by ballot of the membership. Others are given their posts by the executive after examinations, one qualification being they must have worked at the trade they will represent.

Criticism on Cost of Size

Bevin's policy when he developed the union was to have a centralized authority available to work for members anywhere. This system gave strength and efficiency at first by ending inter-union disputes but as the union grew larger there was a tendency for men in branches to feel their leaders were remote and disinterested.

Deakin is aware of this criticism and some degree of decentralization, worked out in consultation with founders like Bevin, probably will be considered.

Donald MacDonald Is Acquitted on Murder Charge

Toronto, Jan. 29. (CP)—Donald MacDonald was acquitted in Assize Court today on a charge of murdering Miss Margaret Steele, 80-year-old Toronto rooming house proprietor, August 31 last. A truck driver, MacDonald, had testified he "had some drinks" but could not recollect his actions the day his landlady was fatally beaten.

'GOOD DEED' NOT TO ACCEPT REWARD

London, Jan. 30 — (CP)—"No, sir, thank you. That is my good deed for the day." That is what a newly invested Boy Scout told a local minister to whom he had turned for advice yesterday, after finding a watch on the street. The minister offered the boy a reward of 50 cents when he recognized the watch as belonging to his

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was sitting in his private chair not feeling like going out with ma to play bridge, being the same way he generily feels nd ma said, Now William stop falling asleep. you haven't time for a nap. This is an ideal opportunity to kill 2 berds by oiling this living room door that's been driving me crazy with its skreeking, and at the same time keep yourself awake, she said.

By gollies I'll do that, I've been intending to oil that confounded door every time you mention it, pop said.

The result being he leened his head and went fast asleep, and ma said, Oh dear, if I wake him up before he's had at least 40 winks he'll be as cross as a bear all through the bridge game. I'll oil the door myself before I go and put my hat on, she said.

Which she went and got the oil can and did, and she came back with her hat on and pop quick woke up, saying. Here I am, where's that door?

Which just then he noticed the oil can, saying, Oh, I've already done it, haven't I?

And he went and tried the door and it didn't skreek, pop saying, Well that's a rich one. I've got the real executive type of mind. When there's something to be done, I do it outomatically with my hind on other matters. By gollies that's remarkable, and so am I. Leed me to that bridge game while my mind's still clicking like a steel trap, he said.

But G, pop, I said, and ma said, Never mind, Benny, save it till some other time, it cant be very important, your father and I have to go now.

Proving she wanted him to keep on feeling favorable about bridge.

Vanguard, Britain's newest and mightiest battleship, for a 16-day voyage to Cape Town, where the 10,000-mile tour by train, motor car and airplane will start on Feb. 17 and end on April 24. The 6,500-mile sea voyage will be the Royal Family's first post-war voyage and the first time the two Royal Princesses will have left the British Isles.

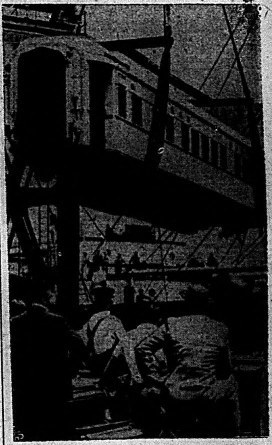
ROYAL 'DEADEYE DICK'

Just a kid who would enjoy playing cops and robbers or Indians and cowboys as well as any kid of more common clay, Prince Edward, son of the late Duke and the Duchess of Kent, tries his hand at the slot-machine pistol range during his visit to the fun fair at London's Olympia. The youngster also tried the rifle shooting gallery and was pretty good at it.



In readiness for the African Royal tour, six coaches of the Royal train have arrived in Cape Town, South Africa, on the S. S. Explorer and Clan MacKinley from Liverpool. They were disembarked by the large floating crane and taken to South Africa railway workships for cleaning. One of the coaches may be seen leaving the vessel.

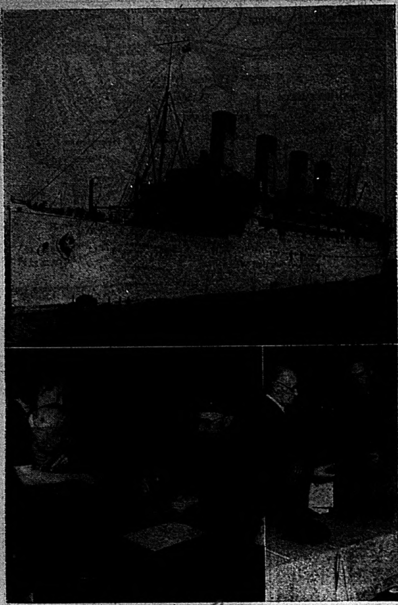
The End of a Road for Old Liner



H.M.T. Aquitania, endeared to the hearts of more Canadians than any other troop ship afloat, turned over another page in her gallant history when she disembarked the final organized draft of servicemen and dependents at Halifax on 19 January. In her 33 years on the high seas, she has carried men to and from two great wars. The last of the "four stackers" to ply the North Atlantic is pictured above. In photo No. 2, dependents are shown waiting in the pay parade for money exchange. In the photo is Mrs. Vera Miskimins and baby getting her first "feel" of Canadian currency from Major D. C. Wilson and S/Sgt. A. E. Barker of the Army Embarkation Pay Staff. Destined for a new home in Toronto, Mrs. Miskimins was among the last organized draft of service dependents brought to Canada by army movement officials. Her comment about the "new" currency: "Gracious, what pretty colors." In commemoration of her service as a troopship, H.M.T. Aquitania and her crew were presented with a bronze plaque by the heads of the three armed services when she docked at Halifax. Shown in photo No. 3 is Capt. J. D. Snow, ship's captain, receiving the plaque from Major-General H. W. Foster, C.B.E., D.S.O., commanding Eastern Army Command. Capt. Snow expressed the personal appreciation of himself and the crew for the award which read: "Presented to H.M.T. Aquitania for her services rendered in two great wars by all ranks of the Canadian Armed Forces." Gen. Foster read a message of gratitude on behalf of the Minister of National Defence and the people of Canada. —(Canadian Army Photos.)

24-hour Service Requested At Ferry Crossing

Picton (Special) —Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce is to investigate the matter of a 24-hour ferry service at the Glenora Adolphustown Crossing and will look into the matter of a bridge across the bay to connect with Lennox County. Some favor one at Glenora, others across the High Shore road. The Chamber will also ask that the four-lane highway being built in this section of Ontario, pass through Prince Edward County. It is pointed out that such a highway could be planned so as to connect with highway 33 leading along the waterfront to Kingston.

The Chamber set a budget of $1,000 to meet the many activities planned. These include better road signs.

A bus and taxi terminal was urged at the meeting attended by seventy persons.

Various committees are making plans.

W.C. Hicks was appointed as the Chamber's representative on a committee to investigate the possibility of a boys' band.

Reported Some Gamblers Have Fled to Canada

(By The Canadian Press)

With the United States sport world still reeling from the blow of recent football and basketball bribery disclosures, investigation is being pressed by New York District Attorney Frank S. Hogan into a $100,000 bribe offer received by middleweight contender Rocky Graziano and there were reports that some gamblers have fled to Canada to avoid questioning in this latest sports scandal.

Graziano told of the bribe after an all-night grilling last Saturday but refused to divulge the names of the men who made the offer if Graziano would throw a fight scheduled for last Dec. 27 against Ruben (Cowboy) Shank of Denver.

LOUIS-GODOY BOUT CERTAINTY

Los Angeles, Jan. 30. (AP) —Chances seemed good today that the projected Joe Louis-Arturo Godoy bout will go on as scheduled in Mexico City, Feb. 5, although for a time last night it appeared threatened by insistence of both that they be paid for their efforts—an attitude not uncommon among pugilists.

In Los Angeles, heavyweight champion Louis suddenly cancelled plane reservations for Mexico City, asserting he would not budge until he had received confirmation from his co-manager, Marshall Miles, that a $50,000 guarantee had been posted.

And in New York Al Weill, Godoy's pilot, declared the Chilean's $10,500 guarantee hadn't arrived in the United States, and that unless something happens soon the South American would not go through with the match.

But a dispatch from Mexico City gave promise that things would be straightened out. Gene Lucas, Louis' business aide, said he'd talked with Joe over the phone and that the champion "positively will be in Mexico City Friday night." He said Godoy's money was on the way to New York.

N.H.L. LEADERS HAVE A TUSSLE AT MONTREAL

Canadiens Have Chance Over Weekend of Going Ahead of the Leafs

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With Toronto Maple Leafs seemingly going all-out to focus attention on their injury weakened condition, you could just see Montreal Canadiens sniffing around for smoke today in the gloom emanating from the Leafs' camp as the two National Hockey League leaders prepared for tonight's collision.

This is one of the five meetings between the two Canadian Clubs within the next month that will probably decide which will finish in first position in the regular schedule. Even though Boston Bruins clipped Detroit Red Wings 4-1, last night they are still 11 points behind the second-place Canucks.

With just about one-third of the schedule remaining, that means nothing short of an incredible winning streak could lift the Bruins—or any one of the three teams below them—into top contention.

So, even though the Toronto injuries are real enough, you could expect the Leafs to play for all they are worth in the strategy department. The Canadiens, if showed off balance a little, might forget until too late that a team can play only six men at a time.

Canadiens Have Edge

From the standpoint of reserve power, however, Habitants seemed to have all the better of it with their full-strength lineup. In contrast, the Leafs took only 14 players with them to Montreal, leaving behind defencemen Garth Boesch, Doug Baldwin, and Wingers Vic Lynn and Joe Klukay.

With the Canadiens three points behind the Leafs in the standings, even a victory tonight would not give them the lead. But they hold a game in hand and that could be converted into the necessary points when they play a game more than the Leafs this weekend.

With only one N.H.L. game scheduled last night, the Bruins outskated the fifth-place Detroit Red Wings all the way for their victory before a packed crowd of 13,900 at Boston.

Little Kenny Smith was the leading marksman for the Bostonians, bagging two tallies. Rookie Mark Marquess and Jack McGill scored their others.

Defenceman Bill Quackenbush saved the Red Wings from a shutout when he converted Roy Conacher's pass early in the first period.

Jozo the Skier Superman's Kin

Collingwood, Ontario, Jan. 30. —CP)—If anyone can claim kinship to Superman, that would be slight, flashing-eyed Jozo Weider, part-owner and manager of the Blue Mountain Ski Lodge here.

A visitor at the Lodge is struck by Jozo's ability to be in a number of places at the same time.

You may see him tightening a tow rope; A few minutes later you catch a glimpse of him on his "wooden sticks" as he calls them, trudging over to the shack with wieners, buns, cans of water and bits of machinery under his arm; a few minutes later he is in the kitchen of the lodge, advising the chef as to the day's menu.

Weider came to Canada from Czechoslovakia in 1939. For two years after his arrival, he was employed as a skiing instructor at Alpine Lodge in Quebec and later opened his own lodge at Collingwood.

Besides English, which he speaks fluently, he can speak six other language resasonably well.

It is not uncommon for a late-arriving guest to enter the lodge and find Jozo perched on the back of a chair with his accordion in his hand, leading guests in a sing-song. Or he may find the rugs rolled back. the furniture pushed into the next room while heavy ski boots pound the floor in a square dance as Jozo pumps madly on his accordion.

Out-Skis Champions

For one who has been — and still is—such an ardent skier, Jozo has very little equipment. Outside the lodge are two unwaxed, slightly bent, pieces of "stick" with a bit of leather lace for harness.

They are his skis but on them he can out-ski many a champion.

But Jozo has something else on his mind beside skiing. He wants to interpret to Canada the Europe he knows. Too much misunderstanding exists between the average Canadian and the average European, says Jozo. He spends many a evening in front of his fireplace, explaining the background, education and thinking of the middle European. His doctrine is tolerance and understanding because he feels that where there is understanding, there can be no room for hatred and strife.

Justice to Pass Sentence Friday

London, Ont., Jan. 30 —(CP)— Sentence will be passed by Mr. Justice R. W. Treleaven tomorrow on Arthur Schrumm, who was convicted of manslaughter in the traffic death of Mrs. Marjorie Shannon, 26, of London.

The Supreme Court assize jury's decision came last night after a hearing highlighted by testimony concerning condition of accused the evening of Oct. 19 last, when his car crashed into the Shannon automobile.

In the collision, the 26-year-old woman was killed and her husband and daughter were injured.

Crown witnesses gave evidence that Schrumm was driving at a high speed, and the police officer who arrested him immediately after the crash said he was under the influence of liquor.

Schrumm's defence counsel, referring to the statements of drinking on his client's part, said he would like to see a system of testing by experts in all cases where persons were suspected of drinking, before such statements were given as evidence.

Accused said he was driving at 30 miles an hour and was sober at the time of the collision. He also testified that the Shannon car was travelling without lights.

Walt Gerow Performs 'Hat Trick' as Veterans Defeat Queen's in Int. A. Tussle 5-3

Front Line of Gerow, Williams and Goyer Had Too Much Power for Collegians

(By G. H. C.)

Walt Gerow, tall, rangy left-winger, whose dazzling speed, teamwork and individual offensive measures marked him as the outstanding star of the night, paced a not-to-be-denied Belleville Veterans Intermediate "A" squad to a sparkling 5-3 victory over Queen's University Seconds at the Jock Harty Arena, Kingston, last night.

It was the second straight victory for the Red team from the banks of the Moira over the Tricolor Seconds in the "A" loop and puts them at the top of the three-team group with two wins and a loss. They meet the fast-travelling Kingston Lions here tomorrow night, and if their performance of last night is any criterion, then they should strengthen their perch on the top rung with another win.

Played on fast ice the game was productive of some brilliant hockey, with the Red team showing more or less surprising form due to the fact they had not skated for a week. Their passing plays clicked at opportune times, but a lack of practice was seen in too many offsides and passes missed. Both teams were guilty of this with a result there was plenty of whistle blowing by Referee Speedy St. Louis and Linesman Billy Watts.

Take Early Edge

Belleville took an early edge, scoring after 36 seconds with Queens tying it up minutes later. Both teams checked heavy and hard but the game was very clean with only three penalties being handed out, one of those for holding the puck. The big Queen's team showed plenty of power, but the Red defence, the best seen this year, plus some excellent goal-keeping thwarted many scoring efforts.

The game was fast, with play flashing from rink-end to rink-end. On the game play the Reds had an edge in territory and they were more effective around the nets. Both goalies turned in stellar efforts. The teams were two-all at the end of the second, but the Reds grabbed a two - goal third period lead in the first five minutes of that beat and they were never headed. They attacked consistently and in that fact lies part of their success. Queen's potted their third goal in mid-period but Belleville clinched the game with three minutes to go.

Best Winger in League

Gerow gave ample evidence that he is one of the best wingers in the league, and as a matter of fact in these parts, in his performance last night. Ably aided and abetted by Leo Goyer and Timmy Williams whose work was not far below that of their starry team-mate, he set his wing lane asteam with his speed and rushes. Four times he raced thru the Queen's backchecking forwards and defence after taking a pass from his own blue line from Goyer and twice he was outguessed by MacDonald, Queen's goalie. The third time his sizzling drive from close-in caromed off the goal post and the fourth time he ripped through the collegian's front line, swung around the defence, swept close-in on MacDonald and his low hard shot dented the twine for the game-clinching goal of the night.

Scored Three Goals

Gerow scored three and got an assist. His mate Leo Goyer who set up practically all the plays for the five goals scored by the Reds, scored two goals and got himself a pair of assists while right winger Timmy Williams was credited with an assist.

But while the scoring credit goes to the ace front line of the Reds, the second line of Doug Bastedo, Jackie Wardhaugh, and Bonnie Gerow, and also Al Meagher did yeoman service when their tour of duty came. They did not slow up the fast pace of the piece one iota and only the fine work of MacDonald kept them off the scoring sheet.

The youngsters picked up the thread of battle where their big brothers left off and their combination plays, backchecking and consistent offensive work was one of the features of the piece. Big Vern Goyer and Porky Yorke aided by Clare Williamson and Mark Storms put up the best defensive efforts for the Reds this season with all showing a marked yen to back up their mates on the offensive.

Goalie Wins Spurs.

Hayes, a new goalie from Napanee won his spurs with the Reds in his first appearance, and according to the team and spectators the kid will do. He kicked out plenty of collegiate rubber, was cool when under heavy fire and the third Queen's goal came when the rubber ricocheted off a Red player into the net during a fierce Queen's counter-attack in the third period.

The fast ice seemed to the Reds liking. The first period was only thirty-six seconds old when the Gerow-Goyer-Williams line sweeping to the Tricolor blueline spread out in their usual attacking formation. Leo swept the rubber over to Williams as he raced over the blueline and the winger shot a fast pass over to Gerow as he cut in on MacDonald. He shot and an amazed handful of Queen's spectators saw the light flash for the first time.

Tempo Speeds Up.

The tempo speeded up and a smarting tri-color squad surged to the attack. Play scintillated up and down the ice with both squads being guilty of plenty of offsides. At the four minute mark, Fletcher took Morissette's pass to beat Hayes for the tying goal.

The Reds took over the play and dominated it for the next ten minutes. Walt Gerow taking Leo Goyer's pass at his own blue line, passed up the Tricolor expectations and dashed through on a solo rush, he ripped through the defence and raced in close on MacDonald. He shot for the far corner but the Queen's goalie flipped up a pad in time to ward off the goal.

The Belleville team held a big territorial edge in the second period, and got a break in manpower when Morissette lying flat on the ice near his goal mouth picked up the puck and held it. He was waved to the sin bin by Referee St. Louis. The Red second line led by crafty Doug Bastedo flashed to the attack with Bonnie Gerow and Jack Wardhaugh playing man-size games but they were turned back by a heavy checking Queen's defence or the fine work of their goalie. At this point Vern Goyer raced down centre ice, barged through the Queen's backguard swept in close to MacDonald, but was called back for an offside play.

Return to Offensive

Queen's returned to the offensive when they were back at full strength and at the six-minute mark Simmons, and Hedley two of the college stars put their team one up on a clever play in front of the Reds nets. But the lead was shortlived and twenty seconds later Leo Goyer laid a perfect pass on Walt Gerow's stick and the big winger scored his first goal of the night.

Stevens of Queen's attempted to hold Gerow a few minutes later and he got the gate for the offense. The Red team sensing their advantage flashed again to the offensive but too many offsides and missing of passes held them off the scoreboard.

The third period was productive of the best hockey of the night and Gerow and Leo Goyer cn assist from Yorke and Vern Goyer put the Reds two goals up in the first five minutes. Queen's got their third marker when the rubber flipped in the net off a Red player and Gerow got his "hat trick" with minutes to go on his brilliant rush with L. Goyer and Williams.

Morissette, Simmons and Hedley were the pick of the Queen's squad with MacDonald in goal scintillating throughout the game. Fletcher and Pownall also deserve nods for jobs well done.

The teams:

Belleville — Goal, Hayes; defence, V. Goyer, Yorke; centre, L. Goyer; wings, W. Gerow, T. Williams; subs., Bastedo, Wardhaugh, Bonnie Gerow, Al Meagher, B. Meagher, C. Williamson, Storms, Cooke.

TRENTON FLYERS BEAT MOUNTAIN VIEW BOMBERS

Score is 7-4 and Air Station Has Now Won Seven Games Without Defeat

Trenton Flyers continue to dominate the Intermediate "B" group, by taking a 7 to 4 win from the Mountain View Bombers at the Memorial Arena last night before a sparse crowd, the stay-aways missing a real smart contest in which plenty of scoring was witnessed and also some rugged hockey With the supporters of the two Air Station squads seated on opposite sides of the arena, the air was filled with exhortations for their mates to battle till the end. The Flyers have won seven straight without a defeat.

The Flyers had just a little more polish and probably more experience and that was the difference in the result. Mountain View possesses a rugged, battling crew of players and only their inability to cash in many of their forays led to their downfall. They had the best of the territorial play and on numerous occasions they bottled the Flyers behind their own blueline and did everything but beat Bridgeman. Lusty body checking was the order of the night and the two referees were kept busy thumbing the offenders to the "hoosegow." Fifteen penalties in all were handed out with the Flyers drawing the odd one. Most of the penalties were given in pairs because the boys were quite open in their misdemeanors.

Bridgeman Had Edge

Bridgeman showed a little more class in the nets than did Wellestead for the Bombers, although the Prince Edward goalie made some remarkable saves in the latter part of the game. Despite the recent mild spell the ice was in excellent condition and the boys fairly flew for two periods and although the Flyers tired the most, the Bombers were unable to take advantage of the edge offered. Trenton moved into a two-goal lead in the first period and Mountain View outscored the opposition two to one in the second. Trenton put on an offensive in the third frame and the three goals secured were too much. The Bombers could only reply with 1, although they missed several close-in chances.

Crawford and Middleton made a sound defence for Bridgeman with Miller, Sarjent and Brackenberry looking much the best line for the Flyers. Sarjent was going well both ways with Norris notching three of his team's counters but he marred his play with a touch of temper at the least provocation. Casselman was the best that the Bombers threw over the boards he having two goals and an assist Gilson worked hard as did McNab but he spoiled his usefulness with a couple of cheap penalties. Good hockey is played in this loop and when these two teams tangle again fireworks are likely to fly.

The teams:

Mountain View: Goal, Wellestead defence, Sherman and Nadon; centre, Doherty; wings, Gilson and Casselman. Alts. Brant, Dennie, McNab, Ouellette, Murray, Hammond and Rutherford.

Trenton Flyers: Goal, Bridgeman; defence, Crawford and Middleton; centre, Miller; wings, Sarjent and Brackenberry; Alts. Hallett, Norris, Ault, Bullock, Swan, Provost and Wade.

HERSHEY BEARS ONLY CLUB SURE OF A PLAYOFF

Two-Thirds of 64-Game Schedule Behind All Squads in Loop

(By The Canadian Press)

With two-thirds of the 64-game schedule behind them, the only club that can feel secure in the tense American Hockey League race for play-off positions is the Hershey Bears who have yet to run into a slump.

The see-saw race is particularly noticeable in the fight for the third-place final play-off spots in the eastern and western divisions which may well prove to be a fight right down to the wire.

A three - way battle among New Haven, Providence and Springfield is developing in the eastern section where Hershey is so far ahead they don't have to worry. Last night Springfield moved into a tie with idle Providence for third place by overwhelming Philadelphia Rockets 9-1.

Goalie Nick Damore, who has been eating a steady diet of rubber this season, had another busy evening as the Rockets absorbed their 38th beating of the season. Philadelphia is on its way toward setting a league record in the goals-scored-against department.

Last night's flurry boosted to 298 the goals the weak Philadelphia defence has let through. Damore, considered one of the league's better goal tenders, has been beaten 240 times in 38 games.

Roll up Six Goals

The Indians rolled up six goals in the second period as Paul Courteau led the attack with 3 goals and Eddie Kobussen added another pair. Billy Cupolo, Bob Johnstone, Ray Voll and Billy Gooden notched the other Springfield points. Billy Warwick prevented a shutout when he tallied in the final period.

The game was the final appearance of Philadelphia in Springfield. The Indians won three and tied one in the home series.

In the western division playoff scramble Pittsburgh Hornets jumped into an early 4-0 lead and had to battle the rest of the way to emerge with a 4-3 triumph over first place Cleveland.

In winning their seventh game in a row the Hornets moved into a tie with idle Buffalo for second place, passing idle Indianapolis who dropped to the fourth spot.

Jackie Hamilton starred for the Hornets with two goals and two assists. Mel Hill and Pete Backor added the other Pittsburgh markers. Bob Carse notched two Baron goals while Normie Mann made the other.

Sports Roundup

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 30 (CP)—Possibly fewer than 10,000 Canadians know there is a sport called racquets and not even that many ever heard of Kenneth Chantler, but a man by that name stands a fair chance of bestowing a world's championship on the Dominion. . . . In his Montreal hometown, Chantler feels all the frustration of a practised pickpocket in a nudist camp—there isn't anybody around to give his talents a fair test—so he was delighted in New York yesterday to find the kind of competition he's been waiting for ever since he got out of the Canadian army last February. . . His opponent was blue-blooded Robert Grant III, the hardest-hitting player in the game today, and the prize was the North American Open Racquets championship, at stake for the first time since pre-war days.

Goal To Go

The 36-year-old Chantler, who took his first racquet in hand 20 years ago, entered the fray with a minority following, and when Grant went ahead 10-4 in the seventh and deciding game the handful of spectators at the Park Avenue Racquet and Tennis Club started for the exits . . . They sat down swiftly, though, as the tall, dark-haired Canadian ran nine straight points to make it 13-10, then went on to win 18-15 in the racquets equivalent of overtime. . . . By right of conquest, Chantler now will meet an old adversary, Britain's James Dear, for the world title. . . The first half of the match will be played at Montreal Feb. 10 or 11 and the second at the Queen's Club in London, Eng., where Chantler gained a split with Dear in two non-title matches nearly 20 years ago.

If Chantler wins he will be the first Canadian to reach the top in a sport that is supposed to have originated in a British debtor's prison in the 18th century. . But even if he loses his name will go down in the books beside those of such distinguished Canadian racquet-wielders, as Sir John Child, of Ottawa, and the one-time Montreal stars, W. R. Miller, F. F. Rolland, R. E. MacDougal, E. Greenshields, H. M. Smith and A. S. Cassils.

Millionaire's Game

Racquets is a strangely unpopular sport from which even natural-born Kibitzers seem to shy, perhaps because it has a reputation as a millionaire's game and packs a set of rules as complicated as mah-jongg . . . Played with long-handled bats and small, sheepskin-covered balls that would leave a horrifying hole in your head, racquets is a game to send shivers down your spine. . . . Allison Danzig of the New York Times, who filled us in on the fundamentals, set just the right note by telling about the time a British Army officer's eyeball popped from its socket during a particularly strenuous match in Montreal. . . Mr. Danzig says the officer turned to the gallery, smiled and said: "Now the ladies won't look at me any more."

Square Peg?

Despite its unpopularity, racquets has a special dignity. . . At the exclusive Park Avenue Club, the ushers wear tuxedoes and the doorman knows every one of the 2,000 members by sight. . . He keeps tab on their comings and goings through an ingenious punch-board, into which he plunges a white peg to indicate that the member is inside, or a red one to show that he has just left. . . . We didn't look like Vanderbilt or Whitney or Wanamaker, but we finally got in thanks to Mr. Danzig, and you can consider this a full-throated plug for racquets, doorman or no doorman. . . . As Mr. Danzig says, "It's a sport to knock your eye out".

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

The fifth for runner-up position in the National Hockey League scoring race became a three-way affair after last night's game when Detroit's Billy (The Kid) Taylor notched an assist. The mark, giving Taylor a total of 13 goals and 26 assists for 39 points, put the Red Wing player on an even basis with Toronto's Ted (Teeter) Kennedy and Max Bentley, Chicago. Other scoring leaders were held scoreless or were idle.

C.A.H.A. Demands May Sever Canada From Olympic Hockey

By DAVE McINTOSH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Middleton, N.S., Jan. 30 (CP)—As Hanson Dowell, 40-year-old lawyer and President of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, prepared today for his long trip to Prague for the Feb. 15 meeting of the Ligue Internationale De Hockey Sur Glace, he stuffed into his briefcase demands that could eventually sever Canada from Olympic hockey competition.

The tall, brown-haired lawyer was going to a meeting which may have far-reaching effects on the world's ice game and the dozens of associations who play greater or lesser parts in it.

The C.A.H.A. benefits, Mr. Dowell says, from its tie-up with the L.I.H.G. on two counts. Since the L.I.H.G. controls Olympic hockey, the C.A.H.A. must be associated with it to get into the world playoffs, and L.I.H.G. rules prevent intercountry raids on hockey talent.

But there is a "but." The C.A.S.A. wants the L.I.H.G. to recognize its definition of amateur—"an athlete not now engaged in professional hockey"—and to enroll the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States and recognize it as the American ruling body in hockey instead of the Amateur Athletic Union. The C.A.H.A. also wants increased voting power in the L.I.H.G.

Mr. Dowell, now entering his second year as president of the C.A.H.A. says that if the L.I.H.G. won't give in to these requests the C.A.H.A. may quit the organization. However, no definite step will be taken until the May meeting of the C.A.H.A. at Quebec.

The consequences of such a severance? No C.A.H.A. entry in the Olympics and possibly out-and-out raids by the United States and Britain and possibly other countries on Canadian teams, said Mr. Dowell.

"I don't see that such a move will have much effect on the British Ice Hockey Association, though," Mr. Dowell said. "They need their L.I.H.G. affiliation to play on the continent, but it seems they could still maintain their agreement with us to get players."

Mr. Dowell is critical of the A.H.A. of the U.S. for its recent raiding of Canadian teams, but that association, not affiliated with the L.I.H.G., is breaking no rules when it does so. For that reason, the C.A.H.A. would like to see the A.H.A. enrolled and made responsible as the United States hockey overseer.

Vancouver, Jan. 30 (CP)—The Pacific Coast Hockey League may turn pro next year, or so goes the rumor current in sporting circles here the last few days. The semi-annual meeting of the league was held in San Francisco this week but Al Leader, secretary and business manager of the loop, wasn't talking about the possibility.

Also discussed at the Frisco meeting were the applications of Spokane, Wash., and Bakersfield Calif., to enter the league, at present one of the largest organized hockey set-ups in the world with 11 teams, but they were set aside to the next meeting in June.

One of the teams of the Pacific Professional Basketball League is beginning to feel the pinch of smaller attendances. Salem Trailblazers have announced that all their games will be played on the road from now on, a quick change of policy since the league beating in Seattle several weeks ago.

Elsewhere in the Hopp circuit things are improving slightly, but it appears that the league will gradually shake itself down to a four or five team affair next season. Only Seattle, Vancouver, Portland and Bellingham appear certain of remaining for a second year, while Spokane if it can be sure of a home floor, is another probable starter.

Junior hockeyists out here are through their regular schedule and swing into the play-offs tonight in Nanaimo with Vancouver meeting the island sextet. Finals will start next week with the winner of the semi meeting New Westminster in the final.

An all-star team will be selected to enter the Memorial Cup race after a loop champion is declared. The all-stars will play under the name of the league champion.

"Y" CAGE LASSIES LOSE TO PETE GIRLS 45-34

Belleville "Y" Intermediate "B" girls basketball team travelled to Peterborough the other evening to play the Peterborough squad and took the short end of a 45-34 score. These two teams have been contenders for the provincial title for a number of years and are again pointing toward the championship tourneys. Playing on the large floor at the Peterborough Y.W.C.A., the local girls were a little lost, their passing plays ending up short of the basket quite frequently, and making long shots necessary. The Peterborough girls also showed a little better condition and team play, having practised together more regularly and played several games with other teams, while this was the first game for the Belleville girls this season. Belleville was short Doris Mansfield, who is a tower of strength going both ways, and Evelyn Allison, who was not able to be on hand. Dorothy Wonnacott was also unable to make the trip due to a cold. Two members of the Junior "Y" team filled in and made a very good showing, Shirley Bunnett and June Matthews.

The teams will meet here on Wednesday, Feb. 19th. at the "Y" at which time Peterborough will also bring along a Junior squad to make a double bill which will give local folks a chance to see two fast games and watch their two provincial entries in action.

Shirley Marinoff led the locals in scoring with 11 points, while Beryl Dobbin with 12 and Jean Castle with 11, led the Peterborough team.

The teams played on even terms for the first quarter, Belleville opening the scoring and the quarter time score was 11 all. In the second quarter Peterborough outscired the local girls 11-7 to lead by 4 points at the half. The third quarter saw Peterborough uncork a fast breaking attack system which had the locals buffaloed for a few minutes to run in 11 points to 5, but the Belleville girls came back to an even basis in the final quarter again, the score at the final whistle being 45-34. It was a fast, interesting game and produced some good play by both teams. Marion Salisbury played her usual steady game setting up a good many of the Belleville scoring plays and collecting six points. The game was well handled by two competent referees and was comparatively free of fouls.

The teams:

Peterborough — N. Whetung 8, E. Craig 7, J. Castle 11, M. Kennedy 1, G. Gibson, S. Mortimer, D. Allen 2, B. Williamson, J. Rahmel, R. Heintz 4, B. Dobbin 12, total 45.

Belleville — M. Salisbury 6, D. Pappas, S. Marinoff 11, B. Kyle, A. Lepore 3, R. Roblin 3, A. Gilbert, 4, J. Lepore, S. Bunnett 5, J. Matthews 2, total 34.

Referees: L. Grose, I. Cupen.

OSHAWA GENS IN THREE-WAY TIE FOR THIRD PLACE

Hamilton Pats Edge Out Toronto Staffords by 6 to 5 Count

Ontario amateur hockey fans today were probably convinced that if the senior Hamilton Tigers and the junior Toronto St. Michaels didn't play any more games, there'd be the darndest race ever in O.H.A. senior and junior "A" circuits.

Hamilton Pats edged Toronto Staffords 6-5 in Wednesday's only senior game, Pats gaining second plce tie with Owen Sound Mohawks are still nine games behind the Tigers, and Staffords are right on their heels with the tail-end Stratford Indians not too far behind.

In the junior division Stratford Kroehlers walloped a weakened Hamilton Szabos outfit 15-1, and Oshawa Generals defeated St. Catharines Falcons 9-3. They were both home-town victories, and they shoved Stratford and Oshawa into a three-way deadlock with Toronto Marlboros for third place. At the top, Toronto St. Mikes enjoy a 12-point lead over Galt Red Wings, and Galt is ahead of the other trio by six points. Only other contender in the 10-team group would seem to be Barrie Flyers, just a game back of the third-place jam. The other four—Windsor, St. Catharines, Hamilton and Toronto Young Rangers are far behind.

A sparse crowd at Maple Leaf Gardens saw Pats come from behind to gain victory over Staffords, who led 2-0 in the first on goals by Roubell and Williams. Grasser and Fritz tied it up early in the second, but Williams' second goal put Toronto ahead 3-2 before the period ended.

Then the fast third frame saw Fritz tie the score at 3:51. Thompson promptly put Staffords ahead 4-3. Pats started rolling and rammed in three goals—from O'Hearn, Carl Smelle and Hollinger—before the 15-minute mark. Staffords came back to within a goal of the Pats total, on Adams' shot at 16:31, but couldn't get the equalizer.

Stratford Kroehlers fattened their scoring records at the expense of the weakened Hamilton Szabos and if it hadn't been for carelessness Tommy McGrattan would have had his first shut-out of the season. However, Scafetti scored for Szabos three minutes from the end, and just after the score showed Stratford 14-0.

Due to highway conditions Szabos were late in arriving, delaying the game 40 minutes, and they were able to ice a team of no better than Junior "B" calibre. Service scored three goals, Kullman, Flick, Mitchell and Casonato got the others.

At Oshawa the Generals were leading 4-0 before the St. Catharines Falcons finally managed to reach the score-sheet. A dull game livened up in the third period which saw major penalties to Geoghan, Falcon defenceman, and Pogue of Oshawa for a fistic exhibition that followed Geoghan's robust checking tactics.

Curik and Milliard each scored twice for Generals, whose other goal-getters were MacPherson, Bauer, MacKay, Scholes and Ceresino. Falcons' goals scorers were MacDonald, Currie and Kidatsky.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Some of the Belleville Bees' supporters have written this desk with reference to city wisenheimers who have been howling the Kingston Saints Junior "B's" to high heaven and making asinine remarks about what they would do to the Bees when the two teams met. The Saints, from what we have observed, are one of the smartest "B" squads in this district and should go far along the playoff trail. But that's no reason why these hometown "Conny Smythes" should rattle their tonsils about what they could or would do to the "Bees" when they met.

• • •

As a matter of fact, Kingston fans think highly of the "Bees" and after that game the other night, the Saints' squad and management have a wholesome respect for the kids from the Moira River. And in case the sceptics don't believe that, here is what the Kingston scribe wrote in his story of the game:

• • •

"Never once did the Belleville kids give up the struggle, and in this respect their bespectacled netminder, Moe Rollins, was one of the outstanding contestants on the ice. Time after time he had the crowd roaring well-earned approval as he lunged, dived, kicked and sprawled to rob goal-hungry Saints of what looked like sure goals. The two Semark brothers, Don and Johnny, teamed up with Johnny Green on a fast-stepping forward line to hinder the Saints in their bid for victory and made several well-executed efforts of their own. Day was another standout for the Belleville squad and was fighting throughout the entire game.

• • •

"The Belleville team set the Saints back on their heels in the second period as Johnny Green provided the spark with some classy stickhandling. Reeves and Day teamed up for the first goal after a scoreless 12 minutes which saw the Reds outskate and outplay the Saints. The crowd perked up a trifle when Johnny Semark beat Kewley with a hard drive to the top left-hand corner. Near the end of the period the Saints applied the pressure but Bill Hurst and Murn Green on the Belleville defence provided Belleville with ironclad support."

• • •

The name of Alderman George Westrope of Port Arthur, which appeared in the news the other day relative to his re-election as president of the Lakehead Exhibition, stirred the memories of sports oldtimers in this city.

• • •

For the Port Arthur Alderman, "Cow" as he was familiarly dubbed by his buddies of those days, was very active in baseball, hockey and other sports in this city between 1906-10 or thereabouts.

• • •

"Cow", 'tis said, was a "sawed-off little fella" who had plenty of athletic prowess, a rare sense of humor and the ability to make and keep friends.

• • •

In those roarin days shortly after the turn of the century, when the boys wore high collars, low "derbies", listened to stories of Boer War veterans, took the gals home at nine o'clock, spent Sunday morning polishing up the buggies or surreys; bobbed apples at Hallowe'en, took their Dutch courage in stand-up bars, patronized lawn socials in their Sunday-go-meeting duds with rubber collars and hook-on ties, and got more for a buck than they can now for ten, there was, what was called the Ontario Athletic Club in this city.

• • •

And usually perched on 3rd base was "Cow" Wardrope. Among his buddies of those hectic days of moonlight excursions to Twelve O'Clock Point when all the boys carried on their hips was a handkerchief, were "Ack" Ketcheson, Ern. Hagerman, Bill Wallace, Art. McGee, Maurice Lavoie, Stan. Morrison, Stan. Doolittle and Al. and Ernie Moore, and it is believed "Gozzie" Philp.

• • •

'Cow' was the Bill Durnan of his day in hockey circles, too, and provided the unusual sight in them thar days of a goalie wearing a first baseman's glove between the posts. He went overseas in the first Great War and afterwards settled down in Port Arthur where he has made a success of business and of municipal life.

• • •

Here's a tip, gals. Don't marry a wrestler — or at least one who takes his grunt and groan abilities too seriously and applies them to his home life. The other day in Detroit, the wife of a college wrestler, placed a legal body smash on her rassle-rampaging hubby, and the referee's circuit judge, gave her the decision in a divorce bout that lasted one fall.

• • •

"It was humiliating and painful," the pretty young wife, Mrs. Gloria Lee Deane told the judge. "He'd clamp a headlock on me, and then slip into a hip-lock and then try a flying mare and he'd toss me right across the room. I always lost."

At one time, we presume, when life looked rosy and the honeymoon was in its early stages, she could twist the big so-and-so around her little finger.

• • •

With weather permitting and ice available hockey fans of the city and district should see some rare battling at the Memorial Arena, tomorrow night when the Belleville Vets Intermediates hook up with the Kingston Lions, in their second joust of the season. The Reds haven't forgotten that close one down in Kingston the other night, and will be out there flying to avenge the defeat. It should be one of the hockey tidbits of the season and a bumper crowd will be out to cheer the Vets to a win.

• • •

It may have been the fact that the wives and sweethearts were along that the squad was bolstered in its weak spot, or just pure cussedness and determination to win, but suffice it to say that the Reds Intermediates last night gave out with a fine display of combined offensive and defensive power that the heavy, sturdier Queen's University Seconds couldn't overcome, and the Shiels-coached gang rumbled home, regardless of a blinding snowstorm, with a neat 5-3 win tucked in their scabbards.

• • •

It was again a case of the best defence being a consistent offense — and that is what the Reds did. They carried the play to the opposition at the first whistle and never quit, even on the lone occasion when they were a man short when Mark Storms got the gate for disturbing the hair-do of a college player with an elbow.

• • •

The ace line, paced by Walt. Gerow, the star of the game who got himself three goals and an assist, with Leo Goyer getting two and two, were in excellent form. They flashed to the attack with Leo making the plays and their teamwork was easy to look at.

• • •

But the kid line of Bastedo, Jack Wardhaugh and Bennie Gerow, who plugged the gap caused by the storm hold-up of the Meagher brothers, turned in outstanding efforts. The youngsters, at home on the fast ice played hard both ways, and they fully deserved their names on the scoreboard. Hayes, a new goalie from Napanee was between the pipes for the first time, and the kid from Gerowville played like a veteran. He turned back the Tricolor threat time and again, and thoroughly deserved to win.

• • •

The Red defence was the best seen this year. Vern Goyer, and Porky Yorke, with Clare Williamson and Mark Storms in reserve, stopped the Queen's forays at times in their tracks, or effectively bottled up their forwards when in scoring position. All four defencemen attacked consistently with Goyer and Williamson showing up exceptionalyl well in this respect. The team's performance as a whole last night augurs well for their stern battle against Kingston Lions here tomorrow night. They should twist the Leo's tail.

Leo Goyer and Timmy Williams who, with Walt. Gerow Jr. form the ace front line of the Belleville Intermediates. Paced by the starry Gerow, this line was responsible for all the scoring done by the Reds in Kingston last night when they defeated the Queen's U. Seconds 5-3. Assists also went to Vern Goyer and Cal. Yorke. Gerow scored three and Leo Goyer two, with Timmy turning in a highly creditable assisting job.

Sports Shorts from Britain

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—The possibility of Sunday football in Britain is about as bright as Sabbath dog racing in Canada. The Football Association, ruling body of the sport, not only frowns upon Sunday soccer, it refuses to discuss it.

A council meeting of the F. A. was held recently and defeated a resolution to examine the possibilities of such a thing happening. The resolution asked for appointment of a special committee to examine and report on the subject of the future policy of the F.A. in this respect.

Some relaxation was allowed during the war because men in the services could often play only on Sundays. Long hours in industry had the same effect and Sunday sport became respectable

With the end of the war, the F.A. returned to normal. Any player found playing Sunday football is liable to be banned for life from competition under F.AR. jurisdiction.

Stabled in the garage of an old bombed-out house in a crowded suburb within five miles of the heart of London, a horse is training for the Grand National steeplechase March 28. He is eight-year-old Michael's Pearl, owned by Walter Seward publican.

His training is not exactly conventional, but Seward claims that although he has been called on to jump obstacles more than six feet high, he has never fallen.

Martin Turner, Cambridge Blue and England rugby trial player, set some kind of record when he played four games in a week.

He started out with an England trial game at Twickenham on a Saturday. Four days later performed for Surrey, the following day turned out for Public school Wanderers and finished the week off with an appearance for Whitgiftians.

A. G. Paul, who played cricket for Lancashire county club for many years and member of the club which won the county championship in 1897, died at his Didsbury, Manchester, home recently. He was 82.

American Tennis Assoc. Recalls Three Players

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 30 — (AP) — The United States Lawn Tennis Association has recalled Gardnar Mulloy, Bill Talbert and Tom Brown, three members of its Davis Cup squad still in Australia, who have been playing in tournaments and exhibition matches.

Some councillors of the Lawn Tennis Association of Australia, discussing at a meeting last night the cable recall sent to the group by president Holcombe Ward of the U.S.L.T.A. suggested that the Americans had become involved in "sham amateurism" by playing in exhibition matches organized by sporting goods firms.

(The leading Australian players, Dinny Pails, Colin Long, Adrian Quist and Geoff Brown, with whom the Americans have played exhibitions, are all connected with big sporting goods firms.)

Talbert indicated he, Mulloy and Brown were surprised at any suggestion they were in the 'sham amateur' business in Australia, but declined further comment.

"Our association knows our position," Talbert said.

The L.T.A.A. decided to advise Talbert and Mulloy that exhibitions after Feb. 1 would not be sanctioned but to allow Brown, who is on a different tour, to play exhibitions up to Feb. 8.

During the L.T.A.A. discussion on the recall of American tennis stars, West Australian delegate T. E. Robinson said that the L.T.A.A. should notify the U.S.L.T.A. that players "has been here on a definite trade tie-up."

Vice-president H. A. Pitt declared a frank discussion was needed on the grip which sporting goods firms had on the game adding "We must consider the general trend of sham amateurism."

It is well known, Pitt added, that exhibition matches which had been organized around Australia by sporting firms were 'designed to promote sale of sporting goods.'

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

There is nothing new under the sun or in bridge. But there may be a few things you have not yet seen. Even deals that have probably been handed down from the past. Like this:

NORTH
♠J 10 9 8 7
♥A Q J
♦2
♣Q J 10 9

WEST
♠6 5 4 2
♥10 9 8 6
♦10 3
♣7 5 4

EAST
♠3
♥7 5 4 3 2
♦K Q J
♣8 6 3 2

SOUTH
♠A K Q
♥K
♦A 9 8 7 6 5 4
♣A K

South is supposed to be the declarer at a grand slam in no-trump. Why they are not in seven spades has not been recorded in the history of this case. So, we can only surmise.

No doubt north was the wife. In such cases, he usually figures he can play the big hands better. Consequently, he manoeuvres to play the contracts that are over a game.

West leads a heart and declarer must take all 13 tricks. When the dummy hand is spread, what does he see? Five top spades, a top diamond, three top hearts, and four solid clubs.

Add all these together and they total to the sweep of all the tricks he needs. But how is he going to get them with south seeming to block so many dummy cards?

Close scrutiny shows only one entry to dumy. This entry now is used up with the opening lead. Thereafter, not a chance is there to get back into the north hand if once it leaves there.

So, the way to handle the situation is not to lose the lead in dummy. Keep taking tricks as long as possible with the dummy cards.

Dummy goes up at once with the heart ace and drops the south king. On the dummy queen and jack of hearts, south sluffs ace and king of clubs. Now dummy takes four clubs without interference.

On these, south chucks away his ace and king and queen of spades. Also a diamond. Now the cleared five dummy spades are led, south getting rid of five more diamonds. The diamond ace ends it all.

This is one of those sample unblocking hands. I thought you might like to put it in your collection. Or in the fire.

Salem

Salem — A large number from this line attended the party given by the Sherman family in Shannonville hall last Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Ross McLaren, Campbellford, spent last week with Mr. and Mrs. P. McLaren.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Badgley, Melrose, were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Badgley.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hagerman and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs Russell Reid of Roslin, Ont.

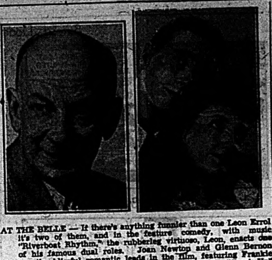
Mrs. Thos. Leslie and Don were Sunday visitors at the home of Mrs. Walter Carr, Northport.

PUT WIRE ON TRACKS

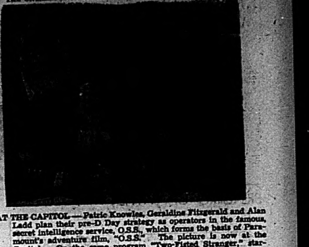
Walton, Ind., Jan. 30—(AP) — Sheriff Harold Smith said last night two Walton boys 10 and 12 years old had admitted that they put a 175-pound roll of fence wire on the Pennsylvania Railroad track here Monday, causing a wreck in which four persons were killed.

Smith said the boys were taken into custody as authorities turned to juveniles in their investigation of the wreck.

The sheriff said the youngsters finally admitted that they put the wire on the track "to see what would happen."



AT THE BELLE — If there's anything funnier than one Leon Errol it's two of them, and in the feature comedy, with music "Riverboat Rhythm," the rubberleg virtuoso, Leon, enacts one of his famous dual roles. Joan Newton and Glenn Bernon are the blissful romantic leads in the film, featuring Frankie Carle and his popular orchestra. Pat O'Brien in "Crack-Up" is the major feature.



AT THE CAPITOL — Patric Knowles, Geraldine Fitzgerald and Alan Ladd plan their pre-D Day strategy as operators in the famous, secret intelligence service, O.S.S., which forms the basis of Paramount's adventure film, "O.S.S." The picture is now at the Capitol. On the same program "Two-Fisted Stranger," starring Charles Starrett and Smiley Burnette.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Michael Powell and Emeric Pressburger, the inspired pair of British producer-directors responsible for a series of good pictures under their trade name, "The Archers," have Alfred Hitchock's trick of "signing" their movies—by including a shot of Powell's two golden cocker spaniels.

Hitchock signs his in person generally by appearing as an extra in the background.

The spaniels are Eric and Spangles, now 11 years old and ready for retirement after their movie career. "A Canterbury Tale," where they frisk into the life of a United States Army sergeant stationed in England, will probably be their last picture.

Re-Encounter

From London comes news that Noel Coward will write a sequel to "Brief Encounter," the British import that hit the "ten best" lists. The sequel will tell the story of the dejected hero after he left for Africa and will re-team Cila Johnson and Trevor Howard, the stars of the original. Since Miss Howard is expecting a baby, the picture will not be made until fall.

Sameul Goldwyn has formed Sameul Goldwyn Pictures Inc., an organization which will lease theatres "for the purpose of exhibiting 'The Best Years of Our Lives'." These will be pre-release engagements for the film which will not be generally released until Jan. 1, 1948.

CHAPTER 19

"You'll see whether it makes sense or not!" he cried and the violent slamming of the door cut short the last word of the ugly warning. Arlen heard the door of the car bang and, then the racing motor.

She sat still, feeling that every nerve in her body was tapping quickly and evenly. The room was cold and the furniture seemed a mile away. She sat up, breathing deeply, hearing sounds that were outside her mind. Suddenly she put her hands to her face and shuddered and sobbed without tears.

Had she not been so distracted and confused by her own affairs—Christa's returning and the despair in her father's letters—Toby's groundless reproaches would not have hurt so much. She knew that her frankness with him had not been wise. If she had pacified him with promises she had no intention of keeping, he would not have left with that terrifying threat she was always to remember. Why hadn't she pacified him rather than been entirely honest? In anger and jealousy she saw him devoid of charm, and Arlen knew she was seeing the Toby Sanner of later years when pursuit and romance were behind him. His mind had been as offensive as his language. Like his mother he magnified more suspicions into gigantic realities.

In his state of mind he might do anything. Her imagination followed him to the hotel, to push his way through Louise's guests and other New Year's celebraters, and confront Christa and Renny, making a terrific scene. Toby wanted to wound and degrade and denounce other people by shouting his own humiliation. That he had driven his car and not flown his plane gave her a little consolation. It spared her the torturing picture of that bright little plane crashing down in flames and death. It was not her refusal to marry him but the quarrel with his mother that had unbalanced him. Was that comfort? But Arlen found comfort in nothing and as the night wore on to a snowy dawn, she felt that she must do something to bring him back.

She wondered if she would have married him had he presented himself differently, without the raging temper that dissolved itself into a passionate plea Every attempt she had made at security had failed. When Elissa married, she would be alone again, dependent upon the rough friendship of Rupert Law, and Louise's invitations would probably be less frequent after tonight. When the time came for a choice, Louise's sympathies would be with Fanny, the deserted mother, and not with Arlen, the young intruder.

Snow fell gently on the adjoining roof. The New Year's Day dawn was bleak and overcast. Now and then the white flakes swirled and mixed with gray smoke. In the first light Arlen got up, picked up her coat looked at the drooping orchids, "She says that Toby—Toby took Sleep was frustrated by fitful dreams and restless tossing. When Elissa came in, her feet aching from dancing, snow in her hair, and her eyes heavy with sleep, she saw Arlen lying across her bed, partly covered by the green quilt and still wearing her silver dress. Wearily Elissa took off Arlen's sandals and covered her bare shoulders, and with much yawning got into her bed and pulled a blanket over her.

It must have been noon when Arlen awoke to the sound of voices in the living room. Elissa's voice was a high treble. Renny's voice? Richard's? She got up, took off the wrinkled dress quickly, and put on a woolen robe. From the window she could see that the snow was several inches deep.

When she went into the living room, Elissa looked up. She had been crying. Renny had his hands in his pockets. Richard looked incredibly tired. They said nothing and only looked at her. When Elissa turned back and began to cry softly, Richard came to Arlen.

"What is it?" she asked, stiffening. "Something has happened. Something has happened to Toby."

Elissa sobbed, "It's terrible—terrible!"

"Arlen, my dear," said Richard, 'we did not come for an explanation.'

"Tell me. I knew something would happen to him."

She looked past him at Renny who drew a crumpled telegram from his pocket.

"Renny, you tell me."

"It's from Fanny," said Ranny. "She say that Hoby—Toby took his life this morning by sitting in his car with the motor running. She doesnt want any of us to come and she never wants to see any of us again."

All of Arlen's feelings seemed to be in her throat.

"Why did you have to tell her at all?" Elissa cried. "She'll feel responsible and blame herself! Oh, why did you tell her?"

"Arlen," said Renny, "this came this morning to Louise. This is all we know. But you must not blame yourself. Whatever happened between you and Toby last night did not cause him to do this. He wasn't quite that mad."

Arlen's white lips qquivered. "I couldn't marry him just so that he could hurt his mother. I tried to reason with him...."

"You don't have to tell us anything," said Richard.

'But there is nothing to conceal!' Arlen cried. "Am I to be blamed for not marrying him because I didn't love him? Yes. I shall be blamed." She lowered her head and drew in her soulders. "And the stigma of this will follow me as long as I live."

"Arlen, you've got to be sensible about this," said Richard. 'We understand. We don't blame you."

Renny said nothing because he knew not what to say. This telegram had changed everything. He knew he could not go to Arlen to comfort her or sympathize with her because time and not words, however comforting and sincere, would have to obliterate the grief and ugliness of today. Not only was he shaken by Toby's death, but he feared the effect it might have on Arlen, and he knew that not until the memory of today was dim and Arlen absolved herself of all blame could he speak his ove.

"Ask Rupert Law for a vacation," Richard suggested. "Take a vacation."

"Do you think I can run away from this? No. Work is what I need.' She smiled. 'I'm going to be all right."

Renny said, "Arlen, don't brood about it. Don't stay alone."

"I won't leave her," said Elissa.

For days thereafter she avoided seeing any one outside the office except Elissa, who respected her wish for silence. Renny called, but there were many silences between them, understood by him and interpeted bitterly by Arlen as being more duty calls. Louise called and talked at such great length that Elissa shouted, "Tell her to stop it! Tell her to stop torturing you." Rupert found her subdued and pale.

He called her in one day and said, "What has happened to you I miss your remarks. You're walking in the clouds, Arlen. Nothing is hidden from me. Tell me."

Arlen said, "I took your advice Rupert, and didn't marry him and he—he killed himself."

He shook his red head. "You You would. And day and night feel that the blame rests on you. is a nightmare of regret. I'm disappointed in you. If you'll tell me about it, I'll show you where you're wrong."

"Mr. Bruce is waiting to see you. He has an appointment."

"Let him wait."

Arlen told him. Rupert leaned over the desk and frowned. "This boy didn't kill himself over you. You said he lied to you about a job. He wanted to marry you to thwart his mother. He killed himself to hurt her. I always feel sorry when people die for their ideals, whether its sentimental or not. I think its pretty noble. But this Toby didn't have any ideals and if he had married you, he would have gone back to his mother in the end. She dominated him and he couldn't tear himself away from her money. You've got to stop feeling that it was a personal tragedy. It's bad enough, I admit. But, my dear Arlen, it was not done over love or loss of you."

"I can't think that, Rupert."

"Perhaps if you knew everything about him, about his affairs with other girls, you might find that he had threatened suicide before. Come on. Snap out of it. Im sorry too. Now will you tell Bruce to come in if he's sore from waiting, let me handle him."

At home one night Elissa said, "You don't say much about Renny, Arlen. Do you think he's failed you? That morning—I shall never forget how he looked."

"I don't blame him for not wanting to get involved with me now that his affairs with Christa are settled."

"I wonder if they are."

Arlen pulled the sweater across her shoulders. "New Year's Eve—I have never seen him so happy as he was that night. It was because Christa was going to stay. Toby—Toby said that Renny was in love with me, but that was because he didn't understand the good Samaritan in Renny. No, I don't feel that he's failed me. No one has. What is there for him or for any one to say? Even what Rupert said to me I knew already. It just makes it fresh when it's brought up," She smiled. "You and Julian have been particularly nice, Elissa. It's been sweet of him to stay away so that you could be with me."

"We have our whole lives together, Arlen, after Easter.

"Are you going to stay on here then?"

"I can't afford to pay all the rent alone. I'll look for another place."

"I'm not going to be married even at Easter if you aren't well and happy again. Before I go I'm going to try to make amends to Aunt Grace and Uncle Reggie and Louise. Instead of going back ponitently to stay, I shall go back and say good-bye."

At Christa's request Renny called again at her hotel and found her directing her maid about her packing. Anna, the maid, was hurried off and Christa, sweetly smiling, said, "I did want to see you before I left, Renny, and I wanted to tell you that Jake's newest play is with a London producer who is quite encouraging about it. Is it indiscreet of me to mention that?"

"I hope it goes through. I've ments for you, and now about made all the necessary arrangethe settlement...."

"Oh, Renny, you're marvelous. I've heard of people having friendly divorces and dining with each other afterward, but I thought it was nothing but publicity. It was horrible about Toby, wasn't it?"

"How did you know?" he asked.

"Louise told me. Poor Fanny." She spoke slowly. "And now that poor Toby and I are in the background I suppose you'll.."

"It isn't as simple as that. I haven't seen Arlen."

He could not explain his utter disgust at her taking so lightly not only the divorce but Toby's death. In the past week nothing had relieved his melancholy.. To make matters worse, Elias Winstead had died peacefully in his sleep and the entire organization had separated into opposing factions. The old man's relatives were bickering about his money and each day brought a different face to Renny's office to tell him why he or she should share in the estate.

"Renny," said Christa any one can see you're quite mad about the girl. Of course you'll...."

"You're taking too much for granted. Toby's death left her quite distraught."

He winced at this conversation To discuss the girl one loved with the wife one was divorcing! It was really only Christa's effort at peacemaking so that she could leave for Reno and thence for Paris, happy with the nest-egg he had provided and feeling glad that there were no hard feelings.

It was an embarrassing moment of sadness for him when he said good-bye. Christa's eyes were bright with anticipation of several amusing weeks in Reno, and perhaps by that time Jake's play would have been accepted and she would find herself the bride of the celebrity of the hour. For Renny her excitement was loathsome, and he looked at her frowning to see if he could detect an atom of regret in her face. Was he foolishly sentimental because at parting he remembered vows and promises made long ago?

"Renny, tell Allison about me, won't you? And I know she'll grow up to be lovely. If you marry again, don't forget her I may send her little things once in a while...."

"If you do, I'd rather you didn't enclose a card. Children have vivid imaginations. When she's old enough I'll try to explain (how—how could he ever, sanely?) this to her.."

"I understand. It will be best, I suppose, that she doesn't know anything about me until she grows up. Even then it will be difficult because—because she'll hate me."

When she drew in her lip, he thought she was going to cry. Casually they touched hands in farewell and when the elevator reached the first floor, the boy had to repeat, "First floor, sir," before Renny could be shaken from his thoughts.

SNOW AND RAIN

A total of seven inches of snow had fallen in the Toronto area by the early morning hours. The heavy snow was reported all across southern Ontario from Windsor to Kingston, moving easterly and followed by freezing rain. The Ontario Highways Department warned that most roads were dangerous. Government plows were working on all highways in the Toronto district and plows and sanding crews were busy at other danger spots such as Chatham.

Sharp Dip in West

Winter's return to Ontario which had enjoyed unseasonably mild weather last weekend coincided with gales in British Columbia, snow all through the prairies and a sharp dip in western temperatures with Edmonton reporting a low of 28 below zero. Cooler weather was in prospect from Manitoba eastwards.

Generally the forecast was for freezing rain during the morning, followed by rain and snowflurries but clearing tonight with advent of lower temperatures in Ontario.

Even with plows and sanding crews busy main highways were drifted badly in many sections. The snow was driven by a 20-mile northeast wind. Only serious accident attributed to the storm however was a collision between a Hamilton Street Railway bus and a train in Hamilton, when four people were injured. Poor visibility was blamed. In Toronto, a score or more were treated for injuries following falls on the treacherous footing.

Flood threats arose at Chatham and Etobicoke, a few miles west of Toronto. The whole situation was serious at Chatham, which had thunder and lightning after freezing rain and sleet on top of the snow. Trees were icing up and ice was forming on wires. The river Thames at Chatham was nearly nine feet above normal.

Around Stratford however farmers welcomed the snow as reducing the danger to crops from water freezing on the ground. In Hamilton sleet followed the snowstorm last evening. In Essex and Kent counties roads were especially dangerous.

BRITISH TROOPS

It was reported this morning to be nine feet above normal and still rising, though slowly. Some low-lying sections of Dover, near the mouth of the river at Lake St. Clair are inundated. The danger level if the river at Chatham is 14 feet above normal.

Yarker, Verona and Bath were cut off by heavy snow drifts. Highways Department and County road crews were trying to push plows through to the isolated villages as high winds continued to hamper operations.

had issued an ultimatum that martial law would be invoked if Collins were not released by 5 p.m. yesterday. He did not gain his freedom until five hours later.

Sentence Stayed

He was the second abducted Briton to regain his freedom in 24 hours. Judge Ralph Windham, seized from his courtroom in Tel Aviv Monday, was freed unharmed Tuesday night.

Both men apparently were kidnapped to guarantee the safety of Dov Bela Guner, a 33-year-old Jew, convicted for his part in the attack on a Palestine police station and sentenced to be hanged. The sentence has been stayed to permit an appeal to the Privy Council.

Collins was chloroformed and batted on the head with an axe-handle Sunday night when underground members spirited him away from his home. His head still was bandaged when he regained his freedom last night.

He said he had been held in Jerusalem in "something resembling a cave". An eye-witness said the kidnappers spirited him into an ancient Moslem cemetery.

Police, acting on the testimony of witnesses to both abductions, sought a tall blonde Jew named Shapiro as the leader of the gangs which abducted both Collins and Windham.

Police Give Version

Police later gave this version of Collins' experiences.

He was chloroformed when kidnapped and when the drug wore off he found himself blindfolded, gagged and his head covered with a sask. He was being marched over rough ground. After a distance Collins estimated at some kilometres, he found himself in a cave having an iron door, a clay floor and a stone shelf on which there was a mattress.

Next morning a doctor came to attend him and he was informed the doctor had been delayed the previous night because of the curfew. Collins could not describe his guards, of whom he had three a day.

The account was not clear as to how Collins actually was released at Hadassah clinic. The police version said:

"Just before his release, the same doctor who previously attended him advised him the best thing he could do was to go as fast as possible to a doctor. The guards then blindfolded and gagged him and put a sack over his head. He then was walked about for more than an hour, twisting and turning over extremely rough road with ditches. The last thing his escort told him was to remove his bandages when he heard a car coming along."

The hospital said he received a severe blow on the head which had been stitched in the cave. He also is suffering bad burns on the face and neck caused by chloroform. His eyes are in bad condition due to the effect of chloroform and to the fact that he was without spectacles.

BITTER DEBATE

It likely will mention that the controls, now operating under wartime powers, will lapse when the Emergency Transitional Powers Act expires March 31. An alternative would be to seek an extension of this Act for possibly another year.

While the majority of controls for which extension would be sought concern the prices of rentals, foods and other essential commodities, some likely will deal with the shipment of foodstuffs, such as wheat, meat, apples, cheese and poultry products, to Britain and other overseas customers

One piece of legislation already forecast by Prime Minister Mackenzie King is a bill for the repeal of the Chinese Immigration Act of 1923, which curtails the numbers of Chinese citizens who may enter Canada and long has been protested by the Chinese government. This bill will be accompanied by others aimed at making the immigration act generally conform with the repeal of that measure.

UNION BRIEF

outcries that unless this case is decided adversely to the workers the very pillars of the republic will fall," the brief said.

The brief declared employers involved "have sought to create an atmosphere in which their own wrong-doing will be obscured and their irresponsibility overlooked."

The C.I.O. lawyers said an interpretive bulletin from the administrator of the wage-hour act in July, 1939, laid down the general rule that "hours worked" would include "all time during which an employee is required to be on duty or to be on the employer's premises."

The C.I.O. took direct issue with a Justice Department brief already before Judge Picard which argued in favor of applying the "de minimum doctrine" to the time involved. "De minimus" is the doctrine that the law does not concern itself with trifles.

The Justice Department stepped into the case after witnesses at a Senate hearing on bills to deal with the portal pay issue testified the claims could cost the government billions in tax rebates and additional payments on cost-plus-fee war contracts.

A target of criticism in Congress for his part in the case, Judge Picard has refrained in general from answering critics, who have even suggested his impeachment.

However, it is known that the jurist does not feel himself responsible for the portal pay issue that has evoked billions of dollars in claims, mostly from C.I.O. unions.

BRITISH WOMEN, CHILDREN TO LEAVE PALESTINE

Churchill Wants U.S. to Join With Britain in Dispute

Claims Stopping of Civil War Should be UNO Care

London, Jan. 31—(CP)—Winston Churchill urged the British government today to surrender its Palestine mandate to the United Nations unless the United States joins Britain "on a fifty-fifty basis" in a new policy for the Holy Land.

Churchill, speaking in House of Commons debate, declared:

"We have broken our pledges to the Jews. Having found ourselves incapable of carrying out our promises, we have no right to say that we have to stay there for motives of honor.

"If there is no call to honor, then the responsibility of stopping civil war in Palestine between Jew and Arab ought to be borne by U.N.O. (the United Nations) and not by this poor, overburdened and heavily injured country."

The former prime minister referred to talks in progress here aimed at reconciling Jewish and Arab claims in Palestine, and said:

"When the present conference is over, unless the United States comes in with us on a 50-50 basis to shoulder an agreed policy, then we should lay our mandate at the feet of the United Nations."

Administered Under Mandate

Britain, which conquered Palestine from the Turks in the First World War, administers it under a 1922 mandate from the League of Nations, held by some to have expired. Churchill made a similar proposal last fall, but the Labor Party government has shown no disposition to leave Palestine.

As the debate raged in the Commons, Jewish sources in London expressed "shocks" at the government's evacuation plan. Arabs here for conferences welcomed the step.

Churchill asked that the government make every effort to avoid "squalid warfare with Terrorists" in Palestine, with the United States and the rest of the world looking on. But he urged against bowing to intimidation by threats from the Palestine underground, declaring:

"If you are brought into a quarrel, pugnacity and will power cannot be dispensed with. It is a terrible things to be drawn into a quarrel and to be cowed out of doing your duty.

Road to Defeat

"Good gracious me! How should we have got through our late struggle if we had allowed our will power to be influenced in this way?

"What would have been said when the Germans were bombing London if we had sent a message to say 'if only you will leave off, we will guarantee not to touch Berlin'.

"That is the road of abject defeat. I hate this quarrel with the Jews—but when you are engaged in the matter, at least bear yourselves like men."

Col. Oliver Stanley, Colonial secretary in Churchill's wartime Cabinet, opened the debate. He said Britain should clear out of Palestine and tell the people she could not carry out her mandate rather than suffer any more humiliation like the kidnapping of Judge Ralph Windham and Maj. H. A. I. Collins last weekend.

Mutual Aid Report Shows Canada Gave Four Billions In Supplies to Her Allies

Ottawa, Jan. 31—(CP) — Canada, in addition to financing her multi-billion dollar war effort, contributed close to $4,000,000,000 worth of supplies, foods and war materials to warring United Nations and liberated countries, it was disclosed today.

The Canadian Mutual Aid Board's final report, tabled in the Commons by Reconstruction Minister Howe, showed that materials and supplies furnished the United Nations under the Mutual Aid Act alone from Sept. 1, 1943, to Sept. 1, 1945, totalled $2,471,212,000.

Of the total $2,112,150,000 went to the United Kingdom. The remainder, in varying amounts, went to Australia, the British West Indies, China, France, Greece, India, New Zealand and Russia.

In addition to mutual aid, Canada made a $1,000,000,000 gift to the United Kingdom, contributed $154,000,000 to the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Association, provided $95,000,000 in military relief and gave Greece $19,000,000 worth of wheat.

Actually, said the report, 38 per cent of Canada's total industrial war production was contributed to the cause of the United Nations through mutual aid. About 29 per cent of production went into Canada's war effort and the remaining 14 per cent was produced for the United States.

Breakdown of Aid

The value of mutual aid to countries other than the United Kingdom was broken down as follows:—

Australia, $91,375,000; British West Indies, $5,518,000; China, $39,742,000; France, $25,105,000; Greece, $12,000; India, $18,826,000; New Zealand, $15,279,000 and Russia $167,255,000.

The $2,112,150,000 in mutual aid and the $1,000,000,000 gift were not the only assistance the United Kingdom received.

Prior to the inauguration of mutual aid, the United Kingdom was provided with a $700,000,000 interest-free loan. A sum of $200,000,000 was made available to the United Kingdom by Canada's action in repaying Britain for cost of building special war plants in the Dominion. To assist Britain and the sterling area in meeting a dollar shortage, the Canadian government arranged the purchase of close to $900,000,000 worth of Canadian securities held by residents in Britain.

425 Millions Wiped Off

The report did not mention the $425,000,000 which the Canadian government wiped off the books last year during negotiations which led to the granting of a $1,250,000,000 loan to the United Kingdom. The $425,000,000 represented the amount Britain was to pay as her share of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan.

Australia and New Zealand's shares in the air training plan costs, totalling $28,578,000, were absorbed under mutual aid.

The Mutual Air Board, besides rounding up the mutual aid supplies for the United Kingdom, handled other purchases for Britain. The Board spent $1,407,032,000, which Britain received from transactions with Canada, for various types of materials, foods and supplies needed by the United Kingdom.

HURRICANE ROARS OVER VANCOUVER, HEAVY DAMAGE

Storm Moves East As Ontario Snarled In Snow And Sleet With Mercury Dropping

(By The Canadian Press)

With the coldest weather ever recorded on the North American continent 24 hours behind them, Canadians generally today were keeping their fingers crossed and waiting for relief from a nationwide succession of snowstorms, rainstorms with freezing temperatures—everything in the weatherman's book, in fact.

The weather bureau thermometer at a little outpost landing field near the Alaska-Yukon border, 1,200 miles northwest of Edmonton, yesterday registered 78.7 below zero, setting an all-time low temperature for this continent.

More than $1,000,000 damage on land and sea was caused on the British Columbia coast when a hurricane roared in from the Pacific, smashing downtown property and disrupting communication and transportation services.

Edmonton, although suffering its lowest temperature of the winter, did not experience any tie-ups in traffic, and railway services, while delayed, were not cut off. A low of 40 below and a high of 34 below is the forecast for today—and that is considered normal for this time of year.

Ontario was the hardest hit as far as road and rail services are concerned. Snowplows and graders worked steadily all day Thursday and today to restore bus lines as highway traffic in all parts of the province came to a virtual standstill.

At Toronto the fall of snow and freezing rain was estimated at 13 inches since Wednesday morning. A fall of 13.1 inches was expected by tonight at North Bay. Heavy snow and high winds were generally forecast for northern Ontario.

In the Wingham area the total fall was reported at 18 inches. In eastern Ontario, 11 inches had fallen last night with no signs of the storm abating.

Rural Schools Close

In Toronto and Hamilton, a 24-hour sleet and snow storm slowed down but did not stop city traffic. Gangs of men working all night cleared up the greater part of the sloppy, wet obstruction, and today worst blockades of the storm had been removed.

Rural schools in many areas of Ontario suspended activities for the day, but most of them are in operation again.

The province was remarkably free of power-line trouble, with only one report — from Port Colborne — of light failure from storm damage.

All airline flights from Montreal were cancelled and city transportation facilities were hampered by a light flurry of snow and freezing rain.

Weather to Improve

Toronto, Jan. 31 (CP)—Southern Ontario wearily dug itself out today after the worst storm so far this winter. Forecasts indicated that most parts of the province could look forward to a respite, as only light snowfall was indicated and colder weather was on the way.

The thermometer dropped to 15 degrees below zero at Cochrane—but a robin basked in the northern sun.

A storm which raged in the Sudbury district yesterday and last night blew itself out and left two inches of snow. Today no roads were blocked and the temperature stood at two below zero.

MacArthur Acts Promptly to Prohibit General Strike of Japanese Workers

Tokyo, Jan 31 —(AP)— Gen. MacArthur killed the Japanese general strike today with an order saying "I will not permit the use of so deadly a social weapon" in the prostrate nation.

Five hours after the order was issued, and four hours before the midnight strike deadline which was to have pulled 2,400,000 government workers off their jobs, the Tokyo Central Strike Committee composed of Left Wing labor leaders, announced that it had "decided to call off" the strike.

The committee issued instructions to all locals throughout the country to abandon all strike plans.

Earlier leaders of the strike, which would have crippled almost the entire Japanese economy, indicated they would ignore the Supreme Commander's order. They said they had not advised their members the walkout was cancelled and that probably many would stay off the job after midnight.

The Supreme Commander declared he could not permit the use of "so deadly a social weapon" as a general strike in the

Royal Family Embarks For Trip to South Africa

By JAMES McCOOK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 31 — (CP) — The Royal Family left London today on the first stage of its South African tour, driving through slushy London streets without ceremony in a closed car because of the discomfort which would be caused by the thousands who turned out to see the state procession.

Knots of people gathered on streets half an hour before the Royal car was due and cheered when it passed with the bright Royal Standard flying from the bonnet.

At Waterloo station, where the King and Queen and Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret boarded a train for Portsmouth, the usually dingy building was gay with the flags of the United Nations.

The King and Queen and the Princesses waved to the crowds as their car passed through London and again as the Royal train pulled out a few minutes after it reached Waterloo Station. The goodbye on the platform took less than five minutes.

The King and Queen had a special word for Prime Minister Attlee who was there to say goodbye. Queen Mary, the Duke of Gloucester and the Princess Royal travelled to Portsmouth with the train. The Queen and Princesses kissed goodbye to the Duchess of Kent and the Earl of Athlone, former Governor-General of Canada, and his wife, the Princess Alice.

At Portsmouth, the Royal Family will board H.M.S. Vanguard, the Royal Navy's newest and largest battleship. The Vanguard is scheduled to leave Portsmouth harbor before dawn tomorrow, escorted by two cruisers, one destroyer and an aircraft carrier.

Earlier in the week the Royal luggage was placed aboard the ship. It included new wardrobes for the Queen and Princesses, which will give the people of South Africa and the world an idea of what British post-war dress and hat designers are doing.

Vanguard—ninth vessel of that name in the British Navy—has been magnificently fitted out for its good-will mission. No stops will be made before Capetown.

It will be the Royal Family's first trip of any consequence since their visit to Canada in 1939 and Princess Elizabeth's first close-up of the Empire. The project — though gay enough in many ways —is considered generally to have too many significant implications to be viewed merely as a holiday.

It is reasoned that the visit might well determine whether the United Party of South African Prime Minister Smuts—a Commonwealth supporter, but up against strong opposition — shall remain in power. Social and economic questions as well as political ones will be studied carefully by the King and Queen— and by Princess Elizabeth, for this is a major phase of her schooling as a possible future ruler.

IS BRITAIN'S 'I.Q.' SLIPPING, BOOK RAISES QUESTION

Sir Cyril Burt Refers to Present Trends in Population

London, Jan. 31 — (Reuters) — Britain's I.Q. may be slipping, an article in the British Medical Journal indicated today.

Commenting on what it called the "distant prospect of a galloping plunge to intellectual bankruptcy" the article drew attention to a booklet by Sir Cyril Burt, professor of psychology at University College, London.

Burt, the article declared, said that experimental results strongly suggest that if present population trends continue, Britain will face a progressive decline in the level of its national intelligence.

Standard mental ability measurement tests showed that members of larger families have, on the average, lower test scores than those from smaller families. The "only child" tends to do better in tests than those from larger families.

"Children of the professional classes are found to be on the average (but only on the average) more intelligent in this sense than children of unskilled laborers.

"The maintenance of a steady level of the national intelligence depends on the more intelligent parents contributing enough to the next generation to balance the quota added by parents at the other end of the intellectual scale.

"At the moment, professional families have a net reproduction rate well below that of the working classes."

Alleged 'Fixer' Of Football Game Gives Self Up

New York, Jan. 31 — (AP) — David Krakauer, sought in a country-wide alarm on an indictment charging bribery and conspiracy in connection with the investigation into attempted fixing of a professional football game, surrendered today at the District Attorney's office.

Krakauer, accompanied by his lawyer, Harold Cooper, walked into the District Attorney's office while police of 48 states searched for him.

He was one of three men indicted after Alvin J. Paris had been convicted of trying to "fix" the New York Giants Chicago Bears professional football game Dec. 15 by attempting to bribe two Giants players. Paris talked to the Grand Jury this week.

MARSHALL URGED TO STAND FIRM AGAINST RUSSIA

Senator Bridges Charges Soviet Aim is to Turn Germany Into Satellite

Washington, Jan. 31 — (AP) — Senator Styles Bridges (Rep.-N.H.), charging that Russia's aim is to turn Germany into a "satellite and ally", called upon State Secretary Marshall today to stand firm at the Moscow Foreign Ministers' conference.

"If Moscow succeeds in the great design of merging Russian manpower and German technical discipline, the last chance of saving democratic civilization will be lost," Bridges declared in a statement prepared for the United States Senate.

"That is why the scheduled big power conference in Moscow (March 10) is so terribly important. It is there that our new Secretary of State will have his first and most decisive test."

Bridges, a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, issued the statement four days after Senator Brien McMahon (Dem.-Conn.) told his colleagues he suspected Russia of building an atomic plant in the Ural Mountains and that the United States "may be in mortal danger".

Sharply critical both of American wartime diplomatic dealings with Russia and of the Soviet Union's post-war activities, Bridges asserted:

"Whatever accomplishments we can claim in recent months came after we stiffened our policy with an injection of the iron of self-respect.

"Let's not forget," he continued, "that our representatives travelled a hard road, a humiliating road, before they reached, at long last, a policy of so-called 'patience and firmness'."

He added:

"We count on Secretary Marshall to resist the efforts of a noisy minority, typified by Henry Wallace and his fellow-travelling entourage, to steer American foreign policy back into the blind alley from which it has only recently emerged."

President Truman last fall fired Wallace as Commerce Secretary after the then cabinet member publicly criticized what he termed State Secretary Byrnes' "get tough with Russia" policy.

Lashing out at what he said historians probably will call "the great American surrender at Yalta", Bridges said the United States dissipated its "moral prestige" among peoples of the world "when we allowed Russia to grab the territories of its neighbors and impose its control on a hundred million people through the old familiar strong-arm methods."

"For our gifts of appeasement we have been paid off in contempt, broken pledges, calculated delay and confusion—all of this against a backstop of world-wide anti-American propaganda."

DEMILITARIZATION OF GERMANY IS URGED BY BRIEF

Canada Wants German State Based on A Federal System And Powers Limited

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 31. (CP)—Canada's 20th Parliament, convened for its third session since the end of the war, today was faced with a legislative program which clearly reflected the continuing effect of the conflict on the Dominion's national and international affairs.

The program was outlined yesterday in a 2,000-word speech from the Throne, read by the Governor-General, Viscount Alexander, at the formal opening of parliament.

To meet domestic developments, legislation will be introduced to continue some of the war-created price and commodity controls.

In addition there will be bills dealing with Old Age Pensions, immigration, Labor relations, agriculture, marketing, defence, finance, export trade and taxation agreements with the provinces.

As a result of international relations, legislation will be introduced to enable Canada to carry out her obligations under the effect to agreements arising out of international relations. The United Nations charter and to give peace treaties with the German satellite states will be submitted for approval.

One of the first statments the commoners heard was an outline by External Affairs Minister St. Laurent of the controversy between Canada and the Deputy Foreign Ministers on the question of the German peace treaty.

In addition to the ouline, Mr. St. Laurent tabled a brief to the Deputy Foreign Ministers which bluntly said that the Canadian people could not "isolate" themselves from the German peace settlement.

Audibility Greatly Increased By Severe Cold

Toronto, Jan. 31 —(CP)— Officials of the meteorological service of Canada here still are awaiting word of the effects of cold weather yesterday at Snag Airport in the Yukon where the temperature dropped to 78.7 degrees below zero to set an all-time record low for the North American continent. But the weather service released some information about the phenomena Snag experienced recently when the temperature was a mere 72 below.

Constant ice fog around the Snag station reduced visibility far below normal during the cold snap. On the other hand, audibility was greatly increased and sounds from an Indian village three miles away could be heard plainly.

"One's breath froze immediately with a hissing sound and remained suspended in the air for several minutes before disappearing," reported observer Gordon M. Toole of Snag. "It was rather a unique experience to see a vapor trail several hundred yards long pursuing one as he moved about outside."

At Mayo Landing in the Yukon an unopened bottle of sulphuric acid froze solid and burst.

Toronto's Snow Just Plain 'Ornery' Thinks Newsman With Sore Back

By J. E. DUNN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 31—(CP) — This was a city today of close to 500,000 sore backs and twice as many aching arms and legs. The reason —SNOW.

It is hard work pushing down the typewriter keys this morning after shovelling 300 cubic feet of snow in this worn and weary city. This average for each Toronto home—the fill of a box about six or seven feet square—is easily as hard to handle as 2,000 cubic feet up north or out west.

I've shovelled snow at Bell's Corners, in the high-drift country outside Ottawa where people wear red ski caps in case they get buried while they work. But it's a breeze compared to what happened here yesterday when 13.1 inches of snow fell.

And yesterday's fall was twice as tough to handle as the "big snow" of 1944 when Toronto stayed home for a day when 24 inches fell overnight.

Yesterday's snow wasn't wet, which was the reason Mayor Bob Saunders has been giving for it tangling up snow-removal equipment. It was granular, like salt

Prelude to All-Out Drive to Stamp Out Disorders

Commons Prepares to Debate Whole Question of Violence

Jerusalem, Jan. 31. (Reuters) —An order for evacuation from Palestine of British women and children was issued today by the Palestine High Commissioner, Lt.-Gen. Sir Alan Cunningham.

The order said "Following on recent events in Palestine it has been decided that British women and children and certain other British civilians will be evacuated so that the government and the armed forces shall not be hampered in their task of maintaining order."

Meanwhile increased security measures were being taken by military authorities. Army Clubs and canteens closed in Jerusalem and British servicewomen were confined to barracks.

It was learned from a reliable source that the evacuation will begin Tuesday, Feb. 4.

Meanwhile, it was officially announced that all British civilians remaining in Palestine will be given "protection".

Special orders have been issued that, for the time being, no British women are to be allowed to go to Palestine.

This step follows the deterioration in conditions in Palestine resulting from the recent kidnappings of two Britons—Judge Ralph Windham and Maj. H. A. I. Collins.

Conditions in Palestine after the return recently of Gen. Cunningham appeared to be improving slightly until these kidnappings, which were followed by a warning by Sir Alan that military control would be exercised in certain areas unless the Britons were set free.

Both were released later.

Continue Search

Protective measures on behalf of British women and children were taken during the military movements which followed the kidnappings. Some families were given shelters in Allenby military barracks near Jerusalem, while houses of British citizens on the outskirts of Jerusalem were placed under protective guard.

As preparations for evacuation were under way, troops continued their search for the cave in which Collins was held prisoner by the Terriorists who kidnapped him Sunday night.

No statistics were available as the exact number of persons to b affected by the evacuation order a Jewish agency economic research institute statistical handbook published in 1945, states that 4,500 British people had settled in Palestine at the time of the last census in 1931.

Many of these, however, are government officials who would not be affected by the order.

Three weeks after the first contingent of British wives and children arrived in Palestine it was announced that no more families would be permitted to join British soldiers there while the present situation continued.

Will Aid Military

The evacuation results from "recent terroristic acts in Palestine," a government spokesman said. The action will "allow the government and the military to carry out the task of maintaining peace," he added.

Evacuation of the wives and children of government officials will be compulsory, but certain others may have the option of remaining. In such cases, the spokesman said, the Palestine government would assume no responsibility for their safety.

Highlights Of Throne Speech

Ottawa, Jan. 31—(CP) — Following are the highlights from the Throne Speech read Thursday at the opening of the third session of the 20th Parliament:—

Legislation will be introduced to continue some price and commodity controls.

The necessary of giving statutory form to some wartime powers will bring under review measures relating to labor relations, agriculture, marketing, immigration, defence, finance and export trade.

Amendments to the Old Age Pensions Act will be introduced.

Taxation agreements with the provinces will be submitted for approval.

A committee of the Commons and the Senate will be established to consider and report on the question of human rights and fundamental freedoms.

Ratification of the German satellite peace treaties will be sought.

Legislation to enable Canada to carry out her obligations under the United Nations Charter and to give effect to agreements arising out of international relations will be introduced.

Barbara Scott Well on Way To Lifting Title

Davoy, Switzerland, Jan. 31 — (CP)—Canada's figure skater Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa finished on top in the compulsory figure skating here today with a total of 1,601 points and is thus well on the way to lifting the European championship.

Daphne Walker of London was second and Gretchen Merrill of Boston was third.

Miss Scott's total of 1,601.9 was out of a maximum score of 1,848.

Completion of the sixth compulsory figures, each figure executed twice, will be followed Saturday by free skating — four minutes of bends, jumps and dance steps.

Miss Scott demonstrated the utmost sureness and precision in the compulsory figures in a field which the judges deemed of far higher average standing than the best in pre-war years.

The Ottawa beauty stood out in a class by herself. Even when she repeated a figure two or three times she left little more than a single trace on the ice—the sign of perfect technique achieved only by indefatigable practice.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 31 — (CP)—Synopsis: Light snowfalls continue over northeastern Ontario this morning while snowflurries are frequent over southern sections of the province. The weather continues very cold over Northern Ontario and decidedly cold in Western Canada as well as in extreme northwestern United States. A moderate disturbance in South Dakota will move rapidly eastward to pass south of Lake Ontario on Saturday afternoon. It will cause light snowfalls over the lower lakes region early Saturday. Decidedly colder weather will prevail over Ontario late Saturday and on Sunday.

Slept for 4 Days Out-of-Doors Says 14-Year Boy

Toronto, Jan. 31 (CP)—A 14-year-old boy from South Porcupine told police today that he hitch-hiked in subzero weather to Toronto, found a job in a downtown store but had no place to live and no money to buy food. He said he was told he would have to wait a week before he received any pay from the store.

The boy said he slept out of doors for four days. The last two nights he slept in a railway station where railway police found him and turned him over to city police.

After they heard his story, police officers took up a collection and gave him a good meal at the nearest restaurant. Then he was given sleeping accommodation while his parents were notified.

Ontario to Meet Commitments In Food to U.K.

Chatham, Jan. 31 (CP)—Hon. T. L. Kennedy, Provincial Minister of Agriculture said here last night it is the intention of Ontario to meet her food commitments to Great Britain, not only during the current year, but in the future.

Canada is duty bound to help that "glorious England of 1940" which frustrated Hitler's campaign of conquest he said. Failure to fill food contracts with Britain might jeopardize future trade with the Motherland, he added, in emphasizing the need of expanding Canada's export market.

Mr. Kennedy spoke at a reception arranged by various Kent farm organizations for J. A. Garner, for many years county agricultural representative, recently appointed director of extension in the provincial department of agriculture.

I've shovelled snow in St. Vital, just outside Winnipeg, where it piles so high a street car can pass without the waiting customers knowing. But that was a cinch. Out west, you get a shovel full, toss it into the air and the wind lands it in the yard next door. Not in Toronto.

Most people shovelled snow in Toronto yesterday than on any single day in years. Families took turns with the wide shovel eliminating that 300-cubic-feet average. It looked easy at the start.

I've shovelled snow in Calgary, too. Not very often. I wish I were back in Calgary now.

Approximately 2,400,000 workers in transportation, light, gas, water and postal services were scheduled to walk out in support of demands for tripled wages and resignation of the Conservative government of Premier Shigeru Yoshida.

MacArthur said he was taking a hand "only to forestall the fatal impact upon an already gravely-threatened public welfare."

SOMETHING NEW IN THE MUSICAL WORLD

If you can play an accordion, you can play the new organ invented by Rene Feuillee, a young Frenchman, who is shown here with the instrument. The invention is called the "accordionorgan." It consists of an orthodox accordion, played on the lap as usual, but it is connected to the big pipe organ in background. Big drawback to the instrument is that it weighs more than a ton and has to be carried about in a truck. Rene is scheduled to give a number of concerts with his invention in Paris in the near future.

Chamber Asks Council to Further Consider Prohibiting Taxicab Parking

Following complaints from several Front Street merchants, the directors of the Chamber of Commerce at the weekly luncheon yesterday will send another resolution to city council requesting consideration of a former petition with regard to prohibiting extensive parking of taxicabs in front of places of business.

The chamber following similar complaints forwarded a request to the city fathers asking them to do something about the matter. Since that time further complaints have arrived at the chamber offices.

The complainants feel that one or two taxis are sufficient along the main thoroughfares, and that the remainder should be allotted a parking space elsewhere. Lines of taxis awaiting fares take up space that should be available to visitors to the city who come here on business.

The question of itinerant solicitors of advertising from out-of-town who yearly solicit merchants and other businessmen was left to the discretion of the Retail Merchants' Division of the Chamber. That body will decide on the question of the Chamber's "O.K." for these advertising solicitors, also, that of local organizations which desire to canvass the city for similar reasons.

Vice-President Harold Seldon was in the chair in the absence of newly-elected Chairman G. A. Freeman.

The Chamber decided to have representation at the Field Clinic sponsored by the Canadian Chamber of Commerce which is being held here on Monday night and which will be attended by boards of trade and chambers of commerce officials from the district. It is expected the Belleville Junior Board of Trade will also be represented at the clinic.

Rural Couriers Likely to Make Full Trips

With two rural mail couriers failing to complete their routes on Thursday because of heavy road conditions all couriers operating from the Belleville post office were expected to complete their trips today, it was reported this morning by Postmaster W. C. Waddell.

Couriers who yesterday failed to complete their trips operate the Frankford and Ameliasburgh routes, but both completed their trips Thursday morning indicating that roads again were passable.

With the exception of the two above named routes, all others were completed on Thursday while the Bancroft bus being the only one which was a bit late. Busses from Marmora and Tweed made their trips almost on schedule, it was stated.

"Of course some of our couriers do not report until the afternoon, but we expect that all rural routes and busses will be able to get through today," commented Mr. Waddell.

REGIMENT UNIT TO HAVE BRASS BAND

Brockville, Jan. 31 (CP)—The Royal Canadian Regiment has changed its mind and is going to have a brass band after all.

The unit did have one once—it functioned right through the war based on the district depot at London, Ont. Some months ago it was "dis-banded."

The instruments and music library have been brought to Brockville and the impression they created, lying neglected in the bandroom, must have been over-powering....

The R.C.R. band is being reformed and some of the 29 instruments are already being warmed up.

Eugene Loft Convicted On Wounding Charge

Convicted on a charge of wounding with intent to do grievous bodily harm, Eugene Loft, Bridge Street West, was remanded for sentence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills at police court on Friday morning.

The charge against Loft resulted following a fracas at a local pool room on Saturday night during which police claimed the accused had stabbed Clarence Lewis in the lower abdomen with a penknife. Loft pleaded not guilty to the charge and conducted his own defence.

Seven witnesses were called by the Crown, including Lewis who told of the scuffle with Loft following a game of pool and of receiving a stab wound in the abdomen. He stated the wound had bled profusely and he had gone to Dr. J. J. Robertson and later was taken to hospital.

Dr. Robertson described the wound as a "deep cut in the left side of the abdomen", and stated it had narrowly missed the artery. "Had the artery been cut the patient would have been dead in five minutes," stated the doctor.

Other witnesses called included Thomas Pappas, "Soup" Mondeville, J. Barnhardt, J. Bothwell and Police Inspector Clare Hayes.

Although maintaining his innocence during the presentation of Crown evidence, the accused admitted the stabbing when questioned by the Magistrate after telling his own version of the scuffle.

Sentence was deferred by Magistrate Wills pending receipt of the accused's finger print record from Ottawa.

Radio Reception Over the City Generally Fair

In the city to investigate sources of radio interference, Mr. A. G. E. Argue, Radio Division, Department of Transport, Ottawa, stated today that reception generally in the city was good but there are some sources that are purely local.

The department suggested, Mr. Argue said, that the greater percentage of complaints regarding radio interference can be laid to the operation of household appliances. Some of these appliances include electric pads, electric razors, vacuum cleaners, electric mixers, sewing machines and fluorescent lighting.

"The intensity of the interference from these appliances," he said, "depends largely on their condition. Every radio owner can become a "trouble shooter" by checking sources of interference in his own home."

Mr. Argue suggested that radio owners can check the potential source of interference by setting the volume and tuning the radio slowly across the entire dial. There is, however, a type of interference that cannot be eliminated, but radio science has provided mechanical equipment which can remove the greater part.

The Department of Transport, Mr. Argue said, is co-operating to the fullest extent in the event of major interference. However much can be done to improve reception by radio owners checking their electrical appliances.

Bert Reid Moved To Oshawa Store

Manager of the local Zellers Store for the past six years, Mr. Bert Reid, Charles Street, has been transferred to the Oshawa store with his new duties to commence in the near future.

Succeeding Mr. Reid as manager of the Belleville store is Mr. J. A. Bothwell who was transferred from the Port Arthur store. Mr. Bothwell is a native of Saskatchewan and has been with Zellers for the past nine years. He is married with two children and will move his family to Belleville as soon as accommodation can be secured.

During his six years in Belleville Mr. Reid, or "Bert" as he is popularly known, took an active interest in service club welfare work, being a member and director of the Kiwanis Club. During Victory Loan campaigns he took an active part being a member of the publicity committee in several campaigns.

McFee's Purchase Chronometer To 'Rate' Watches

A true marine chronometer, most accurate of all portable timepieces and identical with the thousands used on practically all the ships of the Canadian and United States navies, has been purchased by McFee's Jewellery Store.

Since the chronometer represents the highest development of the watchmakers' craft, the instrument was purchased by McFee's to be used as a basic time source for "rating" watches being repaired and serviced and is now on display in the south window of the store for the convenience of the general public.

The original ship's chronometer was made by an Englishman John Harrison in the middle of the 18th century. Since then, up until World War II almost all of the timepieces were manufactured in Switzerland. Swiss unit production methods, however, could not cope with the war's urgent requirements of quantity.

The Hamilton Watch Company, renowned manufacturers of railroad watches undertook to, and succeeded in producing ships' chronometers in quantity. Their finished product proved to be a triumph of engineering skill — some tolerances as fine as one 100,000th of an inch were in this most accurate of all portable timepieces.

In actual "rating" tests the Hamilton chronometer has proven to be superior to predecessors, in part due to the employment of a nickle-steel alloy "Elinvar" in the balance assembly. This factor almost wholly eliminates the variation resulting from temperature changes.

The United States navy used as many as three of these chronometers in its largest ships. Some conception of the accuracy required may be gathered from the fact that one second variation can result in a half-mile navigational error.

Stag Frustrates Dog, Saves Five Does

Glencoe, Jan. 31 — (CP) — A running fight between a gallant stag and a dog that frustrated the dog and saved the lives of five does, was witnessed by a number of local residents yesterday. While the five does huddled in a thicket, the stag, pursued by the dog, led it away from the females and when it had exhausted the dog, returned to round up the does and lead them to safety.

Central Fairs Association Meeting Not Well Attended Due to Heavy Road Conditions

Fair Dates for District Will be Set at Meeting Called for March

Inclement weather and heavy road conditions resulting from the snow and sleet storm which swept through the district Wednesday night was responsible for a slim attendance at the annual meeting of the Central Fairs Association held here on Thursday afternoon.

Representatives of only six fair societies turned up at the meeting and a second meeting is planned some time during March to set fair dates for the coming season.

Vice president of the association for the past year, Mr. Bryan Dodds of Picton was named president succeeding Elmer Sandercock of Belleville. Vice presidents are Harry Coulter of Tweed and W. McColl of Napanee. Secretary treasurer C. W. Varcoe of Roseneath and listrict director Albert Woods of Madoc were re-elected. Auditors are T. J. Graham of Tweed and Fred Rutherford of Campbellford.

Superintendent Attends.

Provincial Fairs Superintendent J. A. Carroll attended the meeting and told delegates that last year had been a banner fair year with 85 per cent of the 210 fair societies in the province reporting increased attendance and 75 per cent increased exhibits.

Commenting on fair trends Mr. Carroll stated there was a marked increase in the interest being shown at judging rings and claimed that breed associations were partly responsible for this. Many societies had reported improvement to grounds with 40 reporting new buildings.

To stage a continuously successful fair meant planning and enterprize on the part of the directors according to Mr. Carroll. He told of activities of many societies in increasing exhibits and interest in fairs.

Should Purchase Seed.

Referring to field crop competitions the speaker stated that agricultural societies could do no better work than to purchase registered seed and distribute it among fair exhibitors. "In this way they are getting at the very foundation of successful farming," he said. "If the average grain yield can be increased, then the costs of production are lowered."

The question of how societies are going to plan to meet conditions tougher than they have been in the past few years was a current problem facing directors. Fairs have been enjoying a "sellers' market," it was stated.

High costs of production on the average Canadian small farm was a matter of some concern to the fairs superintendent who stated that the only way which Canadian farmers could hope to compete on world markets was to place emphasis on quality production.

He pointed to th edemand of foreign markets for Canadian purebred cattle and registered seed grain and suggested that if the quality of other farm produce was raised to a comparable level it would demand a premium on foreign markets.

Elmer Sandercock paid tribute to the work accomplished by the junior department at Belleville Fair, claiming that this was one of the brightest parts of the show. "Some of the junior judges were developing a judginb knowledge almost equal to that of the best senior judges in the province," he said.

Fred Rutherford of Campbellford took exception to the fact that midway operators have to be consulted by many societies before fair dates were set. Many of the district fair officials claim they could not operate a fair successfully without a midway and accordingly arranged their fair dates to the convenience of the midway owners.

Royal Family to S, Africa

Their Majesties the King and Queen and Their Royal Highnesses the Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret will sail on Saturday, February 1st., in H.M.S. Vanguard on their historic voyage to South Africa — the first visit ever to be paid to that Dominion by a reigning monarch and his Queen. The great Dominion of South Africa waits to greet the royal visitors who will after 16 days' sea voyage to Cape Town on Britain's newest and greatest battleship start from the Cape on February 17th., on a ten thousand mile tour by train, motor-car and airplane, ending on April 24th. when they will embark for Britain. The royal visit will be a great event in the history of South Africa.

Canadians who had in 1939 the great happiness of greeting Their Majesties, just a few months before the Second Great War broke out will follow the royal progress through the great sister Dominion with unflagging interest.

The voyage to South Africa is the first in peacetime by Royalty, in one of His Majesty's ships, since the present King and Queen, then Duke and Duchess of York, travelled to Australia in the battle-cruiser Renown in 1927. It will be the first time that Their Royal Highnesses the Princesses have left the United Kingdom. The Navy is determined that its royal guests shall have the happiest memories of the time they spend in H.M.S. Vanguard.

The present Vanguard is the ninth ship of her name in the Royal Navy. The first was a galleon of 500 tons built in 1586, which fought against the Armada. Perhaps the most famous ship of the name to date was the fifth "Vanguard," which was completed in 1787 and had 74 guns and a crew of 589. She became Nelson's flagship in 1798 and took part in the Battle of the Nile, which put an end to Napoleon's Egyptian plans.

The building of Vanguard was a symbol of faith in Britain's ultimate victory, for her keel was laid in John Brown's yard at Clydebank in October 1941 when the Germans were sweeping across Russia and a Second Front seemed little more than a dream. She was built despite air raids, shipping losses and shortages, to become the world's most powerful battleship, as unsinkable as is humanly possible.

H.M.S. Vanguard embodies every type of equipment and amenity that can be hoped for in reason in a warship of her size. She has a length of 813 feet and a tonnage of 42,500 tons. She carries eight 15 inch and sixteen 5.25 inch guns, and has 1,250 telephones.

The royal accommodation is situated on the shelter deck, which is above the upper deck and is abaft the second funnel. Normally this would be the quarters of the Admiral and of his staff. It will be entirely self-contained and will have its own galley and its own telephone switchboard.

The Royal Party will embark at Portsmouth today (Friday), and as His Majesty the King steps on board, the Royal Standard will be broken at the mainmast and a royal salute will be fired by the saluting battery at Fort Blockhouse. H.M.S. Vanguard will proceed to sea Saturday, and as she heads down the Channel her escort of two cruisers, one aircraft-carrier and one destroyer from the Home Fleet will take up their appointed stations.

The voyage will take sixteen days and no calls will be made on the way. There will, however, be plenty to occupy and interest the Royal Party. There will be flying-off and flying-on of aircraft from the escorting aircraft carrier to be watched, deck tennis on the quarter-deck, and the latest films will be shown. His Majesty will be in close touch throughout the voyage with affairs of State. Ample radio equipment is available on board to ensure continuous contact being maintained with London.

On the seventh day, in the latitude of Freetown, the Home Fleet escort will be relieved by H.M.S. Nigeria, Flagship of the South Atlantic Station. On the eighth day H.M.S. Vanguard will cross the Equator and the ceremony connected with "Crossing the Line" will be carried out with all its traditional pantomine and good humor.

Two Royal Navy sloops and three frigates of the South African Naval Forces will join H.M.S. Nigeria as escort at a point between Freetown and Capetown, and on 17th. February H.M.S. Vanguard will steam into Capetown harbor, there to transfer her royal passengers to the hospitable care of the government and people of the Union of South Africa.

January's Exit

January will be remembered, for two very heavy snowstorms, as well as a prolonged thaw which removed a good share of the snow which fell shortly after the coming of the new year. The storm which followed the thaw was even more heavy than the first of the year.

The spell of mild weather which is commonly known as "a January thaw" will not be forgotten because it helped to clear up traffic conditions. It was a prolonged season of very unwintry weather and had the touch of springlike conditions at times to be followed by the heavy fall of snow and sleet on Wednesday and Thursday.

This mild interlude has given what the balance of the winter cannot take away, a suggestion and confidence of that later time when winter begins to loose its icy shackles with which it binds the land and earth begins to resume its appearance of brown fields and blue skies.

A Montreal Gazette writer paints a very fine picture of those days of the January thaw in these words, "A January thaw is a recess in the bitter cold of winter. Water drops from eaves and rolls in little rivulets down hills and slopes. Snow banks shrink and grow grey. A fragrant breeze hints of spring and open roads.

"In the country barnyards steam, and fowl cackle noisily rejoicing in the unexpected sunlight. Barn walls soak in the warmth and animals bask beside them. In the fields small creatures stir, peeping inquisitively from their winter homes.

"Twilight brings enchantment. Hills and clouds grow dusky blue. Stars come out and twinkle like April stars, and the gypsy aroma of spring tempts one to believe that this borrowed joy is permanent and that ahead there are no winds, storms or snow."

While January thaw is gone it leaves a memory, born of the genial atmosphere of those days and of the realization that winter is half gone or at least will be half gone by Sunday if one believes the old adage, remembered through ages, which relates to the bear coming out and seeing or failing to see his shadow on February 2nd. Though the four-week month is at hand and though its weather is unpredictable, it cannot crush man's hopes that springs eternal, because they are founded on the fact that spring is not so far away. Or as Shelley put it in his lines so often quoted:

> "If winter comes, can spring be far > behind?"

Billion in Religious Bequests

Never before had the U. S. put so much in the plate. The Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. added up religious bequests and contributions during 1945, announced that for the first time they topped a billion dollars (sum total: $1,035,000,000). Mammon was still several laps ahead; during 1945 the U. S. spent $7,800,000,000 for alcoholic drinks, $3,000,000,000 for tobacco, says Time Magazine.

In Scottish Shipyards

The Clyde shipyards are building, what is at present the largest ship under construction, the 30,000 ton Caronia for Cunard White Star Line, which is scheduled for launching this summer. This premier shipbuilding river launched 103 vessels or 348,000 tons in 1946.

Washington Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 31 — (CP) — In recent weeks one sure way for a dominant United States personality of the masculine sex to get in the headlines has been publicly to declare he does not want ever to be president.

If the personality happens to be someone slightly threatened with being president, all he needs to do to make the headlines is to say he is not seeking it.

Nevertheless, to an outsider, it seems a strange attitude toward the presidency, and toward the democratic system of this country, that a man like Gen. George C. Marshall, now secretary of state, should be so widely acclaimed for bluntly declaring he would not hold a political office and could not be drafted for one.

No one would criticize the general if he said he was too old and too tired from long and valiant service to his country to stand the hurly burly of political strife.

But his statement seemed to carry some implication that political life is not desirable and the statement was seized upon and widely stressed by those who like to criticize politicians.

Gen. Marshall, who would automatically become president if fate removed Harry Truman, has definitely put himself out of the 1948 presidential picture. Both he and Gen. Douglas MacArthur will be out of the picture in 1952 because they will be past 70 and too old. But Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, who has not yet silenced all rumors about his political future, will still be young enough in 1952 if he escapes the draft in 1948.

For some reason there has been a new flurry of local interest in the Canadian spy story of more than a year ago. Almost daily there are appeals to Canadians in Washington for a copy of the bulky Canadian Blue Book containing the Royal Commission report on the Soviet espionage incident. A popular weekly magazine is running a series on it and this week a local daily (Washington Star) began a synopsis of the report to run in serial form. It is running similarly in other American publications. If copies were available in reduced size and at popular prices the book probably would be a best seller.

Proponents of the free trade visions contained in the American-led plans for an international trade organization would find little encouragement at the current hearings of the committee on reciprocity information. Almost invariably the representations are against any lowering of the tariff. Incidentally, listening to the arguments on some items, notably coal, aluminum, paper and fish, one would assume Canadian negotiators of the 1935 reciprocal trade agreement, but its subsequent adjustments, were extraordinarily able operators. The way the domestic interests tell it the Canadians put it all over the American negotiators.

GIVE FAREWELL PARTY

London, Jan. 31 — (CP) — On the eve of their departure for South Africa the King and Queen gave a farewell party at Buckingham Palace Wednesday night attended by Prime Minister Attlee and his wife and most members of the government and their wives.

SUED FOR MAINTENANCE

Los Angeles, Jan. 31 — (CP) — Louis Jordan, 38, Negro swing band leader stabbed in an affray at the home of friends last weekend, was sued for separate maintenance Wednesday by his wife. Mrs. Jordan, has been booked on suspicion of assault. She alleged Jordan beat her, hit her with a bottle and drew a gun on her.

DEMILITARIZATION

Explaining that the deputy foreign ministers were attempting to limit Canada's contribution to the German peace treaty drafting to a written brief, Mr. St. Laurent said that Canada wanted a part in the peace-making which would be in keeping with her contributions to the winning of the war.

The brief, presented to the deputy foreign ministers in London last night, was being submitted with the understanding of the Canadian government that it would not prejudice later participation in the peace treaty discussions.

Outlining preliminary views on the German treaty, the brief said Canada urged the "complete demilitarization of Germany." It warned against the signing of any immediate peace treaty and suggested that the reconstructed German state be based on a federal system in which the powers of the central government would be strictly defined and limited.

Supported by Leaders

John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, and Solon Low, Social Credit leader, said their parties supported the government's action in seeking a greater part in the peace-making. Mr. Bracken said it would be an "insult to this nation if it is refused the right to sit in on this peace conference."

Earlier the three leaders gave silent assent to Prime Minister Mackenzie King's motion declaring vacant the Montreal-Cartier seat held by Fred Rose, Labor-Progressive member who has been sentenced to six years in the penitentiary on espionage charges. There was no discussion on the motion before it was carried.

Four New Members

Looking on while Mr. King made his motion were four new members, elected in by-elections since the last session and in their seats for the first time. They were Real Caouette, L'Union Des Electurs member from the Quebec constituency of Pontiac, Gerard Cournoyer (L — Richelieu - Vercheres), C. C. Miller (P C — Portage La Prairie and Harold Timmins (PC — Toronto Parkdale).

Today, Mr. Cournoyer will second the motion for adoption of the address in reply to the throne speech. The motion will be moved by J. W. MacNaught (L — Prince). The Senate will not sit.

Mr. King said that as a result of a conference with party leaders it had been decided that the Throne Speech debate, if unconcluded by next Friday, will be adjourned from Feb. 10 to Feb. 24 to permit passage of the price control legislation.

The Throne Speech gave no details of the forthcoming legislation.

With respect to price controls expected to be one of the most controversial topics during the session, the speech said:—

"The policy of the government is to maintain only such price and commodity controls as may be required to protect consumers from a sudden and drastic rise in the cost-of-living, and to ensure a fair distribution of essential goods and services which are in short supply."

Divergent Views

All opposition parties have divergent views, however, on the control policy.

The Labor legislation may include a national labor code and the agriculture and marketing bills may be related to long-term bacon, cheese and egg agreements with the United Kingdom.

While the government has announced that it plans to repeal the Chinese Immigration Exclusion Act, it is expected it may also take steps to ease immigration restrictions generally. The speech said Canada, with other nations, was seeking to solve the perplexing problem of displaced persons.

May Raise Pensions

Old Age Pensions changes are expected to include the giving of statutory effect to a $5 increase in pensions provided for under a wartime order-in-council which expires March 31. Under existing statutes the basic pension is $20 a month to persons 70 and over in necessitous circumstances.

The order-in-council brought the amount to $25 and then some provinces provided for an additional war supplement of another $5.

Any Dominion-Provincial taxation agreements concluded will be submitted for ratification. In addition there will be bills providing for an increase in Commons membership from 245 to 255, and for minor changes in the Dominion Election Act.

WHAT IS YOUR HANDICAP

A handicap is any disadvantage that renders achievement, or especially success in competition, more difficult. So says Webster.

I said here recently:

"According to insurance statistics, among Britons aged 16 to 18 who seek dental treatment 12 per cent need a complete set of artificial teeth. That is dreadful to contemplate. Apparently the English people have lower per capita consumption of milk and milk products, greens and fruits, and get less sunshine or diffuse daylight on naked skin than Americans do."

The statistical fact, rather than the moral I drew from it, got under the skin of one of my implacable enemies on the bowling green who heckles me constantly if not consistently and would really worry me, but fortunately when I complain to his wife she assures me that he is talking through his hat—and she has lived with the fellow long enough to know.

My heckler came here from England only four or five years ago and he stoutly maintains that English teeth are as good as American teeth. But I'll bet him or anybody else who thinks I don't know what I'm talking about one slightly used white shirt size 15 1-2 against a pipeful (my pipe) of combustible fuel that you can't find 12 Americans 15 to 19 years of age who need a complete set of artificial teeth among a thousand of that age who seek dental treatment.

I say need—that does not mean that some alleged dentist condemns all of the patient's teeth because several teeth are in need of repair or perhaps beyond saving.

My heckler protested particularly my remark that "Roast beef, treacle and tea can hardly maintain health in England, nor can white flour, sugar and steak build and maintain sound teeth in America." He objects to that description of the regular diet of the average Englishman. It is probably as fair a statement of the deficiencies of the Englishman's nutrition as white flour, sugar and steak is of the deficiencies of the American's nutrition.

Certainly a majority of people in America derive most of their daily calories from white flour, sugar and whatever meat they can get but particularly the refined carbohydrates, and for this reason suffer from nutrition deficiencies, because white flour and refined white sugar, although chock full of calories, yielding quick muscular energy, cheap, plentiful, easily digestible, and so easy to eat even if you are not at all hungry — notwithstanding these advantages, the refined carbohydrates fail to supply any minerals or vitamins to speak of.

What the everyday diet needs in England and in America, is more milk and milk products (cheese particularly), eggs, greens, fruits, and replacement of at least part of the white refined carbohydrate by undenaturized carbohydrate. Especially the daily use of plain wheat—as it comes from the farmer, the thresher, the feed store, the seed store, the farmers' market.

Not that these corrections of common faults in the diet will cure dental caries or prevent the loss of teeth from degeneration. But at least this is a good start towards better nutrition, and good nutrition is the only way we know to retard physical degeneration.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Why are members of the Society of Friends called Quakers?

Members of the Christian sect commonly known as Quakers at first called themselves "Children of Light" or "Children of Truth," but finally adopted the name "The Religious Society of Friends."

Originally "Quaker" was applied to them in derision. Although the name has never been adopted by the Friends themselves, they no longer regard it as a term of contempt or reproach.

George Fox, the English founder of the Society of Friends, says in his "Journal" that he and his followers received the popular appellation from the following circumstance:

"Justice Bennett, of Derby, was the first to call us Quakers, because I bade him quake and tremble at the word of the Lord."

It was in 1650, during the Puritan regime, that Fox was charged with blasphemy, hailed before Justice Bennett and sentenced to a term in the Derby jail.

Bennett may have been the first to apply "Quaker" to Fox and his adherents, but it is probable that Fox was mistaken in supposing the name originated from what he said to the justice.

"Quaker" was applied as early as 1647 to a certain sect notorious for its emotional manifestations.

This sect was described in a letter of intelligence written in that year to the government:

"I heare of a sect of woemen (they are at Southworke) come from beyond Sea, called Quakers, and these swell, shiver, and shake and when they come to themselves (for in all this fit Mahomett's holy-spirit hath bin conversing with them) they begin to preache what hath bin delivered to them by the Spiritt."

It appears from this that Justice Bennett merely used a word already commonly applied to persons who expressed their religious emotions in trembling, shaking and physical convulsions.

Likewise members of "The United Society of True Believers in Christ's Second Appearing," which originated in England in the 18th century but migrated to America, are known as "Shakers" from the dancing movements that were once part of their ritual.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Maybe Both You Girls Took this Boy Too Seriously, "Diary"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What do you think of a fellow you have been going with for quite some time, and who you found out was making love to another girl all the time he was making love to you?

Of course he doesn't know that I know all about it. I was lucky enough to find out. For my part, I never care to see such a deceiving person again. Don't you agree?

"Diary"

I certainly agree that it would be very foolish ever to take him seriously again, "Diary". But on the other hand, maybe both you girls used poor judgment in taking him seriously in the beginning. Maybe this young man was just doing a little routine flirting and flattering, and thought each of you was sophisticated enough to realize that it didn't mean anything.

If I were you, I'd go on that assumption, and handle him accordingly, if he should come around again. That is, I'd be friendly and very casual joke with him and poke a little good-natured fun at him for being such a "ladies' man." Don't make the mistake of showing how naive you've been by giving him a dramatic brush-off or a cold shoulder. Let him think he never fooled you for a minute and he will begin to think you're quite a girl after all.

I'm a Little Snafu, Too, On This One

Dear Miss Fairfax:

After going steady with a girl for about a month and a half, she broke off with me. The reason we broke up was that she didn't like my ways and I can't say I blame her. I was very informal and as frank as I could be with her, I thought that she would understand me and realize that I was really in love with her, but she didn't and took it for mistrust.

This is the girl I had always dreamed of, and I thought surely nothing would go wrong. I have promised her that if she will only give me another chance I would be different, but now I find it difficult even to talk to her. I think that she still cares about me, because she won't have anything to do with other fellows. I would like your advice on how I might get another chance with her.

"Snafu"

Well, "Snafu", I'm a little confused myself. I can't imagine what you mean when you say you were so informal and frank with this girl that she didn't understand and took it for mistrust. As far as I'm concerned, that just doesn't make any sense.

What did you do or say that was so disastrously frank and informal, and who mistrusted whom? I'm afraid you'll have to be more specific if you want me to advise you, because nothing you say gives me any clue as to why this girl should have been so offended, and hence I would not know how to remedy the damage. It's just too vague.

If I must take a shot in the dark, I'd say to try sending a barrage of flowers, candy, etc., each gift accompanied by a note saying you're sorry in a different way each time. Maybe you might intrigue her into forgiving whatever it was you did or said.

She's Older Than Her Boy Friend—Does it Matter

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am a girl of 25, and very much in love with a boy four years younger. He has proposed to me and we have been going steady for one whole year. He has a very pleasing personality and acts and talks like an older and more experienced man than one of 21.

He insists that I marry him and says the difference in our ages doesn't matter. I can't turn him down, as he really wants to settle down and make me happy. Everybody says I don't look as old as 25. Would I be doing right to marry him?

Undecided.

It's not a matter of right or wrong, "Undecided", but rather one of his and your own happiness or unhappiness. And which you would have, if you married this young man, depends far more on whether you are congenial, have the same interests and standards, like much the same sort of people and all that, than it does upon your ages.

Conventionally, of course, a marriage is supposed to get off to a better start where the girl is younger than the man, the theory being that a 21, for instance, a girl is about as mature as a man of 23 or 24. If you reverse the thing, it would mean that, at the ages of yourself and your young man, you are relatively much older than the mere four years between you.

But it doesn't always follow, by any means, and there have been many instances of happy and successful marriages between an older woman and a younger man. The main thing is, as I have already said, to be sure you have similar tastes, standards and interests, and I might add, that you do not feel maternal toward him, nor he look up to you as an older sister.

He's Giving You a Runaround

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have been going with a married man for about three years. He has three children. I am a married woman but I don't have any children.

This man tells me that the loves me and is going to get a divorce and marry me. For the last 18 months I have been after him to get his divorce, but he never tries to make any headway to get it. He buys me nice presents and he takes his meals with me every day. He doesn't live with his wife because she found out about me, but every two or three months he take a notion and goes back to her. Then he comes back to see me, or calls me, and she finds it out, and then he gets his clothes and leaves home and comes back to me. It looks like he would rather be with me, but if he loved me as much as he says he does, I would think he would try and get a divorce.

Should I take the presents back and give them to his wife and tell him not to bother me any more, and hang up when he calls, or should I keep on seeing him?

"Mrs. E. H."

I think you know the answers to all your questions very well yourself, "Mrs. E. H.". You don't really imagine I would tell you to keep on seeing another woman's husband, do you? And why not just hang up when he calls, without making the grandstand play of taking his presents to his wife and telling him not to bother you any more? If you want to break off with him, that's the way to do it. I can't conceive why any women would want to have anything to do with a man who is giving her such a runaround. He obviously has no intention in the world of getting a divorce. Why let him make a fool of you?

All of which says nothing about what a married woman like yourself is doing getting involved in a situation like this anyway. If your husband hasn't found out about your monkeyshines, you're a very fortunate woman, and you'd better behave yourself before it's too late.

Grand Glitter

BY ALICE ALDEN

THERE ARE doings around New York this Winter which have been highlighted by some of the most breathtakingly beautiful costume jewelry ever seen, pieces that compare favorably with real gem. Trifari, who has done his share to advance the cause of finely-made American costume jewelry, is responsible for this twinkling trio. First, there is a flexible necklace, fashioned of simulated rubies bordered in tiny rhinestones. Then the flexible bracelet of baguettes and rhinestones, and lastly, the beautifully detailed earrings in a bow-knot design.

Fashion Flashes

COMING UP on the Spring fashion horizon is the cape and dress costume. Silk crepe, in ginger brown, is used for a handsome duo. The simple frock has a molded midriff and full circular skirt, while the cape boasts a scalloped collar and double-breasted closing with tiny gilt ball buttons.

ALWAYS LOVELY for evening wear are the delicate pastel shades of pink. A really beautiful evening ensemble consists of a full length tunic coat and a slim gown both of lustrous pale pink metal cloth.

A NICE BRIDGE between late Winter and early Spring millinery is the small hat of felt or fabric piled high with roses in pastel shades, some using deep green velvet bows for color contrast.

A NEW LEASE on life seems to be the happy lot of the ankle-length evening frock. Deep royal blue lace is used for a smart evening frock that is ideal for any but the most formal event. The ankle length skirt is full, and the bodice is fitted with high, round neckline and long sleeves. At the waist a sash of emerald green ribbon offers interesting contrast.

IT ISN'T EASY for coat designers to think up new versions created new sleeve interest. Soft of the little boxy topper. So orchids to one designer who has suedey woolen in white and pastels is used for the model which has a saddle shoulder into which the sleeve is set. Sleeves are cut full at the shoulder and are belled at the bottom, giving an almost capelike silhouette to the boxy model.

GETTING READY for Spring is always nice, especially when it means donning a beautiful print. Pure silk in a geranium print in red, yellow and green on white is used for a handsome evening frock. The long skirt has a slim, unbroken line in front that is draped into a full bustle-bow in back. Deep square neckline and draped cap sleeves.

HIGH STYLE brown continues to register in fine clothes. Deep brown taffeta is used for a handsome afternoon suit made with a blouse top of brown lace threaded with dull gold. Deep folds follow the scooped out neckline.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT in the field of small furs, is a sling cape of moleskin, dyed a deep navy blue, and a cape-stole of moleskin dyed burgundy red. A revival of coleskin for general wear next winter is indicated.

THE BAND PLAYS an important role in giving color and interest to otherwise simple sports fashions. Black linen is used for a slacks and top ensemble, the top ornamented with bands of pink and aqua linen that slash across the bodice, over the shoulders and down the push-up sleeves.

IT IS INTERESTING to observe the tremendous variety in evening wraps that grace theatre audiences. A charming novelty is a coat of black Persian lamb with a sprinkling of black pallettes that are invisible unless they catch the light—which makes the coat quite right for afternoon wear.

How to Manicure at Home

After the manicure, give your hands a relaxing massage.

By HELEN FOLLETT

GIRLS who haven't time to chase to a beauty shop every week, who must do their own manicuring, must have the proper tools if home treatments are to be satisfactory. The kit should include a long, sharp, flexible file, emery boards, curved, needle-point scissors, orange wood sticks, cuticle cream, nail white, nail polish, polish remover.

The scirrors should be of high grade steel, the best one can buy. Given proper care, they will last for years. You mustn't use them to pry up tacks, or cut wire—common practices among the careless lassies.

Before the hands are washed, shape the nail eaves to a neat oval, using the steel file from sides to centre, rounding off the centre. Run the orange wood stick under the eaves to fluff up little shreds, give a finishing shaping with the emery board. You are then ready for a thorough hand scrubbing—after, of course, you have removed the old polish.

Apply cuticle cream or mineral oil, friction it into the nails and the surrounding flesh. Very gently, use the stick to detach the cuticle from the nail, working in tiny circles. Avoid pressure at the nail bases, so the matrix will not be injured. If you scare up hangnails, remove with the scissors, curved ends pointed downward. Don't take the chance of causing a wound.

Another soapy hand washing and you are ready to apply the rosy glow.

Professional Manicures

It is not to be expected that the home manicure will be as complete, perfect or delicately accomplished as that of the trained operator at the beauty works. So time should be found once in awhile for professional attentions.

Anointing the nails every night will do wonders to keep them in condition. The friction will stimulate the underlying blood streams that impart the coral coloring to human talons. The medium of massage will soften the surrounding flesh. Dip the orange wood stick in the cream and pass under the nail eaves to keep the inner surfaces smooth so dust won't adhere.

After the manicure, apply hand cream and give the hands a good relaxing massage.

It's About Time . . .

IT'S ABOUT TIME to try this trick, when you tire of large buttons on a coat or suit. Tack each large buttonhole at the centre. This makes two buttonholes in one. Now replace each large button with two small ones. Sew

Red Woollen Topper

THE BOXY bulky tip-top topper goes its varied way no matter how many contenders arise for coat honors. Bright red woollen is used for this boxy topcoat, the sort of thing that is good for town or country wear. Four large black buttons decorate the front but do not fasten it. When the weather is cold, one just wraps it. The coat is nicely detailed at the pockets and edges.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Guests Served in Order of Their Seating

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My husband and I are planning to give our first dinner in our new home, the first since our marriage almost a year ago. It will be for eight guests and we have a maid who will be waitress. Should she serve the ladies first, and then the gentlemen?

2. The dinner is being given more or less in honor of the two attendants at our marriage, my matron of honor and her husband, who was the best man. Whom should the waitress serve first?

Alma

1. No, the waitress should serve the guests in the order in which they are seated.

2. Since your matron of honor is the guest of honor at your dinner-party, she should be seated at your husband's right, and she should be served first. Then the waitress proceeds to the right, serving next the man seated at the right of the woman guest of honor.

Cordial Note of Invitation to Newcomers

I am a widow in my middle fifties, and since my husband's death a little over a year ago, I have not been very strong and have gone out very little. Last week my cousin, who lives in California and to whom I am very devoted, wrote me that her daughter's college roommate had been married and that she and her husband had just come to live in our medium-sized town. I realize that I should call on this newcomer, but I don't feel quite able to do this, because my cousin wrote me that the only space this couple could find was on the top floor of a reconverted four-storey house. Do you think she would consider me inexcusably rude if I wrote to her, not calling first, and invited her to come to lunch with me, or perhaps invited her and her husband to dine here with me?

F. P. R.

I am sure this young lady will understand completely and will be delighted to accept your hospitable gesture. My suggestion is that you make no explanation in your note, writing it perhaps like this: "It was such happy news to me when my cousin wrote me that you and your husband had come to live here and I want so much to welcome you both to this friendly town and to my home. It would give me great pleasure if you and your husband will dine here with me, informally, next Saturday evening, February first, at seven o'clock. I do hope this will be a convenient date for you, and I shall be looking forward with special pleasure to greeting you both."

Cordially,

Wearing Hat-veils in the Evening

My girl friend and I live in the suburbs of a large city in which we work. Quite often we have dates to dine in the city after our office hours. Lately we have had several discussions as to whether in the evening we should wear over our faces the veils that we have on most of our hats, or put them back over the hats in the evening. We have seen both styles in the city. Which is correct?

Esther

In the evening the veils should be put back over the hat.

Courtesy Tip

When you and a new acquaintance are saying good-by after the introduction and the new acquaintance says to you, "Good-by. I am very glad to have met you," say something like "Thank you. I'm very happy to have met you too." If you don't reply anything but "Good-by," you'll seem socially awkward, and you'll be socially awkward. If you reply only "Thank you," you'll certainly imply that although the new acquaintance may have enjoyed the meeting, you didn't!

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Scalp care makes tresses lustrous

Hair gets washed and hair gets dressed, a ritual which makes for pleasing appearance. That is as it should be. A smart coiffure is a worth-while contribution to the feminine composition. But there are hygienic duties that should not be sidestepped. When the old thatch has a mournful or sullen look, when shafts are dull and tresses won't stay put, get after the scalp. Those silky threads aren't getting enough of the groceries that are normally distributed by the blood streams.

By using plenty of friction during the shampoo, this fortnightly rite will serve as a scalp treatment. Don't just rub in the suds; pummel the scalp as hard as you can. Give hair and scalp a thorough overhauling.

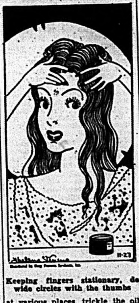
Use melted soap. Apply it three times with plenty of elbow grease, following each application with a prolonged rinsing with fairly hot water. Use a bath spray for the purpose; it does a better job than the shower because the water floods every portion of the scalp area. A mild current is not effective; turn the faucet full on and let 'er rip.

We doubt very much if the average teen-ager gets her hair free of soap scum. If the hair is properly rinsed it will feel soft and silky, every shaft will be separated from its neighbor.

It won't do to take a lovely halo for granted, to fancy that it may not thin out or change in character. It should have as careful attention as that which is given to the complexion. Well-cared-for tresses are less likely to whiten than those that are neglected.

Brushing is invigorating if it is brisk and thorough. It brings a gloss, gives the topknot character. Many women never brush their hair; that is a mistake. The bristles should touch the scalp, pass through each strand with a rolling motion.

Massage is a stimulating agent. On the night before the shampoo, heat some mineral oil. Part hair at various places, trickle the oil along the partings with a medicine dropper or a small oil can until it is well distributed. Spread out fingers and thumbs and go at it.



Keeping fingers stationary, do wide circles with the thumbs

Keep the gingers stationary, do wide circles with the thumbs. Work diligently along the temples and forward hair line; it is at the temples that thinning first shows up. Wrap the head in a towel and go to bed. For the oil treatment to be really effective, the lubricant should remain on the scalp for hours.

It is believed by many hair specialists that the balanced diet promotes a luxuriant growth of hair. Stands to reason that the hair, like other parts of the body, needs a variety of food elements.

And, of course, war needs had to be served first.

Now that the war is over, it's the civilian market that's hungry for cotton—cotton for sheets and shirts, for dresses and underwear and for dozens of industrial uses.

The gap between supply and demand is world-wide. In Canada, though our mills are doing their utmost, it will take months for the cotton industry to catch up.

The World's Most Accurate Portable Timepiece is Now on Display in our South Window

It is a MARINE CHRONOMETER made by the Hamilton Watch Company during the war—an exact duplicate of the thousands of similar instruments with which practically every fighting ship of our Navy is equipped.

It is accurate because it had to be — a second's variation would mean a half mile navigational error and this might prevent a rendezvous at sea, or prevent a task force from hitting its objective.

For two centuries the marine chronometer has represented the highest peak of the watchmaking craft. Before the war, such instruments were only made abroad, but, when our Navy needed them in greater quantities than had ever been made before, the Hamilton Watch Company—famed makers of the Watch of Railroad Accuracy—was given the assignment.

In two short years, Hamilton acquired the chronometer skills of two centuries—and to them added patented features of their own, plus modern precision manufacturing methods which resulted in the world's finest chronometers.

We are proud to have this marine chronometer on display. Come in and see it—and let us tell you why this fine instrument will mean even finer performance of the Hamilton watches which will soon again be available.

Trenton

Vestry Meeting Of St. George's Church Convened

Trenton—The annual Vestry meeting of St. George's Anglican Church was held in Canterbury Hall on Monday evening last with the rector, Rev. A. S. McConnell, M.B.E., in the chair.

Following the opening of the meeting with prayer and reading of the minutes of the last Vestry meeting financial statements on church maintenance and missions were presented by the Wardens, Messrs H. L. Hall and M. C. Waldorf; reports on St. George's cemetery by the treasurer, Mr. R. M. Armstrong, and members of the different church organizations submitted statements of their work and progress. The fact that receipts from all sources, for both parochial and extra parochial objects amounted to over $10,000 denotes a healthy and successful year for the whole parish.

Wants Better Attendance

The rector in presenting his report to the Vestry, urged the congregation to better church attendance, especially at the early services of Holy Communion and during the summer months. Of the falling away in church attendance during the summer he said, "It is a shame that we should worship God only when it is convenient for us to do so. We need the strengthening of corporate worship in the summer just as much as we do during the rest of the year." He reported that 224 services were held throughout the year, with a total attendance of 14,427. He told the Vestry that some 100 new families had been added to the church lists in the past year, but that many "nominal" Anglicans who appeared to take little interest in the church no longer be considered as church families.

Special Mention Made

In thanking all the church organizations for their work during the year, the rector made special mention of the Parish Guilds, the different branches of the W.A., and the Sunday School. He voiced his appreciation of the excellent co-operation given to him by the Wardens and the members of the parish executive and expressed to the congregation at large his thanks in these words, "You have been very good to my family and myself and my first year as your rector will always be remembered as a happy and harmonious experience." In concluding his report the rector asked the Vestry to stand, in respect, as he read the names of the deceased members of the church who had passed away during the year, also remembering a number who had been recently bereaved.

The Vestry moved a motion of appreciation to S.-L. the Rev. J. Minto Swan, RCAF station Chaplain, for his willingness to assist the rector while resident in the parish; and also went on record in assuring the congregation of Christ Church, Glen Miller of the financial support of St. George's in the rebuilding of their church.

Wardens Appointed

The rector asked Mr. M.C. Waldorf to act as his Warden for the year 1947 and the Vestry elected Mr. W.W. Davenport as People's Warden. The following officers, duly elected by the Vestry will carry on the work of the Parish for the coming year: Vestry Clerk, Mr. F. W. Sherbert, Lay delegates to Synod Messrs. G. G. Goodsell, H. W. Heaney, R. Burke, C. W. Lott, W. A. Reid, and R. M. Armstrong. Parish Executive Council: Dr. T. S. Farncomb, H. L. Hall, G. Flynn F. W. Sherbert, G. Davenport, H. B. Smith, E. Mantle, George Leeman, Preston Salter, J. W. Murray, Stanley Hall, A.R. Murdock. Auditors: F. W. Sherbert and J. W. Murray.

During the past year besides looking after local Parochial needs, the parish of Trenton subscribed $5,659. to the Anglican Advance Appeal.

SEEKS BROTHER'S LIFE

Mrs. Helen Friedman, of Lancaster, Pa., is shown after she made an appeal to Lord Inverchapel, British ambassador in Washington, for the life of her brother, Dov Bela Gruner, Jewish terrorist under sentence of death in Palestine. The death sentence on Gruner is believed to have prompted the kidnapping of a British banker and a British judge in Palestine. Gruner was granted a reprieve by British commander, General Sir Evelyn Barker, pending review of his case by the privy council in London.

BETA SIGMA PHI MEETS

The last meeting of the Ontario Alpha Lambda Chapter of the Beta Sigma Phi Sorority was held at the home of Miss Peggy Doolittle. The theme of Social Work was continued by Mrs. Sparling. During her address, she cited some very interesting cases which she had handled during her work in Hamilton. At the conclusion, she suggested that the girls should get material from the Children's Aid Society to make dresses and pyjamas; from the V.O.N., to make layettes.

She sent forth a plea to obtain volunteers for Camp Bolton at Toronto, and for Camp Iliahee at Cobourg. Finally, she urged that the girls develop public opinion.

At the close of her address, delightful refreshments was served by the hostess.

These baskets of fruit were sent to members who have been unable to be out for sometime, and paid for from the proceeds of a euchre party held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Connors. A letter of appreciation from the Salvation Army was read in acknowledgment of a quilt, and another from the Children's Aid Society for clothing.

Canadiens Beat Maple Leafs 2-0 Slashing Leader's Margin To One Point in N.H.L. Race

Richard and Blake Chalk up Counters With Punch Line Mates Drawing Assists

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Stff Writer)

Unless Toronto Maple Leafs can scramble up replacements, new or old, to bolster their injury-riddled ranks, the galloping Montreal Canadiens appeared streaking today to their four straight dominant season in the National Hockey League.

That was the way the Canadiens made it look when they blanked the Leafs, 2-0, in Montreal last night. For nearly two periods Toronto played their rivals to a standstill but towards the end there just didn't seem enough of the tiring Leafs to go around.

The Montreal victory still left the Leafs with a one-point edge over the Canucks in this race that has virtually narrowed down to a two-team affair as the N.H.L. clubs enter the final third of the schedule with Boston Bruins 13 points behind Canadiens in third position.

But the combination of a game-in-hand and last night's sparkling performance weighed the scales in Montreal's favor, at least temporarily.

Season's Record

With a season's record crowd of 12,275 jamming the Montreal Forum, the Leafs gave as good as they took for at least 30 minutes and missing several opportunities to get the jump. Towards the end of the second period, Montreal started to force the pace, however, and the break came soon after.

In the end, it was the combination of big Bill Durnan, headed for his fourth straight season as Vezina-trophy goaltender, and the Canadiens' high-scoring "punch line" who wrote the victory.

Maurice Richard, "the Rocket" right winger of the punch trio beat Walter (Turk) Broda from just outside the crease with linemates Toe Blake and Elmer Lach drawing assists. This opening counter came at 17.36 of the second period.

In the final frame Blake, the old lamplighter of the Habitants tallied the clincher on a play with Lach and Kenny Reardon.

The two goals and three assists picked up by the punch boys installed the line as high-scoring trio of the season with 57 goals and 49 assists. Thirty of the goals are on Richard's personal record.

The short-handed Leafs, limping along with two forwards and two defencemen on the injury list wilted towards the end as they chalked up their fourth winless game, only one of which was a draw. Defenceman Wally Stanowski who played nearly 60 minutes found his feet turned into iron lumps in the closing stages.

Their victory meant that the Canadiens, who have closed up eight points on the Leafs in two weeks, could pass Toronto when all six teams get back into action this weekend, as the Habitants play Saturday and Sunday games while the Leafs are scheduled for one only. There was only the one match last night.

ROCKY GRAZIANO WILL TELL STORY TO FISTIC FATHERS

May be Deprived of Right to Meet Zale for Middleweight Crown

By SID FEDER

New York, Jan. 31. (AP)—Rocky Graziano fought for his fistic life before the New York State Athletic Commission today while the District Attorney focused his gambling and bribery investigation on under-cover fight managers with gangster and criminal records.

Graziano was summoned to appear before the State's fistic fathers this afternoon to tell his story of a $100,000 offer to throw his scheduled Dec. 27 fight against Ruben Shank, a second-rater from Denver—a fight, incidentally, which never came off because Graziano came down with an ailing back.

Graziano already has told his story to the District Attorney—how three men approached him in Stillman's gymnasium, mid-town training base of most fighters, and made the bribe offer, and that he thought it was "a gag".

In the repetition before the Commission, Rocky will not only be battling for his rich title shot against the middleweight champion Tony Zale in Mad'son Square Garden March 21, but also against possible suspension or revocation of his licence as a fisticuffer.

The Commission could conceivably mete out any or all of these punishments to the knockout-specialist because he failed to report the bribe offer to authorities. To mose fight-game observers, however, those drastic possibilities were regarded as unlikely.

The general opinion was, however, that Rocky will receive a reprimand but will be permitted to go through with his Zale bout.

Sports Roundup

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 31 (CP)—The plane carrying English thoroughbreds Radiotherapy and Fast and Fair from Britain to California sped through the night high above the Atlantic...A couple of thousand feet below, the radio operator aboard a government control ship, stationed in mid-ocean to provide bearings for aircraft, chatted back and forth with the plane's pilot ...We've got a cargo of English horses aboard," said the pilot, "maybe you've heard of some of them. We have Radiotherapy and Fast and Fair"...a moment's silence, and a voice from a British plane, travelling in the opposite direction, broke in on the conversation tartly: "Radiotherapy!" said the voice. "Radiotherapy! Many's the pound I've lost on that bloomin' 'orse last summer. Take him to America; go on, do. And he'll break the bloomin' Federal Reserve bank."

That incident, related by turf writer Evan Shipman who accompanied the horses on their trans-Atlantic journey, doesn't speak too highly of the invaders' chances in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap, for which they now are in training...But they should have a better chance than any Australian imports. Race followers who returned to the Uniter States with the American Davis Cup team say the Aussie steeds aren't taking kindly to the starting gate, just being introduced Down Under...One horse, Alderman, entered the gate and promptly laid down...Jockey Eddie Doon jumped off the horse and prodded the animal to its feet...When Doon leaped back into the saddle ,the nag again flopped down...They had to start the race without him...Puffham, another well-known Australian thoroughbred, walked into the gate and leaned against the stall ...All efforts to get him to stand erect failed and when the starter pressed the button Puffham was still leaning.

BRITISH GOLFERS PREDICT COURSE WILL BEAT U.S.

Claim St. Andrews Too Tricky Because of Varied Winds

By MURRAY SINCLAIR

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 31. (AP)—The St. Andrew's course will defeat United States golfers when they try to take the Walker Cup from Britain next Summer, two of Britain's top pros predicted today.

Dai Rees, the Ben Hogan of England when it comes to winning golf purses, and Charley Ward, Great Britain's third highest money-maker last year, have seen many of the top United States amateurs in action since they joined the touring golfers of the Professional Golfers' Association last Fall.

In Tucson for this week's $10,000 open, Rees and Ward agreed that man for man the first Walker Cup team the United States has assembled since 1938, after which play was stopped because of the war, may be a wee bit stronger than their opponents, but not strong enough to beat the British team and the St. Andrew's course.

"Generally speaking the standard of play among amateurs here is higher than in England," said Rees, "but I think St. Andrew's will beat your Walker Cup players. Why? Because it's tricky wind."

Said Ward: "It will be the Americans' first visit to old St. Andrew's. Few golfers have ever mastered the course on their first try. Our boys know more about it."

And, said Rees and Ward, British pros may put up a "good show" for the Ryder Cup next Fall.

"Right now the U.S. calibre of play among the pros is better, much better," said Rees. "Of course, the English game was thrown out of kilter by a much longer layoff because of the war. It will improve and we should be able to match the best players in the United States.

"This Winter in America has tought us one thing: The British players must develop the ability of rolling three shots into two, like you do over here."

TO VOTE ON SITE

Kitchener, Jan. 31 — (CP) — Things are seriously considered in Kitchener. There's none of this acting with haste and repenting in leisure.

A year ago municipal voters approved a plan to erect a $450,000 arena.

At the next election, at the end of 1947, they will vote on the question of a site for the building.

The decision was taken yesterday at a joint meeting of the Kitchener Park Board, the auditorium site committee and members of city council.

BASKETBALL

Two games, both closely fought contests, were played on the opening night of the Spring Basketball House League at the Y.M.C.A. on Wednesday night. Several of the Y's Men's team were tied up at a special meeting and as a result they were unble to play and the pickups registered and as a result they were unable scheduled.

The second game brought together the Phalanx Fraternity and the Students, the first mentioned taking the nod in a close game. Opening strongly, the Phalanx gathered 11 points to the Students' 4 in the first quarter, with the Students rallying to outscore them by four points in the second, making the half time score 14-11 for Phalanx. Both teams went scoreless during a close checking third with the break coming a gain in the final period to give the Phalanx a 22-16 victory. Wonnacott was high scorer for the Phalanx with 11, half of his team's points, and Saunders carried the burden for the Students, scoring 10 of their 16 points.

The nightcap saw two teams which will represent the "Y" in the Eastern Ontario playdowns meet in what was expected to be a walkaway for the Midgets (under 17). However, the Bantams (under 15) gave them a bad scare, holding them to 12-10 at the quarter and going in front at the half way mark by 20-15. The older team took charge of the game in the second half outscoring their younger rivals 14-8 in the third and 14-8 in the final period, to win 43-34. Jeffrey and Spiegel were high for the Midgets with 12 and 9 points respectively, while Faulkner and little Johnny Batchelor led the Bantams with 12 and 11.

The games were refereed by Austin Watkin.

The teams:

Phalanx Fraternity: Gilbert 4, Bonnel 4, Mifflin 2, Townsend 1, Wonnacott 11. Total 22.

Students: Saunders 10, Staples 3, Cameron 3, Kelly, Campbell, Clare, Ragsdale. Total 16.

Girls' "Y" House League.

This week's games in the girls' house basketball league at the "Y" saw the Aces and the Royals continue their winning streaks at the expense of the Queens and the Jokers, although they had to play hard to win. In the first game play was very even, Aces having a little better luck around the basket than the Queens. Aces got away to a lead of 16-3 in the first half, but in the second half the Queens rallied to outscore them 14-8, but were not quite good enough to overcome the big lead the Aces had piled up earlier, the final score being 24-17 for Aces. Clara Kikes and Betty Zebedee both scored 10 points for the winners while Joan Wright was high for Queens with 6.

The second game was a lot closer than the score indicates, but the luckless Jokers just couldn't make the ball go through the hoop. At the half way mark, the score was 13-8 for the Royals, but they managed to run away with the game in the second half when the Jokers' shots rimmed and rolled out consistently. The final score was 31-12 for Royals. Shirley Bunnett with 12 and Shirley Marinoff with 11 were high for the winners, while Doris Mansfield collected 10 of her team's 12 points on the losing side.

The teams:

Queens — D. Wonnacott 1, B. Holway 4, J. Wright 6, D. Davidson 2, A. Wright 4, C. Grant. Total 17.

Aces — D. Bishop, J. Matthews 4, D. Bell, C. Kikes 10, V. Ketcheson, B. Zebedee 10. Total 24.

Royals — J. Lepore, S. Bunnett 12, M. Tomaso 8, S. Marinoff 11, R. Roblin. Total 31.

Jokers — D. Mansfield 10, D. Cooke 2, D. Pappas, J. Newman, H. Flindall. Total 21.

Games next Thursday — 7.30 Royals vs. Aces; 8.15, Jokers vs. Queens.

CAPITALS CALL ON "BIG THREE" TO WIN CONTEST

Cliff Simpson Scores Three Goals to Defeat Buffalo 6 to 2

(By The Canadian Press)

Indianapolis Capials, fighting not to lose any ground in the torrid race in the American Hockey League's Western Division, called on three of their top scoring stars last night to pull them out of a dangerous slump. And as usual, Coach Tommy Ivan's "Big Three" set off the heavy artillery in the Caps' 6-2 rout of Buffalo Bisons.

Toronto's Cliff Simpson, high-scorer for Indianapolis this season, had a big night with three goals which unofficially moved him into a tie for league scoring honors with Philadelphia's Phil Hergesheimer. Each have 60 points.

Big Cliff's goals increased his season total to 33, just one behind the league's top man, Johnny Holota of Cleveland.

The veteran Les Douglas, the circuit's leading playmaker with Cleveland's Bob Carse, backed up three assists for a seasonal total of 43, and Jerry Couture, Indianapolis' third high scorer, notched a pair of goals.

Two of Simpson's counters came within 27 seconds in the second period to break a 1-1 tie and give the Caps all they needed to win. Enio Sclisizzi added the other Capitals' goals while George Allen and Frankie Sndolls were the Bison point-getters.

The victory was important for Indianapolis. It enabled them to regain, at least temporarily, second place in the Western Division. The loss dropped the Bisons into a tie with idle Pittsburgh for the third spot.

In the League's other contest the up-and-coming Providence Reds, back on home ice after a three-week absence, whipped New Haven 3-1 to move into a tie with the Ramblers for second place in the Eastern Division.

Carl Liscombe paced the Reds with a pair of goals. His second proved to be the winning marker, coming with less than three minutes of play left. Johnny Chad tallied the other winners' point while defenceman Jack Church saved the Ramblers from a shut out.

HAMILTON TIGERS AND ST. MIKES HAVE LONG LEADS

Likely These Two Teams Will Represent O.H.A. in Senior, Junior Playdowns

Toronto, Jan. 31—(CP)—This being the last day of January, senior and junior "A" clubs of the Ontario Hockey Association suddenly realized that the play-offs are rapidly approaching.

All winter the redoubtable Hamilton Tigers have led the five-team senior league. They have lost just one out of 18 games played. All winter the power-packed Toronto St. Michaels Majors have paced the junior "A" circuit, a 10-team group. St. Mikes' record is two losses out of 30, but this is the point standing, which gives four points, or two games, in occasional encounters.

No one doubts that it will be Hamilton Tigers and Toronto St. Mikes who will represent the O.H.A. in the arduous struggles toward the Allan and Memorial Cup finals. But they still have to wind up the schedule and then go through the play-offs. And in play-off series anything can happen.

Start End of February

Four of the five senior teams will start play-offs at the end of February. Details haven't been arranged yet, but there will be semi-finals between the first and third teams and between the second and fourth. At the moment Tigers are first with 34 points. Owen Sound Mohawks and Hamilton Patricias are tied for second with 16. Toronto Staffords are fourth with 14. But the tail-end Stratford Indians are only four points behind Staffords with 10.

Six of the 10 junior "A" clubs get into the play-offs. The top two play a best-of-seven series. The third and fourth teams play a best-of-three, and so do the 5th and sixth place clubs. Winner of the top series then waits while the winners of the two lower brackets play off a semi-final. Whatever the standing might be then, the play-offs for junior clubs will start Feb. 22.

Standing of Today

Right now the standing shows St. Mikes with 56 points, Galt Red Wings 44, Oshawa Generals, Stratford Kroehlers and Toronto Marlboros all with 38, and Barrie Flyers in sixth place with 36. Those six clubs would appear to be the play-off contenders, for there's a gap of 18 points facing the seventh-place Barrie Flyers at 18 points. St. Catharines Falcons have 14, Hamilton Szabos 12 and Toronto Young Rangers 8.

The scoring statistics compiled by the O.H.A. itself today show why it's Tigers in the senior and St. Mikes in the junior. Hugh Barlow of the Hamilton Patricias leads all senior scorers with 30 points, but he's unique. The next four places are taken by Peer, Johnny Conick, Runions and Shillington of Tigers, with 23 points for all but Shillington, who has 22. Another Pat player, Tom Smelle, also has 22.

In the junior circuit St. Mikes have the top four rungs in the scoring ladder — Fleming Mackell with 68 points, Sandford 52, Costello 49, Harrison 47. Ceresino of Oshawa has 46, same as Freddie Glover of Galt.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

We ran into shock-headed likeable Jerry Wagar in the Reds' dressing room in the Jock Harty Arena, Kingston on Wednesday night. Jerry, who has more athletic letters than an American alphabet, was colorfully garbed in a sweater of the tricolor hues of Queen's which was tucked beneath an outer layer of a McMaster windbreaker.

• • •

And if you looked in his athletic wardrobe, you will probably find the blue baseball kit of Batawa, the maroon and yellow of the Belleville Flashes' softball squad, not to mention other colorful habiliment of the many athletic squads with which Jerry has graced his presence and enhanced with his ability.

• • •

At the present time, the tousel-headed youth medico (he's going to be a doctor bye and bye) is basking in the limelight that always floods college athletes when they are in the throes of intercollegiate battles. For when they speak of the Queen's University intercollegiate squad, the first name they mention is that of Jerry. The erstwhile baseball-football-softball star is Mr. Hockey with the Presbyterian knowledge knibblers, and his work at centre ice with the first string line has been outstanding.

• • •

Jerry and his buddy Remaziak, another college athletic star, dropped in the Belleville dressing room to see some of his chums. For Jerry is a Belleville boy — and has not forgotten the old home town. Always popular both on the field and off it, he enjoyed a verbal reunion with many of his former pals on the Red team.

• • •

It was strictly a sports gabfest — with hockey holding the spotlight. Jerry told the boys of the highlights of his travels with the varsity squad. The team goes to Washington this week where they play an exhibition tilt in the shadow of the Capitol.

• • •

Jerry cocked a quizzical eye when we asked him his opinion as to whom will be the next McGill football coach. "Don't quote me," he smiled, "but my money is on Johnny Obeck, of Columbia University. He seems to be the logical man with a fine football and coaching record behind him." Then Johnny shut up like a clam. But there was a knowing look in his eye.

• • •

This city will lose one of its best sports enthusiasts and workers this weekend, when Jack McVeigh, Kresge Store manager leaves for his new managerial post in Sarnia after ten years of highly commendable business and community work in this city. From a sports angle, and from any other angle as far as that is concerned, he was an indefatigable worker. Ask any Kiwanian, city official, or organization committee.

• • •

While Jack backed up girls softball years ago and helped bring it to the high scale it then enjoyed, his first love was baseball. And it was largely through his efforts that the summer sport was resurrected two years ago from the grave of doldrums into which it had fallen. True, there had been baseball teams, but they were playing "on their own" so to speak, with little or no organization.

• • •

Jack gathered together a few of the diamond clans and out of the chaos of years there rose the orderliness of organization. Many things had to be arranged — assistants brought into the fold and the many other headaches that usually are part and parcel of a job of this kind. But Jack weathered the initial storm and the first organized baseball league in the city and district got under way.

• • •

But the road was not easy. There were many thorns strewn along what many thought to be a rose-covered trail. Situations cropped up which were not governed by the rules and regs of the new league. There were squawks loud and long. But the McVeigh diplomacy and tact prevailed and the league flourished and went through to ultimate success—the foundation of the highly successful season enjoyed here last summer under President Don Thomas.

• • •

Last year, the Belleville junior baseball squad, which eventually proved to be one of the best in the province, were orphans in the baseball world. It's Coach Speedy St. Louis was doing a man-size job holding together and coaching a gang of high-spirited youngsters who wanted to play baseball and could.

• • •

But there was the eternal bugbear of finance. And into the breach stepped Jack McVeigh and the Kiwanis Club. The rest is history. The newly formed Kiwanis Juniors under the tutelage of St. Louis and the managership of McVeigh made baseball history for this city, and one of its games attracted over 1500 fans the largest seen here since the palmy days of the COBL.

• • •

And perhaps a more sincere tribute was never paid by a team to its manager and friend than that of Speedy St. Louis and the kids of the Belleville Kiwanis Junior baseball team when they heard of his impending departure. "I don't know what we would have done without him," said St. Louis. "He was for the team first, last and always; was friendly and took the interests of everyone to heart. He was an able manager and had plenty of ability along these lines. We owe a lot to Jack McVeigh, and so do the baseball fans of this city and district."

"He was one grand guy," chorused the kids, "and we hate to see him go."

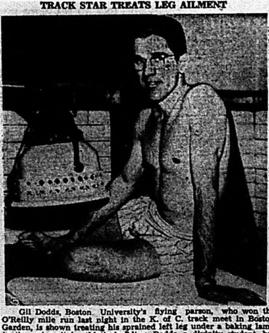
• • •

The Rampaging Reds go Lion-hunting tonight at Memorial Arena and if they maintain the form they showed against Queen's on Wednesday, the bag should be good. They went through a stiff workout last night and no casualties were reported. Kingston tacked a 9-3 defeat on them the last time the teams met, but even at that the Red showing their offensive power by scoring four goals in the first eight minutes against the Leos. First with their victory against Queens the Shiels gang should be flying at top speed tonight and the faithful should not miss it.

• • •

At the same time the Belleville Bees will be crossing hockey rapiers with the Trenton junior "B's", at Trenton. Coach Doug. Whillans has his youngsters in good shape but the Trenton kids have showed extra power since their last meeting with the locals. The scores by periods will be announced at the Memorial Arena here. On Monday night the Bees meet the highly touted Kingston Saints— and that game should be one for the book. Put the date down in your book — and make it a must. More about that later.

TRACK STAR TREATS LEG AILMENT



Gil Dodds, Boston University's flying parson, who won the O'Reilly mile run last night in the K. of C. track meet in Boston Garden, is shown treating his sprained left leg under a baking lamp in the university's athletic building. Dodds, a divinity student, has been troubled of late by a tightening up of his leg muscles and has been taking daily treatments.

TIGERS' GREAT GOALIE, CHILDS, STAYS WITH TEAM

Has No Desire to Turn Pro Although He Has Received Many Offers

Hamilton, Ont., Jan. 31 — (CP) —It will take more than money to lure Art Childs from his jungle lair, for amateur hockey's most colorful goalie started rejecting professional offers in his native England 11 years ago. He wants to play his last game in a Hamilton Tigers' sweater, whether it be dirty or clean.

Moustached and 30, Art is not setting such a hot pace as he did last season when he registered 16 shutouts in Ontario Hockey Association scheduled play, believed a Dominion record for organized senior hockey. But he has four perfect games to his credit this campaign and the Tigers have turned the league race into a runaway.

Although he played junior with Toronto National Sea Fleas, Art didn't rate headlines till he returned to his birthplace and as spare goalie helped England win the Olympic hockey title from Canada in 1936. The now-defunct Montreal Maroons of the National League wanted him but Art turned thumbs down, preferring to play 'amateur' with Wembley Lions in England.

Nudging six feet in his stocking feet and weighing 178 pounds, Childs started the Tigers on a superstitious trail last season which carried them to the eastern championship. Once the junglemen entered the playoffs he decided not to wash his underwear or sweater, his mates following suit to the extent of sweaters.

The charm broke when the Tigers faced Calgary Stampeders in the Allan Cup finals so this season Art sends his sweater regularly to the laundry. But the yellow-and-black livery of the big cats is the only one he ever wants to wear till he steps aside for a younger puck-blocker.

Childs joined the Tigers in 1941 and when he's not tending their nets he works in a cannery here. He owns "Wembley Camp" — named after his old English club — on the Burton River near Peterboro, and in the summer his comely wife is boss there.

Toronto, Jan. 31 — (CP)—The evergreen argument as to where and by whom the best brand of hockey is played came up for a thorough airing this week as teams of differing age-groups, classifications and geographical areas met in exhibition games. The results probably didn't prove anything but they were a fair indication that hockey's wartime slump is over.

In Kingston, Hamilton Tigers pacemakers of the Ontario Hockey Association senior loop, kept pace with the N.H.L.'s New York Rangers for about half the game before giving slightly at the seams and dropping a 5-2 decision.

The following night the Rangers trimmed Ottawa Senators, Quebec Senior League leaders, by a 7-3 count after spotting them a goal at the end of the first period.

And in Winnipeg the powerful Winnipeg Flyers, who lead the three-team Manitoba senior loop, buried Edmonton Canadians of the Alberta Junior circuit 9-2.

Judging by the quality of all three games, there isn't much wrong with hockey today.

The teams involved are fair representatives of their class. The Rangers are currently the hottest team in the N.H.L. The Tigers have dropped only one game in O.H.A. competition and the Senators, despite a recent slump, are the best the Q.S.H.L. has to offer. The Flyers are strong Allan Cup contenders and the Canadians are perennial Western Canada junior semi-finalists.

The results were hardly surprising. Tigers and Senators scored seven goals on Chuck Rayner between them — just seven more than Toronto Maple Leafs managed in their last two tries. But the N.H.L. leaders held Rangers to three counters over the same stretch while Hamilton's Art Childs and Ottawa's Legs Fraser let in an even dozen.

In Winnipeg the Edmonton juniors (who incidentally dropped another 9-2 verdict to the powerful Brandon Elks junior club the next night) were well beaten by a team that included a number of members of last year's Memorial Cup champion Winnipeg Monarchs.

Barbara Scott Has Slight Lead In Skating Trials

Davos Platz, Switzerland, Jan. 31. (CP)—Attractive 18-year-old Barbara Ann Scott of Ottawa today held a slim lead over 19 other entrants after completion of the initial phase of competition for the European Women's Figure-Skating Championship.

The former Canadian skating champion ran up a 766.5 score out of the maximum possible score of 948 in the 12 compulsory figures completed yesterday at this Swiss Winter Sports centre.

In second place was Daphne Walker, 22-year-old British Champion from London, with a score of 759.8. Gretchen Merrill of Boston, was third, with 745.2.

Miss Scott, who still holds the Biennial North American title she won at New York in 1945, hopes to win the European event, which continues for three more days.

Then she plans to continue to Stockholm to compete in the World's Championship Feb. 14-16, and, if possible, to return home by the end of February in time to go into training to defend her North American title.

Barbara Ann relinquished her Canadian title without a contest to compete here. Her successor is Marilyn Ruth Take, 18-year-old Torontonian who won the crown in Toronto, January 19.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Charlie Trippi, all-American halfback at Georgia, and Charles Bidwill, 51, wealthy owner of the pro football Chicago Cardinals with whom Trippi has signed a contract, escaped with minor cuts in an automobile accident near Atlanta yesterday.

In an International Wills Trophy series at Valleyfield, Que., last night, Valleyfield Braves scored an 8-6 victory over Boston Olympics.

The scheduled 10-round exhibition bout between heavyweight champion Joe Louis and Arturo Godoy at Mexico City Feb. 5, was postponed yesterday to Feb. 7. The management of the 47,000-seat bull ring where the match will be held, had also arranged for a big bullfight Feb. 5, anniversary of Mexico's adoption of the 1917 constitution.

Vic Cool, 147, Montreal, and Mayo Latasse, 146, Burlington, Vt., fought to a six-round draw at Barre, Vt., last night while another Montrealer, Jaspeh O'Hanley, 141, of Montreal, lost by decision to Eddie Moniz, 145, of Fall River, at the Massachusetts City.

At Tucson, Ariz., Jimmy Clark 29-year-old "freshman" in professional golfing ranks, posted a 63 yesterday to tie the course record and lead a par-shattering assault in the first round of the 72-hole $10,000 Tucson open tournament.

Dick Wakefield, 25-year-old Detroit Tiger outfielder, yesterday became the 22nd Tiger to return his signed contract for the 1947 season.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Experts earn their reputation. They can bid any hand and tell you the inferences and plastic valuations to deduce therefrom. But have you been able to learn to play good bridge that way?

They can fit their clever ideas to each deal and revise their conclusions with each new group of cards. But can you successfully apply these to the hands you get after that?

Only a genius can administer such methods with steady accuracy. The rest of us do better with understandable guides that we know how to employ in all situations with the least effort.

Horse Sense rules reach the same final bids as do the masters. Not in their brilliant or flashy vein. But with a few simple cold-blooded model directives that are right on the nose.

In any deal, an opening bid of one in a suit promises a minnie of two sure tricks, four high cards (aces, kings, queens), in five tricks (high cards and shorts), and a biddable suit.

In answer thereto, partner bids if he has more than two tricks (inclusive of two high cards. His bids follow the order of choice in T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump.

Step into this pair of partnership hands:

SOUTH
♠A J 9 8 6
♥A K
♦8 6 4 3 2
♣Q
NORTH
♠K 10 4
♥7 6 4 2
♣7 5 4 3 2

South opens with a spade. You know why. To tell north the least he has in sure tricks, high cards, tricks, and suit. North responds with two spades to say he has support and more than two tricks.

Seven tricks are in south. It takes ten tricks for game in spades.

When north shows more than two, south sees at least ten tricks in their pair. He simply jumps to four spades. They belong there.

Take the south seat. West leads diamond queen. Dummy hand comes into view. How would you plan the plays for the ten tricks you must take? See how good you are.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The uproar now rising higher in Hollywood and London over proposed British import restrictions on American movies sounds more like the opening guns in a new Battle of Britain than the preliminaries to a new trade agreement.

Sir Stafford Cripps, president of the British Board of Trade, has said publicly that unless more British pictures get better presentation in the United States higher taxation will be sought against American films in Britain. Sir Stafford also delicately held his nose over the quality of Hollywood films.

In reply to this Samuel Goldwyn, who had previously put his approval of British films on record, cracked that "if British producers would stay away from parliament and concentrate on making good pictures, they would be all right."

Eric Johnston, president of the American Motion Picture Producers' Association and spokesman of the industry, tactfully replied to the threat with the reminder that "restrictions are picket fences across the paths of expanding world trade. Increased quotas in England would breed quotas in other countries."

Which was Mr. Johnson's quiet reminder to Britain that the United States could impose restrictions of its own on the rival product.

Out of this welter of accusation and counter-accusation comes Bosley Crowther, film editor of the New York Times, who sums the situation up:

"For all Mr. Johnston's innuendoes and the indignation of American film men — and for all the incidental criticism of Hollywood movies made by Sir Stafford — the whole situation is quite simple and no cause for national outrage: the British economy is not able to buy more films from America than it sells. At least, it is certainly not able to continue the present unbalance in film trade, which is heavily in Hollywood's favor, in the light of its desperate struggle for dollar exchange.

CHAPTER 20

After his farewell to Christa Renny drove fast through the early evening traffic in order to get to the apartment before Allison should go to bed He thought he would call Arlen, but he knew that the conversation would be as the others had been—Arlen sweet but uncommunicative—he saying banal things which had no meaning. And the idea of calling upon her immediately after leaving Christa for the last time was a little distasteful. Was he a prig? Divorce was casual these days but he could not accept it casually. The thought of Christa in a Reno Hotel discussing the failure of their marriage with other women about to be divorced filled him with disgust. If it had to be done, why couldn't it be done in a dignified manner?

His mother was knitting a sweater for Allison when he reached home.

"It's final then, isn't it—Christa is going to Reno?" she asked quietly.

"Yes."

"It's the first divorce in our family, Renny."

"And the last I hope."

She smiled at him. "And I hope when you marry again....'

"Aren't you a little premature?"

"You will marry again, Renny because you're a thoroughly domesticated animal and a wonderful father." Sly humor crept about the corners of her mouth. "Besides, my dear, I'm too old-fashioned to know what to do with a modern child. You and Louise were taught the stork theory, and I'm told that modern mothers scoff at that and tell children the facts of life quite frankly these days. You will have to do something about Allison's conceit. She likes to look at herself in the mirror. One can't blame her when people are always admiring her and telling her how cute she is. She spilled a new box of powder today trying to climb on the dresser to look at herself."

"And received no punishment." He laughed at her.

"When she started to cry," his mother said helplessly, "what could I do? Louise was here and thinks she needs stern discipline. But I think that all this modern fuss about complexes and inhibitions makes children conscious of themselves. Louise was coddled and spoiled, and you ran practically wild, Renny, riding, hunting, and sleeping in tents. You see the result."

"Which probably accounts for my bad manners in the best of circles. I'm going in to see Allison. When I buy that farm I'm always talking about, she's going to forget all about admiring her image in the mirror. She's going to learn to ride to hounds get mud on her face and probably a few freckles on her nose.

Allison was asleep, her thick lashes flat against her cheeck. Renny pushed the curls back from her moist forehead and tried to get the doll Arlen had sent her from the firm grip on her fingers. If he moved it, he would awaken her.

With the tenderness of men who show their shy tenderness away from the eyes of ,other people, he bent down and kissed the top of her head, remembering that the angelic-faced doll clutched so tightly in her hand had fondly been named Arlen.

On a bitterly cold night Arlen came in, set the table, and started the dinner before opening her mail. She was standing by the stove wearing a small white apron over her business dress when Elissa came in.

"I bought the steak, darling, and I'm famished," Elissa said. "Today for lunch I just sent out for a sandwich and hot chocolate. It feels cozy and comfortable in here. Why—what's wrong?"

"Elissa, I have to go home."

"Oh! Your stepmother?"

"She's left my father. He needs me and I've got to go. It was August when I left and I don't know what has happened in the that time. He wrote so incoherently. I had to read between the lines to know how miserable he's been."

"Oh, but why, why should you have to go through another adjustment, Arlen? It's cruel. He practically turned you out when you needed him after your mother died, and now that this marriage has turned out just as you said it would, he's whimpering for you to come back. You spend your life holding too many heads up."

"But still I must go, Elissa."

"Permanently?"

"I don't know. I'll have to see Rupert in the morning and explain. I shall continue to pay half of the rent."

'I'll be able to get some one else to some in with me temporarily to pay your share. Are you going to call Renny?"

"No. When you see him tell him I've gone." She smiled at Elissa's troubled face. "I'm not going to put my foot into 'Paradise Regained,' my dear."

"I'm going to find out what has happened—now. Put on the steak and I'll call Christa's hotel. It's strange that she hasn't phoned me."

She came back in a few minutes and stood in the doorway.

"Christa has checked out. I guess that means she's with Renny. Oh, Arlen, I'm sorry."

The next moring Rupert looked not at Arlen when she came in but at her hat.

"Aren't you working here anymore? Why the hat?"

Arlen shrugged. "I've got to go home, Rupert. Family trouble."

"You seem to have a particular talent for bad luck. Is it the red-haired stepmother?"

"She has left my father," Arlen said stoically.

"A good thing. Don't be sad about it."

"But I think my father feels worse about this than losing my mother."

"And that hurts to the quick doesn't it? All right, go home and stay as long as you like. Your salary wil go on just the same. No protests. I won't hear them. Tel your father to be his age and concentrate on his golf score. Children worry about their parents as much as parents worry about the children, though not many parents realize that. I'll miss you," said Rupert. "You're the only girl who's ever worked for me who didn't try to vamp me. When you get your father straightened out and on the straight and narrow again, come back. Your job will be waiting."

She murmured something and fled from his office and from the outer office where Miss Street looked up from her typewriter with startled eyes. People on the street were a blur because of the tears Rupert's rough kindness had started.

She went back to the apartment, packed only what one bag would hold, and drank a glass of milk to save the expense of lunching on the train. Renny. No, no! No time to think of regret or to remember. Don't think of Christa because you can only think jealous thoughts of her Don't think of Allison's merry little laugh and her "Renny" frown.

Arlen picked up the bag, scribled a note to Elissa, and descended the steps. On the street she hailed a cab.

Soon the train was hurrying by fields barren in winter. Arlen's hand supported her chin and absently her eyes followed a great white cloud. She was remembering the brief moment in Renny's arms at midnight of New Year's Eve and passionate kiss, the brief moment of triumph for him that Christa was going to end, a brief moment for her of ecstacy that would never come again, and a moment to be plucked from the back pages of her life when perhaps time would make distant even the dark intensity of his eyes. In the cloudy recesses of memory that brief moment would always be infinitely clear and unforgettable and wholly beautiful.

It was quite dark and very cold when Arlen walked from the Ruxton railroad station to the gray stone house, carrying the heavy bag. Snow that had fallen a few days ago was white and icy on the earth, and where janitors had shoveled it from the narrow sidewalk to the ditch it had taken various forms topped by sharp jagged peaks.

The house almost obscurer in the summer by thick foliage, stood forlorn and naked in winter. No light was burning. Arlen changed the bag from one hand to the other, walked slowly up the slippery path, and put her key, long unused, in the door. In the hall she stood a moment as if this were a stranger's house she was entering and as if she expected some one to say something. But there were only the two inter-mingling sounds of the water heater and oil furnace in the basement.

She switched on the light, took off her hat, and looked around. The furniture in the room had been changed. There were new lampshades and little modernistic table looked conspicuously incongrous where all the other furniture was of the early American period Some one had been careless about the drafts of the fireplace and one side of the cream colored wall was black with soot. The room was dusty, the blinds were uneven, and feathers of dust blew under the chairs.

She walked through the dining room, the breakfast room and the kitchen. Dirty dishes were in the sink. The only food in the refrigerator was oranges and eggs. Apparently Julia, the cook Karen had hired, had gone with her mistress. Apparently her father was eating slim breakfasts alone.

When George Leeds came in about seven, he found the living room had been cleaned, the dishes washed, and Arlen in the kitchen making an omlette.

She had seen him cry only once before when her mother had died. There was something terrible in a man's tears. When he came to her, she saw tears in his eyes and his face was lined and strained. It was one of those pathetic moments when the child is the comforter, the parent the comforted. She felt that if she gave away to her misery and lonliness, she would cry, too, but now hunger, stimulated by work fit for a drudge, was more important than tears.

"I knew you'd come back," George Leeds said to his daughter.

"Have you had dinner?" Arlen asked. She patted her father gently on the shoulder. "If you haven't I'm afraid you'll have to go to the store. These eggs are all I could find in the house."

" I had dinner with Jerry." Jerry was his brother. He looked around. "You've cleaned things up. They were in awful shape when Julia left, and I couldn't trust a strange girl to come in when I was at the office."

Arlen sat down at the kitchen table. Her appetite failed, knowing what she was about to hear. She was sure her father had not confided in his brother, who had been as horrified as she was at his second marriage and who had not been to the house since.

Arlen wondered if her father saw any change in her. But he would not notice. To him she would always be just yellow hair grave eyes, and a slender body never older, never changed. Why was in that parents didn't look upon their children as individuals? She could see changes in him, and she could think of him as rather an ordinary man in his middle fifties dressed by the best tailors, shy with his superiors supercilious with his inferiors. He had no strength of his convictions, and until the Karen episode Arlen had always thought of him as rigidly moral though not religious. His social life had been dictated by other people. In business he could be called neither a success nor a failure, for the coal business owned by him and Jerry had been established two generations before him.

"You said Karen would leave me," he said. "She left when I was at the office and she took all the silver and all the jewelry like....like a thief. I wonder she didn't get a van to move the furniture."

TO BE CONTINUED

Little Benny's Note Book

I was walking along with Shorty Judge and we saw Reddy Merfy sitting on his frunt steps eating a apple, and I said, Hay Shorty, I know a good way to get Reddy to give us half his apple.

Go on, that's impossible, not that guy, Shorty said. How? he said, and I said, We'll just pretend we heard a cupple of kids go passed saying insulting things about him and Reddy will get mad and put the rest of his apple down to try to find them.

Oh boy, hurry up before he takes too many more bites, Shorty said.

And we went up to Reddy and I said, Hay Reddy, what do you know about the nerve of those kids?

What kids? Reddy said, and I said, Those 2 kids that just went passed and terned abound the corner. They sure had a nerve making cracks like that about you, didn't they, Shorty, I said.

I'll say they did, they had some nerve, Shorty said, and Reddy said, Why what did they have the nerve to say?

And he stopped eating his apple to listen ,being a lucky sign, and I said, One of them said, "Hay, did you hear that red headed guy eating that apple? What's he think he's doing, eating a apple or shovelling mud?"

Hay, he did? Reddy said, and Shorty said, Sure and the other kid said, "Sure, I'd have to be deff not to hear him, what's he think he'd doing, eating a apple or mixing cement?

Say, is that what they said? Reddy said, and me and Shorty said, Sure, and Reddy said, They were right all right. I bet there's not many guys can beet me when it comes to making a big noise eating a apple, he said.

Which he kept on doing making all the noise he could, just to show off, and adding insult to injury by eating the seeds and all with me and Shorty still watching him.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 31 (AP) — Buoyed by pleasing earnings and dividends, steel stocks led the market into recovery territory today although the move was relatively quiet.

Gains of fractions to 2 points soon predominated but dealings slowed and top marks were trimmed in the majority of cases near the fourth hour.

Unemployment Insurance Fund At $357,222,000

Ottawa, Jan. 31 (CP)—Though payments from Canada's unemployment insurance fund went over the $50,000,000 mark last year, the fund swelled by a net $41,000,000 the unemployment insurance commission announced today.

Balance in the fund at the end of 1946 was $357,222,000. The climb was achieved despite the fact that 1946 disbursements of $51,000,000 were more than 3 1-2 times the next-highest annual total of $14,500,000 paid out in 1945.

The heavy rise in benefit payments, however, resulted in a smaller net increase in the fund than was the case in 1945.

Revenues going into the fund showed an increase in 1946, totalling $92,330,000 compared with $90,478,000 in 1945.

Employer-employee contributions amounted to $64,995,000, compared with $60,938,000 the year previous. Regular government contributions moved up from $12,417,000 to 14,187,000.

In addition two special contributions by the federal government aggregated $5,940,000. One for $5,067,000, was to cover time spent in the armed forces allowed to veterans free of charge under unemployment insurance after becoming established for 90 days in insurable civilian employment. The other, $873,000, was to provide credits for wartime merchant seamen to qualify for free time under the insurance act.

Interest and profit on investments brought the fund $7207,000 last year compared with $5874,000 in 1945.

6,000 Shipyard Workers Request Increased Pay

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Jan. 31 (CP)—An application for general wage increases for 6,000 Maritime provinces shipyard workers was under consideration today by the National War Labor Board.

Argument for and against the increases aimed at levelling Atlantic rates with those paid on the west coast, concluded yesterday before the Board, and the application was taken under advisement.

Presented by the Maritime Workers' Federation on behalf of employees in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, the request called for a 15-cents-an-hour raise in the base rate of 60-cents-an-hour and raises in other classifications ranging up to 30 cents. Also, the federation sought a 40-hour week, overtime pay for Saturdays and increased bonuses for "dirty work."

The increases were sought as retroactive to last Aug. 1, the date when western yards obtained raises bringing them to their present levels. Under wage decontrol, the board has power to enforce its rulings only up to last Nov. 31.

Seven firms opposed the federation's demands, though the largest of them—the 2,100-man Halifax Shipyards, Ltd.—said it was willing to grant an advance of 10 cents an hour plus the improvements sought in working conditions.

Arguments advanced by the larger yards were, chiefly, that the advances would jeopardize their competitive position against United Kingdom and European shipyards and that the 40-hour week might result in holding up ships and, consequently, sending them to non-Canadian firms for future work. Some of the smaller firms claimed the increased costs would come close to driving them out of business.

One—the Atlantic Spring and Machine Company at Sydney—held any raises would force them to close down completely.

Would Roll Dice For Right to Go To Chair First

Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 31 —(AP) — Two youths waiting to hear the date of their scheduled execution for the murder of their hitch-hike benefactor told reporters today they'd like to roll dice to see who would go to the electric chair first.

The pair — 19-year-old James D. Sandusky of Nashville and John T. Kelly, 20, of Marion, Ill. — remained calm when they were sentenced yesterday, but young Kelly sobbed afterwards when faced by a girl who travelled here from Lewiston, Minn., for the avowed purpose of marrying him before he dies.

"I don't care what he's done," said 19-year-old Ramona Coy, a former waitress and night club hostess. "I love Tommy (Kelly) and I'm going to stick with him to the end."

She added they would marry today "if they'll let us."

The two youths were convicted of first degree murder for the death of J. Edward Sprouse, a motorist they told the court they had tied to a tree and shot after taking his car Jan. 6.

Commons Seat Of Fred Rose Declared Vacant

Ottawa, Jan. 31 — (CP) — The Montreal-Cartier seat in the Canadian House of Commons is vacant.

No shadow of protest arose yesterday as the Commons approved a government motion which amounted to expulsion for Fred Rose, the 39-year-old native of Poland who now is serving a six-year-sentence for conspiring to gather and communicate confidential information for Russia.

He had held the seat since he was elected in a by-election in August, 1943, being returned in the general election of June, 1945. He was detained by R.C.M.P. officers last spring as the 14th Canadian picked up in connection with the espionage probe first announced publicly Feb. 15, 1946.

Evidence in his trial disclosed that he had been a recruiting agent for a Russian military network of spies. The Royal Commission on espionage reported there was evidence that he had been working for Russia in Canada as far back as 1924. He came here in 1920.

Appeal Refused

His appeal refused, Rose now is in St. Vincent De Paul penitentiary, outside Montreal and from his cell there recently wrote a letter to government officials at Ottawa, setting out his claim that he should be allowed to retain his seat. Further light is expected to be thrown on it today when the speaker, Dr. Gaspard Fauteux, makes a statement.

Regardless of its contents, the Commons' action was final.

After Dr. Fauteux tabled copies of the judgment of Rose's conviction and the rejection of his appeal by the Quebec courts, Prime Minister Mackenzie King moved a resolution declaring the Cartier seat vacant.

It directed the speaker to set the machinery in motion to issue a writ for a new election in the constituency. Thus Cartier became the second federal constituency facing a by-election, the other being the Halifax seat made vacant by the death late last year of the Liberal member, W. C. MacDonald.

GAS WORKERS ACCEPT OFFER

Toronto, Jan. 31 (CP)—Agreement on terms of settlement has averted threat of a gas workers strike that would have crippled Toronto homes, hospitals and industries had it taken place next Monday, the deadline set by employees of the Consumers Gas Company for a walk-out in demand for an increase of 25 cents an hour.

The gas company's last reported offer Thursday was an increase of 14 cents, but at a meeting last night of members of the International Chemical Workers Union (A.F.L.) a company offer of 17 cents an hour increase was received, and accepted.

Cold Weather Causes Britons Much Discomfort

London, Jan. 31 (CP)—Candles were used for light—and for heat—in many London offices today as Britain's eight-day freeze-up moderated only slightly and gas and electricity were forced to impose the severest cuts in recent years.

Whole areas were blacked out when generators failed to keep pace with the huge electricity demand for domestic heating as householders tried to bolster rationed coal supplies.

Gas companies were compelled to reduce by as much as one-half to ensure at least a little fuel for heating and cooking.

Factories Shut Down

Hundreds of factory workers were sent home after plants had been warned that power cuts were likely to last until after nightfall.

As the Air Ministry predicted the cold spell would continue for several days, the Central electricity Board which controls power distribution throughout the country said the situation is "a very grim tale" with the cuts "the worst they have ever been."

The demand for gas was termed "unprecedented." Only a flicker showed in most stoves and heaters in London, although it was five degrees warmer than Wednesday. In some areas there was no gas at all.

There was a heavy snowfall along the southeast coast during the day—some reports termed it a "real blizzard" —and a locomotive was stuck in a snowdrift near Okehampton, North Devonshire. Snow also fell on the east Yorkshire coast.

Cancel Express Trains

Trains from Scotland and the southwest ran at least three hours late, and even suburban trains were behind schedule. Some express trains were cancelled because water troughs were frozen.

Tunbridge Wells, Kent, reported two degrees below zero overnight—lowest since 1891. Rivers were frozen over in many areas and outdoor skating proved a novelty for thousands.

The Princetown district of Dartmoor was isolated by snowdrifts as high as 10 feet in some places. Plymouth had its worst storm in years, with two and three-foot drifts in city streets.

Women in queues at Canterbury fainted from the cold, and schools closed for lack of fuel in several districts.

THREE YOUTHS RETURNED

Toronto, Jan. 31 — (CP) —Toronto police said today that three youths arrested here Tuesday left yesterday for Sherbrooke, Que., to face charges in connection with the abduction of a Sherbrooke taxi driver. Sherbrooke officials are taking the youths by auto and officials here have no idea of their present whereabouts.

8 Persons Killed, Heavy Damage In U.S. Tornadoes

New York, Jan. 31 —(CP)—Tornadic winds which hit and skipped through Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee Thursday left at least eight persons dead, two others missing and 70 injured in their trail of wrecked and damaged buildings.

Further west, similar storms killed seven persons in Missouri and caused uncounted thousands of dollars of damage in that state and in Arkansas.

The tornadoes were the most damaging feature of a crazy-quilt pattern of weather over North America yesterday, marked by an all-time low temperature in the Yukon, spring-like weather in Washington, and areas whipped by wintry snowstorms.

The temperature reached 8.7 below zero at Snag Airport in the Yukon while in Washington it was almost the same amount above — 73 — on the hottest January day on record for the United States capital.

21 Inches of Snow in Iowa.

Heavy snow ranged up to 21 inches in Iowa while Milwaukee, Wis., was blanketed by 16 inches with the fall still continuing.

The storm also affected part of Michigan and Southern Ontario with its attendant transportation and communication tie-ups.

The mid-south storm struck hardest at Kent, Ala., 75 miles southwest of Montgomery, three persons were killed and a dozen or more hurt.

Earlier, Haywood and Crockett counties in Tennessee felt the tornadic force of the winds. There, one farmer was killed and 12 persons injured.

From Alabama, the wind skipped eastward into Georgia, wrecking Herbert Smart airport near Macon, Ga. Twenty-four persons were injured and 11 planes demolished.

Tifton, Ga., reported several houses blown down and three persons hurt, and at Valdosta, Ga., the winds unroofed one home and flattened several outbuildings along the edge of town. No injuries were reported, however.

Red Cross disaster crews were sent into all the stricken areas.

Property damage was extensive along the entire path of the storm, but there was no immediate monetary estimate.

There were possibilities the death toll might go higher.

Several of those injured were reported in serious condition.

1,200 Miniature Replicas Are Cast From Church Bell

St. Thomas, Jan. 31 (CP)—Offers as high as $25 have been received for replicas of the large bell which tolled worshipers to service for 70 years at the First United Church here, it was announced today.

W.W. Turnbull, chairman of committee raising money for a church to replace the one which was destroyed by fire last March when the big bell crashed to the ground, said that 1,200 miniatures had been cast from the old one and would be offered for sale.
